(Roll Call, Page 13.)

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday approved President Roosevelt's "aid the Allies" program, voting 67 to 18 to grant the Administration authority to trade-in surplus Army and Navy guns for resale to Great Britain and France.

A few hours later the United States Steel Corporation announced in New York that a subsidiary company had concluded arrangements with the War Department for the purchase of surplus munitions and is reselling immediately at no profit $37,600,000 worth of such equipment to the Anglo-French purchasing mission.

Simultaneously, the President issued a proclamation making the Mediterranean a combat zone under the Neutrality Act and thereby banning all American ships and citizens from the area. The order, however, left open the Atlantic ports of Spain and Portugal to American shipping.

Adds $319,000,000

And movin' swiftly in the face of the crucial world situation, Congress and the Administration took these other important defense steps:

Congressional action was completed on three major preparedness bills, the $1,221,853,222 Army appropriation bill, a $635,000,000 bill authorizing expansion of the fleet by 11 per cent, and a $2,200,000,000 measure to authorize a naval air force of 10,000 planes, 15,000 pilots and a chain of bases. The bills now go to the White House for signature.

The President warmly indorsed a "Stop Hitler Now" movement, which is sponsoring advertisements in American newspapers urging full aid short of troops to the Allies.

Next year's preparedness program reached a new high of $5,021,619,622, as the House Appropriations Committee added $319,000,000 to the President's defense recommendations to provide 95,000 additional soldiers for the Army. It reported a $1,706,053,908 supplemental defense appropriation bill which will be taken up by the House today.

Unlimited Army Air Corps

Mr. Roosevelt signed the $1,400,000,000 Naval Appropriation Bill.

The Senate passed, 80 to 0, legislation authorizing an Army Air Corps of unlimited size, granting the President broad power to restrict the export of war materials and to establish or lease munitions plants. The bill—the measure to which the arms trade-in authority was added—goes back to the House for action on Senate amendments.

Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, an Administration leader, revealed the War Department is planning to establish an enlisted reserve of 100,000 young men, who will be given military training this summer. He made the announcement in opposing efforts to amend the relief bill to authorize compulsory military training for the CCC.

The War Today

THE BATTLE OF FRANCE, visible and audible from Paris suburbs, rolled deeper into the republic both east and west of the capital as Poilus fought to stem the German invasion from the north; on the south, however, there was still no report of an Italian invasion 36 hours after Italy's entry into the war.

THE FRENCH CENTRAL ARMIES retreated south of the Marne, to the very fields where the Germans were halted in 1914, and beyond where the Americans helped stop them again in 1918; an equal distance west of the capital, the French fought to hold the south bank of the Seine. encirclement of the city.

NORTH OF PARIS, and far to the east in the Argonne sector, the French claimed to be holding, but Germans were optimistic that the French army, "in full retreat," would be cut up and the pieces destroyed, as were the Poles. This process, said Berlin, was already in progress, with two French armies of perhaps half a million men already killed or captured.

BRITISH AND SOUTH AFRICAN PLANES launched the Allies' war on Italy, bombing airports in Libya, Eritrea and Somaliland. A score of Italian merchantships were captured or scuttled, and closing of the Suez Canal, it was claimed, isolated Italy's estimated 50,000 troops in Ethiopia.

ITALIAN WARPLANES BOMBED Malta, Aden, and a suburb of Geneva, Switzerland, where reports were heard of impending action on the as yet quiet Italo-French frontier; Rome twice postponed her first war bulletin, but unofficial reports told of land operations against French Somaliland.

Sub Threatens To Sink U. S. Refugee Ship

Despite repeated warnings by this Government that she must be permitted to proceed "without interruption or molestation," the American refugee liner Washington early yesterday was halted at sea and threatened with sinking by a submarine.

For 10 grim minutes, 1,020 passengers, fleeing the war zone, and 570 crew members hastily prepared in the night to abandon ship under a 10-minute ultimatum, and some actually had been lowered over the side. Then, using blinker lights by which he had transmitted previous commands, the submarine's commander said he had made a mistake and asked the Washington to "please go on."

Official indignation here went unconcealed after Capt. Harry Manning, the Washington's skipper, reported the affair. He said the dark-

House Passes Defense Taxes By 396-6 Vote

Program Designed To Raise Billion Annually for 5 Years

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday passed the Administration's emergency tax bill, designed to raise $1,000,000,000 annually for the next five years to pay for this year's defense program, by a vote of 396 to 6.

Approved after a single day's debate, the measure was speeded to the Senate, where the Finance Committee will open hearings this morning with Secretary Morgenthau as principal witness.

Although the bill was accepted in the House exactly as reported by the Ways and Means Committee, it appeared probable last night that it would be amended in the Senate to require an average 10 per cent slash in Federal nondefense expenditures.

Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee said yesterday he would not fight the proposed reduction which its sponsor, Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, estimated will amount to $500,000,000. Under the plan this saving would be available for national defense purposes.

By its overwhelming vote the House performed the extraordinary feat in an election year of increasing not only taxes, but also the number of taxpayers.

Individual income taxes alone are expected to yield an additional $375,000,000 a year, while over 2,000,000 new persons will be added to the tax rolls. By raising levies

Leche Is Given 10-Year Term In Louisiana Graft

Alexandria, La., June 11 (AP).—Richard W. Leche, Louisiana's Governor from 1936 until his resignation under fire last June 26, was sentenced today to ten years in Federal prison—the stiffest term yet meted out to anyone convicted in the Louisiana scandals.

'Concrete Example of Sympathy'

President Roosevelt moved quickly yesterday to follow up his pledge of material resources for the Allies by asking Congress to appropriate $50,000,000 for relief of war sufferers abroad.

The President said frankly that the food and other relief supplies to be bought with the fund would go to war victims in the Allied countries, since it was impossible to get supplies through to the people on the other side of the conflict.

Asking that the $50,000,000 be added to the total of the pending domestic relief bill, Mr. Roosevelt declared that "our deepest sympathy has gone out to the civilian populations of war-torn areas, and I believe that this sympathy should be expressed by a concrete example of our inherent and decent generosity."

He made the request in a letter to Vice President Garner, presiding officer of the Senate, before which the $1,073,584,916 bill was pending. The additional money asked would be turned over to the Red Cross.

At the White House, his proposal to send the funds abroad was described as a follow-up of his declaration of Monday night that this country would extend its material resources to the Allies.

"Many millions of dollars have been given to the American Red Cross for relief purposes in Europe," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "but I feel that the Government itself should greatly add to the assistance that is now being given."

He expressed belief Congress would receive "Nation-wide support" for including in the relief bill the funds he proposed.

Hangars Struck, Planes Destroyed In Desert Forays; Malta Is Raided

By the Associated Press

London, June 11.—Britain's air force raided the desert airdromes in Italian Libya and East African Eritrea today, backing up with bombs the Allied declarations of readiness to meet Mussolini.

These blows, along with eight Italian raids on the British naval base at Malta, were the first struck in the new theater of war—the Mediterranean and Red Seas.

British announcements said "we caught them napping this time."

"Great success" attended the attacks of long-range Blenheim bombers on Italy's principal military airfields in Libya, which threatened Egypt and the Suez Canal, and near Asmara, in Eritrea, Italian East Africa, where Italian air bases threatened to cut Allied communications through the Red Sea.

Bomb Hangars

Swooping down in the desert dawn, British bombs made repeated hits on hangars, gasoline dumps and bomb dumps and destroyed many planes, the British said. They admitted encountering antiaircraft and fighter opposition and losing three planes in the operation.

The South African air force reported from Nairobi, Kenya Colony, that it had successfully bombed military objectives in Italian Moyale, on the border of Britain's Kenya Colony and Italian-occupied Ethiopia.

A British war office announcement said "casualties were slight and little damage was done" by the eight Italian raids, between dawn and midnight on Malta, British naval base off the tip of Italian Sicily. Two Italian bombers were declared shot down by ground defenders.

(A Swiss telegraph agency also reported bombings of French Tunisia and Corsica, but there was no confirmation of this from any Allied or Italian source.)

British fighter planes meanwhile attacked German formations "ten times their own strength" in repeated patrols over the French front.

It acknowledged loss of 12 planes in raids behind the Nazi lines in France, Germany and Norway in the past 24 hours in which, it said, they had set afire two oil tankers and a refinery in Norway besides hitting a railway, bridges, armored and transport columns behind the Western Front.

In the Norway raid, it was claimed, two German cruisers and

Fascist Legions Launch Attack From Ethiopia; Djibouti Is Goal

By the United Press

Rome, (Wednesday) June 12. Italian troops were reported today to be driving on France's strategic East African port of Djibouti while Italian planes bombed British bases at Malta in the Mediterranean and at Aden, across the southern mouth of the Red Sea from Djibouti.

Thus the first moves to put into effect Premier Mussolini's war declaration of yesterday seemed to be aimed at cutting the Allies' communications with their empires by shutting the gates of the Red Sea.

Flying Italian columns were reported unofficially to have broken the first French lines of defense around Djibouti, terminus of the rail line from Italian-held Addis Ababa to the sea, and one of Mussolini's revisionist "aspirations."

Rome Withholds Communique

[There was as yet no official confirmation of the East African troop movements, and no official announcement of any military operations whatsoever, more than 24 hours after Mussolini's war declaration went into effect. The Associated Press reported the Rome radio announced the first Italian war bulletin would be issued at 4 a. m. E.S.T. This first communique had been promised for 4 p. m. yesterday, E.S.T., but was delayed without explanation.]

Rome had its first air raid scare at 1:33 a. m. today when alarm sirens sounded for seven minutes. The all-clear signal did not come for 20 minutes. No airplanes were heard.

Mussolini, heading the armed forces as supreme commander under appointment of King Victor Emmanuel, said in his first wartime order-of-the-day to his troops:

"From today our arms and hearts must be directed toward one goal—victory! Hail the King-Emperor!"

Attack From Ethiopia

The Italian assault on French Somaliland was made from both Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia, it was understood. The aerial attacks on Aden were launched from Ethiopian bases.

It seemed apparent from Italy's action in her first day of war against Britain and France that Mussolini's initial objectives included an effort to close the Red Sea at the bottleneck between Djibouti and Aden.

Closing of the Red Sea would have virtually the same effect as

Italy Thrown Back To 'Barbarism,' Says LaGuardia

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, June 11.—Mayor LaGuardia of New York asserted today that "Mussolini has deprived the Italian people of a glorious page in history and subjected them to the scorn of the world for generations yet to come."

"Never before have centuries of civilization been suddenly stopped by one individual and an entire nation thrown back to barbarism," he said.

"As we listened to President Roosevelt promising all material aid to the Allies, we were proud of being Americans. We must take full cognizance of the danger ahead."

Americans must look at the war abroad and prepare for every possible contingency, he declared.

"In keeping with our national policy, known as the Monroe Doctrine, we make it clear to the world we will not recognize nor permit any change of sovereignty of any territory or possession on this hemisphere by force, conquest or otherwise," said the mayor.

"God Almighty has given us this hemisphere and we reserve the right to pick our own enemies in Europe."

Any issue which affects the future and happiness of Canada is a matter of great concern to the United States, LaGuardia said in his speech at the opening session of the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Army Flying 93 Planes to Canada Line for Allies

By the Associated Press

The War Department, it was learned last night, has ordered 93 of its Northrup attack planes to Houlton, Me., for shipment across the Canadian border to the Allies in accordance with President Roosevelt's "trade-in" plan of "obsolete" planes and war materials.

An unimpeachable source disclosed that the planes are being flown direct to Houlton from scattered sections of the Nation without the formality of presenting them as "trade-ins" to the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, of Burbank, Calif., successor to the now-defunct Northrup Co.

The Douglas company, he added, would give the Army a credit for the ships which will be applied on future orders of newer type craft.

The planes, all 6 or 7 years old, are being flown by regular pilots of the Army Air Corps, he said. The airmen have been instructed to land at Houlton, just this side of the Canadian border. It could not be learned, however, what method will be used in transferring the ships into Canada.

He described the ships as Northrup A-17 type, two-seater attack ships that were manufactured in 1933 and 1934.

Nineteen of the planes have been forced down by fog in the New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania area. One crashed in Brooklyn.

War Creates a 'Shadow City'

Great Mass Flight Clears Paris As Troops Arrive for Defense

Huge Pall of Smoke Shrouds Capital As Hundreds of Thousands Flee South To Face Perils of Famine and Suffering

By Walter Kerr
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Paris, June 11.—The great mass flight of the people of Paris to the south of France was almost ended by sundown today as the vanguard of the exhausted army of the north began to stream into the city.

All night and all day men, women and children piled out of town by train, bus, truck, automobile, bicycle, baby carriage and on foot. They took with them what they could—everything from a loaf of bread and a bottle of wine for the evening meal to mattresses, chairs, clothing, bird cages, dogs and cats.

And almost as the last of them were leaving (here 95 words were censored, and the dispatch continued with what was obviously a picture of the soldiers of the Army of the North.) Their faces were covered with dust that was damp from sweat. There were great dark circles around their eyes. Their unshaven chins sagged with weariness.

They marched along, not in step, but with a lieutenant or captain in command. Two platoons I saw were led by sergeants.

Later in the evening soldiers were coming in from the northwest, hundreds of them in trucks and some in fast-moving armored cars. You could see some of them around the city—young men going to their homes and frequently finding that everyone had left. One soldier collapsed from exhaustion on the Rue de Berri.

But the more obvious story in Paris today was the flight to the South. Literally hundreds of thousands of people left the city and its suburbs. There probably will be no more than a few hundred thousand still here by dawn tomorrow.

[Several thousand Americans still were estimated to be in the capital despite repeated warnings by the embassy to get out, the Associated

Totalitarian Way Defended By Vargas

Old Systems Are In Decline, Says Brazil's Dictator

By the Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro, June 11.—President Getulio Vargas, Brazil's dictatorial ruler, proclaimed his country's neutrality in the Allied-Italian war today in a decree preceded by a vigorous speech interpreted as a defense of totalitarian ways.

"We are marching toward a future different from all we know in economic, political and social organization and we feel that old systems and antiquated formulas have entered a decline," he said.

"It is not, however, as pessimists and stubborn concervatives pretend, the end of civilization, but the beginning—tumultuous and fecund—of a new era."

Vargas' declaration was the first by a South American president on latest European events, and observers contrasted it with President Roosevelt's message last night calling Italy's action a dagger stab in the back of a neighbor.

Usually reliable sources in Buenos Aires said today that both Paraguay and Argentina had strengthened their frontier garrisons, and the Argentine interior ministry confirmed that "precautions" had been taken. Unofficial Buenos Aires sources said the borders with Brazil were under an especially close watch.

"Vigorous peoples fit for life must follow the route of their aspirations instead of in contemplation of that which crumbles and falls in ruins," the President asserted. "It is neces-

Berlin, June 11.—Whatever success the Third Reich's storming armies invading France may be enjoying, it is not being specifically revealed by the German high command. Nonetheless, its tone is extremely confident, although it is specifically stated the "great battle between the Channel coast and the Meuse is still in full force."

Statements from general headquarters depict an enemy hard pressed in retreat, whose troop con-

'A Good Omen'

Juliana Expects Third Child; Now in Canada With Princesses

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Crown Princess Juliana, of the Netherlands, who arrived in Canada yesterday with her two daughters, is expecting a third child, according to reports from London.

Should the child be a boy, he would become the Prince of Orange-Nassau, first male heir to the Netherlands throne in more than half a century.

The Washington Post asked Dr. A. Loudon, the Netherlands Minister to the United States, whether he could confirm the report from London that a third royal child was expected. He said he could not. Then he added:

"If it is true, then we of the Netherlands would see in it the hand of God—a divine intercession to give a new member to the old House of Orange, which has always been the national symbol of the Netherlands.

"To have a royal child born on the soil of freedom loving America would be both a blessing and a good omen—particularly in view of the inhuman determination of the enemy to destroy the House of Orange and all its members at any price."

Dr. Loudon said the Netherlands Legation was very glad that Crown Princess Juliana and the two little princesses—Beatrix 2, and Irene, 9 months—had found sanctuary in Canada, and he was sure that all Netherlanders in this country would share that feeling.

The whereabout of 31-year-old Juliana's 32-year-old consort, German Prince Bernhard, was not

French Stand On Land Where Fathers Made Miracle of 1914

By the Associated Press

Paris, (Wednesday) June 12. The creeping battle of France edged to within sight and hearing of suburban Paris today as Frenchmen, for the second time in a generation, took up their stand along the historic Marne east of the city.

Residents in the outer parts of the city reported hearing the roar of the night battle and seeing the gun flashes on the northwestern horizon.

Although the Germans were trying to encircle the city, communication by highway and wire still was open to the nerve center where the government had moved in central France.

Outskirts Bombed

The city was ominously quiet as the battle rolled closer.

The outskirts of the city were bombed several times yesterday, but the center of the city went untouched.

While the central armies retreated to the south bank of the Marne, apparently about 40 miles east of Paris, the French west flank fought to keep the Nazis from crossing the Seine betwen Rouen and Vernon, 40 miles west of the capital.

The battle for Paris seemed likely to be decided by the ability of the French to hold the Seine to the west and the Marne to the east, and thus to prevent the invaders from encircling the city.

But to protect Paris, the French line would have to bulge northward from these two streams to a line on both sides of the Oise, since the Seine passes through the city.

A turn in the weather, which up to now has favored the Nazi blitzkrieg of planes and tanks, may aid the defenders of Paris. It was noticeably cooler and more cloudy this morning.

An indication the high command is confident it can hold the city at least until June 21 was seen in an order to young men 17 years old and up to report to the city gates and leave Paris by that date.

Advance "Dearly Disputed"

On the east flank, as part of what the high command called a general battle of the "greatest violence" of any in the struggle for France, a heavy tank attack by the Germans in the valleys of the Vesle and Ardre, thundered on. It is designed to cut off Rheims from the east and southwest.

Fresh German divisions were brought into the battle in the region of Champagne, on the east.

Bitter fighting raged on the whole course of the River Retourne, south of the Aisne and of Rethel, and the French reported the Nazi crossings there had been "dearly disputed."

South of Attigny French counter-attacks were said to have inflicted "serious losses," and all German assaults between the Aisne and Meuse rivers were pronounced repulsed.

The disclosure that the main French forces in the center had fallen back to an old battle field was made in the high command's communique reporting that Nazi divisions advancing on the Ourcq River between the towns of Ferte-Milon and Fere-en-Tardenois had "found only rear guards before them."

". . . The greatest part of our divisions," it was added, "received

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

BOTH EARS GROUNDED: Congressmen with ears of the super-drooper type, so long that they can keep both ears to the ground simultaneously, are beginning to talk of flying 1,000 Army planes to the Atlantic ports immediately, for prompt shipment overseas.

Harlan Miller

Chief reason for this is the overwhelming change in the tone of letters, telegrams and postcards from their constituents. This urgent proally mail has convinced many former off-hand isolationists that there isn't even time to crate the planes.

* * * *

Incidentally, the State Dept. is taking the position that this re-sale through private firms is by no stretch of argument a violation of international law . . . In fact, Germany herself as a neutral has sold war munitions to other countries at war, in the past.

* * * *

RED TAPE UNWINDS: So few were shocked by Solicitor General Biddle's ruling that sale of unneeded Army planes can be arranged in a way not to violate any law, national or international. Obstacles so far have been political rather than legal, with Hoover, Landon, et al holding the veto power. The move, which was not scheduled to be made until public opinion had gone further, was hastened by the tone of mail and telegrams—and finally timed by the push on Paris.

* * * *

WHITE HOUSE WEDDING: One of the strongest arguments yet heard for the Bridges and Joe Martin candidacies is that, if either of them were nominated and elected, the country might enjoy the treat of a White House wedding. The Senator is a widower, Martin is a bachelor.

"—could have conked Leopold"

LEOPOLD ALIBI: It isn't being shouted from the housetops, but insiders here whisper that the British were helped in important ways, rather than hurt, by King Leopold's surrender, and under the desperate circumstances wouldn't have had it happen differently.

* * * *

The Belgian army, ill-prepared and ill-equipped by Leopold's negligence, had already been knocked out. In the fighting to follow it would have been a liability rather than an asset. By its capitulation, Leopold took the heat partly off the British for the defeat in Flanders and put it where it belonged—on his own shoulders. (They got into jeopardy in the first place by hurrying to Belgium's rescue).

* * * *

A high official here who sees all, knows all, points out that Leopold served plenty of advance notice, in a stormy all-night session with Allied generals, that he intended to surrender, even if he didn't say so in as many words.

* * * *

"Do you think," asks this official, "that if the French and British generals thought Leopold's surrender would jeopardize the lives of 500,000 Allied soldiers, they would have permitted him to get away with it?

* * * *

"They could have conked him or kidnaped him and kept the Belgian army in action—if they had thought it any use. As it was, his surrender spot-lit the stage for the Allies' heroic evacuation of the pocket, and improved morale vastly."

"—the gadget pointed to metal"

CAPONE INDIGNANT: From Alcatraz via the Department of Justice comes a queer light on Al Capone's filial feelings. After a visit by his aged mother to the island prison he complained bitterly that she had not been treated properly.

* * * *

Inquiry developed that Mrs. Capone had been passed through the corridor gadget which reveals electrically whether a visitor is concealing a gun or other metal weapon.

It registered metal on her, so she was frisked by a matron.

"All she had in the way of metal," Capone protested, "was the metal stays in her old-fashioned corset."

* * * *

NAZI DUD: The dud bomb which failed to explode so near to Ambassador Bullitt is not the most famous dud in the annals of Paris raids. During a raid in 1918 the Germans dropped an 1,100 pound bomb (500 kilos) squarely in the courtyard of the French War Ministry. It buried itself 5 feet in solid concrete but did not explode.

Ex-Senator Pepper Is Favorite To Guide G. O. P. Platform Shaping

Philadelphia Lawyer May Be Resolutions Committee Chairman

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, yesterday appeared inside favorite for chairman of the Republican resolutions committee which next week will attempt to hammer out foreign and domestic campaign planks in the teeth of the European war.

The 73-year-old Philadelphia attorney and former member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is a reputed strong advocate of national defense measures but opposes war involvement.

Also prominently mentioned for the post in usually well informed Republican quarters were former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the party's 1936 color bearer; Henry P. Fletcher, former G. O. P. National Committee chairman, and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts.

In the early New Deal period, Pepper successfully argued AAA invalidation before the Supreme Court. In the Senate from 1922 to 1927, he opposed the League of Nations but supported the World Court. He already has been designated a member of the resolutions committee.

Willkie Still a "Dark Horse"

With the Republican Convention less than a fortnight away, camps of opposing leading candidates for the G. O. P. Presidential nomination were eyeing with some trepidation the sudden rise of a formidable contender—Wendell L. Willkie, 48-year-old utility executive.

On the eve of the convention, Willkie still is a "dark horse" so far as actual pledged delegates were concerned. But Washington's word-of-mouth grapevine is rating him first in delayed ballot strength should Taft and Dewey forces battle to a stalemate or fail to gain after the early votes.

A fresh voice after weeks of steady plugging by the three leading G. O. P. candidates, Willkie is winning an enthusiastic following partly from the ranks of the other three as "the man who can talk back to Roosevelt." He was among the first of the Republican candidates to urge support for the Allies but has attacked the New Deal down the line on domestic policies both as president of the Commonwealth and Southern and as a candidate on the stump. A former Democrat, he isn't popular with old line Republican leaders.

Willkie's first ballot strength has been estimated between 25 and 40. He claims his initial delegate strength will come chiefly from New Jersey, which gave him a large "write-in" vote; New York, Indiana, Missouri, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Iowa and North Carolina. Some of these are vigorously disputed by Taft and Dewey forces.

On the stump, he couples Dewey's personality plus Taft's plodding qualities, and has eschewed the stereotyped line of political epithets. The inevitable Democratic "power trust" charge thus far has failed to stop him. Supporters argue instead that as a successful business executive who has gone to bat with the Government he is the man to direct mobilization of industry for the national defense effort.

The bulk of Republican delegate strength meanwhile remained closely divided between the two leaders in the race—New York District Attorney Dewey and Senator Taft, of Ohio. Taft leaders claim about 325 and accord Dewey around 300. Dewey managers insist their candidate will poll more than 400 on the first ballot. It takes 500 to win, and if Dewey or Taft fails to muster a majority, honors almost certainly will go to a dark horse.

Other Dark Horses

Still figuring prominently in the latter class were House Minority Leader Martin, Gov. Bricker of Ohio and former President Hoover. Some friends suspect that Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, still among the top three in delegate strength, is no longer seriously contending for the nomination.

The Republican drive to hold Congress in session for the duration of the crisis meantime picked up Democratic support in the House and led leader to hedge flat predictions of a sine die getaway by June 22, before the Republican convention.

House Minority Leader Martin predicted if the vote were taken today, Congress would record itself for remaining in session all summer.

President Roosevelt told his press conference he believed Congress would complete its main legislative tasks in ten days or two weeks. He said he had not specifically suggested that Congress adjourn as soon as its legislative program was complete.

Bill to Deport Bridges Again Reported Out

A bill calling for the deportation of Harry Bridges, Australian-born C. I. O. maritime leader on the West Coast, was reported back to the House yesterday by its immigration committee.

An effort was made last Wednesday to call the measure up for floor action but objections from two members automatically sent the bill back to committee.

The committee then agreed to attach it to an omnibus immigration measure and will seek a rule giving the bill a legislative right of way.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

READY TO PRODUCE PLANES—Edsel Ford (left), president of the Ford Motor Co., said yesterday in Washington his company was ready to swing into mass production of airplanes as soon as the Government granted it contracts. Ford made the statement following a conference with William S. Knudsen (right), member of the National Defense Commission

Plants Ready to Swing Over to Defense Program, Auto Firm President Says After Conferring Here With Knudsen

Edsel Ford, president of the motor company that began with a "tin Lizzie" in 1903 and supplied Liberty motors by the thousands in the World War, said yesterday his firm stands ready to swing into mass production of planes as soon as the Government grants it contracts.

Ford, son of the founder of the company, made the statement here after conferring almost all day with William S. Knudsen, production member of the defense commission.

At the same time, Louis Renault, the "French Henry Ford," France's largest automobile maker whose plants west of Paris, have been turning out munitions for the Allies, called on President Roosevelt at the White House with a report on French industry and the war.

Eager to Make Complete Planes

It was learned from a spokesman for the defense commission that Ford and Knudsen discussed the role that the Ford company might play in producing plane engines. The spokesman said that the exact nature of their conversation was on a "highly confidential" phase of motor production, linked possibly with manufacture by Ford under license of the British Rolls-Royce-Merlin engine or the General Motors developed Allison.

Whether Ford would get contracts to turn out complete planes was problematical, but that the company's president was eager to do that job was clear.

Ford told reporters that the Curtiss P-40, the Army's "greased lightning" pursuit plane, was found suitable for mass production after an examination by company engineers.

He declined to estimate how many planes a day the Ford firm could produce, but Henry Ford was quoted again yesterday by the Associated Press as saying in Detroit that a production of at least 1,000 a day in six months would be an easy task.

New Models May Be Sacrificed

Edsel Ford said his company was studying the Rolls-Royce engine, which Great Britain released to the United States a fortnight ago for production here.

Ford indicated that his company's defense effort to turn out planes would be made even, if necessary, at the sacrifice of style changes in the 1942 Ford car. Tooling is nearly complete now for the 1941 car, he said, but it is too early to tell whether the firm would be able to get sufficient machine tools for new models in 1941.

Asked whether General Motors, of which Knudson is president, would release the Allison motor for manufacture by Ford, the founder's son referred questioners to Knudson, who declined to make a statement until later.

Renault, after speaking with the President, said he had arrived Thursday via clipper plane, chiefly to look into technical aspects of producing tanks by the mass method. He said he learned much of value from the President and expected to confer with American specialists before leaving for home next week.

Co-Workers Give Maj. Tansey Farewell Party

Maj. Patrick Henry Tansey, assistant engineer commissioner, who completes four years of service with the District on July 1, will be honored by his fellow workers June 20 at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Chief of the District's $18,150,000 public works program, Maj. Tansey will leave the District at the completion of his term to enter the Army War College September 1. From July 1 to September 1 he will work with the chief of construction division of the Engineer Corps.

Eight District officials are making arrangements for the farewell party. These are Stephen T. Porter, fire chief; Herbert A. Friede, superintendent of fire alarms; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent; Maj. James Lusby, disbursing officer; E. P. Brooke, superintendent of District buildings; Guy Pearson, chief clerk of the engineer department, and A. W. Crossley, District PWA engineer.

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup

Princeton, N. J., June 11.—With the Republican nominating convention less than two weeks away, another sharp rise has come in the popularity of Wendell L. Willkie and a corresponding drop in the popularity of Thomas E. Dewey in polls taken among the rank and file of Republican voters. The latest survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows that Willkie has, in a little over two months, jumped from nowhere to second place in popularity as a Presidential candidate—a phenomenal rise.

DR. GALLUP

The leading choices of the Republican rank and file—though they may not prove to be the choices of the Republican delegates in Philadelphia—are today Thomas E. Dewey, Wendell Willkie, Senator Robert A. Taft and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, in that order. Dewey's lead is not as great today as it was in a survey a month ago, but he continues to run far ahead of his rivals, with approximately three times as many mentions as Willkie. There is still, however, a substantial group of Republicans—30 per cent—who express no choice on candidates at the present time.

Shift Is Depicted

The shifts and changes in sentiment on G. O. P. candidates is vividly shown in the following comparisons. Each survey was taken on the identical question:

"Whom would you like to see elected President?"

TODAY

Dewey	52%
Willkie	17
Taft	13
Vandenberg	12
Hoover	2
Landon	1
Gannett	1
Others	2

TWO WEEKS AGO (May 31)

Dewey	56%
Taft	16
Vandenberg	12
Willkie	10
Hoover	2
James	1
Others	2

MONTH AGO (May 8)

Dewey	67%
Vandenberg	14
Taft	12
Willkie	3
Hoover	2
Others	2

Republicans were identified in the survey as those persons who want to see the Republican Party win the Presidential election this year.

While the popularity of Vandenberg and Taft has remained relatively percentagewise, the figures show a drop for Dewey from 67 per cent, to 56 per cent, to 52 per cent. During the same period Willkie rose sharply in popularity, going from 3 per cent to 17 per cent. In polls previous to May 8, Willkie's name did not even appear among the leaders, the total vote cast for him being less than 1 per cent.

The Dewey forces can take comfort, however, from the fact that the ratio by which their candidate leads is still substantial, and that the Willkie forces have a long way to go to catch up with them.

The changes in sentiment in the last month form a dramatic challenge to the validity of an old political theory. Politicians have argued for many decades that voters tend to climb onto the "bandwagon" of a candidate shown to be in the lead. They desire, according to this argument, to move with the crowd, to be on the popular side. Yet today's results show that the popularity of the leading candidate, Dewey, not only has not remained stable, but actually dropped sharply in the last month. If the bandwagon theory were valid, he should have gained support, as voters flocked to the bandwagon of the popular leader.

How Voters Choose

In a second question in today's survey Republican voters were asked to give their preference if it came to a choice among the top four leaders—Dewey, Willkie, Taft and Vandenberg—for the Presidential nomination.

The line-up among those with opinions follows:

"If it came to a choice among Dewey, Willkie, Taft and Vandenberg for the Republican Presidential nomination, which man would you prefer?"

Dewey	50%
Willkie	18
Taft	16
Vandenberg	16

Approximately one-fifth (24 per cent) expressed no opinion.

Roosevelt Vetoes Limit On Veto Power

Balks at Bill to Repeal Measures Unsigned Before Adjournment

In defense of his power to "pocket veto" bills of Congress at the end of a session, President Roosevelt yesterday wrote his veto on a measure that he said would have rendered that power "nugatory."

The bill he sent back to Congress without his approval would have repealed all bills that have been "pocket vetoed" after any adjournment of the Congress other than the final session.

Inroads on Constitution

Such a law, the President said in his veto message, would have made a "serious inroad" on the Constitution, which provides that bills die automatically if the Congress, by adjourning, prevents the President from returning a bill with his objections within ten days.

Recalling that over 800 bills have died by the "pocket veto" method in the nation's history, the President said "almost half" had occurred following a sine die adjournment of a session as distinguished from a sine die adjournment of Congress.

Providing by law for the repeal of such bills, the President said, would "effect by indirection an amendment to the Constitution."

"The result would be to place a limitation on the 'pocket veto' which, in the light of long continuous usage and the decisions of the Supreme Court, was not contemplated by the Founding Fathers," the President said.

Should Have Been Limited

He suggested that if the measure he vetoed yesterday had been limited to repealing "the comparatively small number of bills that have been 'pocket vetoed' from time to time while the originating House was in a short recess," an entirely different question would be presented.

The President also vetoed a dozen other measures yesterday, mostly private and pension measures.

Future 'Ominous for Soldier,' Drum Tells West Point Graduates

448 in Class Hear General Stress Need For Trained Leaders

By Elizabeth Henney
A Staff Correspondent

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—Four hundred and forty-eight members of the graduating class at the United States Military Academy heard Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum in his graduating address warn that "you enter upon your future career during days momentous for men and women of all walks of life. They are especially ominous for the soldier man."

Gen. Drum added:

"I need not dwell long on this assertion, the world situation itself explains it. Millions of men, armed with weapons more destructive than heretofore, have invaded and destroyed the homes of peace-loving people with a ferocity no less barbarous than in the days of the ancient wild tribes."

On a day beginning with leaden skies and a gray-mist pall, the second largest graduation class ever to be turned out by the Military Academy was graduated in ceremonies which began at 10:30 a. m.

Traffic Jams Roads

Hours before the event cars began to file into the post and by 10 traffic had jammed all roads. More than 10,000 persons found seats in the vast brick cadet armory.

Centering the rear wall was the bunting-draped speaker's platform, whereon sat Gen. Drum, commander of the First Army and senior line officer of the service. Also on the platform were the distinguished guests. Following the invocation by Chaplain H. Fairfield Butt 3d and an introduction by Brig. Gen Jay L. Benedict, Gen. Drum addressed the graduates.

Particularly stressing the need for trained leaders, he pointed out with amusing parables as illustrations, that supplies and equipment were of no use if they lacked trained leaders to make use of them. He said:

"These are times when the best conceptions are valueless, even dangerous, unless the means of putting them into execution are not only immediately available, but organized efficiently, trained and coordinated for immediate employment.

"The soldier under your command and the manner in which you display leadership of him are the most important responsibilities that will fall to you. No matter how accurate and efficient the weapon . . . they are worthless unless the man using them knows how to do so and has the courage, character and determination to see a fight through . . . Teaching the soldier how to use his weapons efficiently, how to conduct himself in the field, how to look out for his human necessities, and leading him in battle, these are your greatest responsibilities."

"West Pointers have continuously proven their value to the Nation both in peace and in war. Your motto: 'Duty, Honor, Country' . . . sums up all the principles instilled in you here. They have remained unchanged during nearly a century and a half and are still fundamentally what the Father of Our Country visualized."

Sing Alma Mater

At the end of the address and before the benediction by the Rev. George G. Murdock, the entire corps of cadets sang the alma mater. Particularly poignant was that moment to one graduate, Cadet Paul S. Reinecke, jr., whose father, Col. Reinecke, of the class of 1911, wrote the song. Both Col. and Mrs. Reinecke, who for years had looked forward to attending their son's graduation, are seriously ill at Walter Reed Hospital.

While Col. Charles H. Danielson, adjutant of West Point, handed out the degree of bachelor of science, the 448 filed up the ramp, amid cheers of their classmates, relatives and friends.

Five young men of the class will not receive commissions in the Army, three of them because of physical disability, and two more who are citizens of the Philippine Commonwealth. A sixth cadet, Kenneth Oswald Due, was turned back at the last moment and will graduate with the class of 1941.

Cadets who will not receive commissions include Cadet Cephas B. Sitterson, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Cephas B. Sitterton, of Kenansville, N. C. Sitterson is at present sick in Walter Reed Hospital and was not present to receive his degree.

Cadet Roy H. Kinsell, son of William L. Kinsell, of Anchorage, Alaska, and Evan H. Humphrey, jr., son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Humphrey, of San Antonio, Tex., were present and received their degrees.

The Filipino cadets are Felicisimo S. Castillo, of Malolos, Bulacan, and Vincente E. Gepte, of Zamboanga. These graduates will receive commissions later in the Philippine Commonwealth army.

As the long line finished filing past the stand and the last man, Cadet W. J. Bennett received his degree, the entire corps rose with a roaring cheer. The class "goat," he had traditionally "kept the bottom from falling out of the class."

Stella Gets Ovation

Tremendous ovation by his classmates was given to Harry A. Stella, when he received his sheepskin. Captain of last year's football team and one of the most popular men in the class, he was recently given a watch by Kate Smith as a member of her popular vote all-American football selection team.

Special cheers were received by J. Lotozo, A. T. Frontczak and A. C. Gillem. The first two are football stars and the latter is captain of the basketball team. The cadet band rose with a cheer for Cadet Graduate F. A. Schmaltz, whose father, a sergeant of the band, recently retired.

Woo the Muse for Father

Contestants Turn to Poetry In Paying Tribute to Dads

Mere Prose Isn't Adequate for Two To Express Feelings; Deadline Today To Mail in Your Own Nomination

Mere prose isn't adequate to express the feeling which some entrants in The Post's Father's Day contest have for their dads, so they have wooed the muse and burst forth in poetic tributes.

Here are a couple of samples, the first submitted by Betty Quirk, whose nominee is T. J. Quirk, 3718 Livingston street northwest:

Could there be a truer pal than
That understanding Dad if mine?
A kinder voice or brighter laugh
From no other can I find.

Could there be a joy more sweet than
Knowing that he'll always understand?
Someone to fight and even die
To keep me safe from danger's hand?

Could there be another child who Knows the love and faith I've had?
Could I ever write a poem as Perfect as My Dad?

R. B. Moore, jr., of Vienna, Va., submitted this verse and dedicated it to his father:

I think my Dad deserves top honors because
There's not a fault or a "tiny" clause(?).
He's just the best Dad of them all,
For when I ask him he'll play ball,
Or take a hike, or go a'fishing;
Just anything that I'd be wishing.
He's never too rushed to kiss me goodbye,
And when I get hurt, he says "Sh, don't cry,
Dad will fix it just like new!"
And it's just the thing he'll always do.
And when Mama's sick, he'll say, "You rest,
The kiddies and I will do our best
To get the meals and make you well."
Oh, there's scores of things I could tell,
But space is limited, so I'll stop.
But with these closing words:
He's still my best Pop.

Today is the last day for mailing nominations to the Father's Day Editor of The Washington Post, whose quest of the Capital's ideal dad has been made both easy and difficult by readers. Easy because of the great response since the competition opened June 2; difficult because the letters are so enthusiastic and sincere that it will be downright embarrassing, narrowing down the field until the No. 1 dad is selected.

Look for the winner in Friday's Post.

John Meyers Rites To Be Held Today At Mitchells, Va.

Funeral services for John Meyers, manager of the Washington office of an automatic temperature control firm, will be at 2 p. m. today in the Mitchells (Va.) Presbyterian Church. He died suddenly Sunday in his Yorktown Village, Md., home at the age of 39.

A native of Morton, Pa., Mr. Meyers graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with the degree of bachelor of science in mechanical engineering in 1923. Starting as a salesman in the Philadelphia office of the Johnson Service Co., he was made manager of the Baltimore branch in 1926. Later he managed the Washington office.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen Thorburn Sommerville, of Staunton, Va.; his father, George J. Meyers, and a brother, George J. Meyers, jr., both of Philadelphia. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Hillendale Friar's Arm Injured In Freak Accident

A 21-year-old Xavierian friar, Brother Marinus, of Hillendale, Md., suffered severe arm injuries yesterday in Silver Spring, Md., when an open tail gate of a parked truck hooked his left arm as his car passed by.

The truck halted in the 8600 block of Georgia avenue, at right angles in the center of the road, preparatory to completing a left turn into a driveway. The friar's arm was protruding from the car window.

Struggling to stop his car after the accident, Brother Marinus drove 500 feet beyond the truck to the Colesville road. He was given first aid by Silver Spring volunteer firemen and taken to Washington Sanitarium. Physicians said he suffered lacerations and a multiple arm fracture.

Committee Urges U. S. Buy Abattoir Site

Senators Approve Bill to Pay $500,000 Or Less for Property

Purchase of the Anacostia slaughter house property which four years ago stirred up a civic and Governmental row was proposed yesterday by the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Reporting favorably a bill introduced by Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, the committee recommended that the Federal Government buy the property for $500,000 or less and use it as a site for a public building.

The measure would allow the transfer of the land and building or any portion of them to the District government, if an appropriate municipal use is found for them, and that the Federal Government be reimbursed accordingly.

The legislation was reported despite an adverse report by the Budget Bureau.

The property is owned by Adolf Gobel, Inc., and the Union Stock Yard Co., which in 1936 attempted to construct a slaughter house on the site. The project was opposed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes because of its proximity to a PWA housing development. The tract contains 751,348 square feet, is at the intersection of Benning road and Minnesota avenue northeast, and is assessed at $134,127.

Since the controversy over the abattoir the area has been rezoned so that a new permit for construction of a slaughter house could not be obtained. The first permit, the issuance of which was ordered by the United States District Court, expired after construction was suspended because of previous negotiations which were started to have the Government purchase the property for park purposes.

Annenberg Sentence Set for June 20

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today set June 20 for sentencing of M. L. Annenberg, millionaire racing news distributor, for a $1,217,296 income tax evasion.

The date was set at the conclusion of a five-day hearing of prosecution and defense statements of facts in the case, the largest personal criminal income tax case in history. Annenberg has agreed to settle his civil claims for $8,000,000.

Swedish Industrialist Foresees Stable Conditions in His Nation

Count Hugo von Rosen, Wife and 2 Children Sample American Life; He's in U. S. for Business Reasons

Count Hugo von Rosen, Swedish industrialist—amid his concern about the fate of European countries—yesterday took time to sample the American way of life in several of its most typical manifestations.

He listened in at Congressional oratory. He went shopping with his wife for her new evening dresses. He took his two children sightseeing at the Smithsonian Institution.

Arriving in this country only a few weeks ago, they came through Germany before the full fury of the war broke and spent about a week in Italy before sailing on an Italian liner.

Count von Rosen was reluctant to talk about his business matters in this country except to say that his firm "has interests on both sides of the ocean." To a question on his purpose in coming, he added: "We have to have somebody outside, if Sweden should be cut off."

But he added hastily: "It looks as if conditions will be fairly stable in Sweden. And I hope to be going back soon."

But the unpredictability of events hung over his conversation. He said that at the time he sailed from Italy in early May, "the Italian people did not seem to think their country would go to war."

If the international situation eluded prophecy, would he give his impressions of Congress? he was asked.

"We listened in the House of Representatives. They were talking about taxation, and I found it rather difficult to follow. But it was more or less like all other parliaments," Count von Rosen said with a trace of British accent—doubtless from his school days in England.

As for the shopping, his wife replenished a wardrobe affected by the international situation. "I don't think she has worn an evening dress since Christmas," he said. "There've been few parties since the war developed in September."

From Philadlphia, where they are making their headquarters, Count von Rosen, his wife, their 13-year-old daughter and 11-year-old son came to Washington for a three-day stay at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Count von Rosen is a distant relative of Count Eric von Rosen whose sister-in-law was the first wife of Field Marshal Goering.

FBI Gets 3,000 Fifth Column Complaints Daily

Attorney General Jackson yesterday placed the growing problem of the fifth column completely in the hands of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as its director, J. Edgar Hoover, revealed complaints and tips on acts against the national defense have reached the astounding maximum of nearly 3,000 a day.

In an order to Federal enforcement branches, Jackson cited the "existing international siuation," and said that, to prevent confusion and duplication of effort, and to institute a definite, rounded procedure, the FBI would henceforth clear all complaints on subversive acts.

This was clarification of a parallel order issued by President Roosevelt several months ago, marshaling hundreds of Federal officers in various branches under the FBI in espionage-sabotage cases, but not granting such specific authority.

Jackson warned individuals and groups against allowing their zeal or patriotism to prompt them to independently probe subversive or spying activities. He asked, instead, that all public information be sent to the FBI promptly. He also declared it important that "civil liberties of loyal, innocent individuals be not invaded."

RFC Lends $27,533,800 To Giannini Bank of America

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday loaned $27,533,800 to the Bank of America, taking the lion's share of a $30,000,000 issue of preferred stock of the Giannini institution, and at the same time making it possible for the California bank to replenish its capital under an agreement with the Comptroller of the Currency.

Thus a new chapter was written in a 3-year old argument between the Bank of America the Treasury and Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, who made the announcement. L. M. Giannini once accused Treasury Secretary Morgenthau of persecuting him.

Under yesterday's arrangement, Bank of America issues $30,000,000 preferred stock, or 600,000 shares, selling 50,454 shares for $2,523,200 to stockholders and others. RFC's loan, secured by the remainder of the preferred stock, bears interest annually, and is to be amortized at not less than 10 per cent for ten years.

Subscribers are paying $50 a share, Jones said. The issue has a par value of $20 per share and bears dividends at the rate of $3 per share per annum, payable semi-annually.

A condition of the loan, Jones said, is that Bank of America will give the stockholders of the bank more time to buy their pro rata shares of the preferred stock at its cost to Bank of America, plus accrued dividends to the date of any such purchase.

Treasury to Close Refunding Tonight

Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday "wonderful response" of investors to the Treasury's refunding offer would permit closing of the offer tonight.

Morgenthau offered to holders of $338,000,000 of 3⅜ per cent bonds coming due June 15 new securities in the form of 1 per cent, 3¼ years Treasury notes in exchange for their old securities.

Owners of the maturing bonds who fail to accept the exchange offer by tonight will be paid in cash.

Turkey Awaits Hint From Russia Before Casting Die to Join Allies

200,000 More Called Up; Bomb Shelters Rushed

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Turkey, June 11.—Turky summoned probably 200,000 men and officers to military barracks to join 350,000 already under arms tonight as she waited a hint from Russia before casting the die on war.

Informed sources said if Russia keeps out of the conflict, Turkey will enter the war on the side of the Allies to whom she has pledged assistance in a Mediterranean war.

But if Josef Stalin is ready to help Italy and Germany there is no alternative but for this country to keep quiet, it was added frankly.

President Inonu presided at an urgent cabinet session as hope was expressed in official quarters that Turkey would have some indication of the Soviet's attitude before midnight. Turkey's only political party met.

The National Assembly postponed today's session until tomorrow to pass on any cabinet decrees.

The large numbers of reservists were summoned by individual notice rather than by published mobilization orders.

Crews labored day and night on bomb shelters. There was no blackout, however.

Authoritative declarations that the attitude of the Soviet must be known before Turkey decides to act under her mutual assistance pact with Britain and France—an agreement which does not oblige her to take on the Soviet itself—came along with expressions of undiminished moral support for the Allies and of Turkish determination to fight for her own frontiers.

In recent weeks the Turks expressed belief that Russia was moving away from the Rome-Berlin axis and was opposed to a quick German victory, but the new exchange of ambassadors between Rome and Moscow cast doubt here on Stalin's intentions.

WHERE THEIR FATHERS DIED—Frenchmen took their stand today behind the historic Marne where their fathers fought and died but stopped the German advance on Paris in 1914. On the west flank, other French forces fought to throw back Nazis attempting to cross the Seine (1) between Rouen and Vernon. On the east flank, a violent attack by German tanks (2) sought to cut off Reims. In the central sector (3) Germans found only rear guards before them. known. After he had escorted Juliana and their two children to England, he said he was going to the front in Zeeland, the last Netherlands province to hold out against the German invaders.

Dr. Loudon said he assumed that Prince Bernhard was still with the Dutch soldiers who, with the British, retreated from Zeeland. One report yesterday was that the prince was fighting in France.

Crown Princess Juliana, according to a dispatch from Halifax, is going to Quebec and later will accept the invitation of Lord Athlone, new Governor General of Canada, to stay at Government House in Ottawa. King George VII and Queen Elizabeth stayed in this tree-shaded mansion for two days during their royal tour last summer, and it was there that they held their tradition-shattering reception for members of the press.

There have been persistent reports that the two royal children of England—14-year-old Elizabeth and 10-year-old Rose—would be sent to Ottawa. Members of the British colony here, however, think there is more likelihood of their being sent to their mother's native Scotland, at least for the time being.

London is now the seat of two refugee governments, that of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Haakon of Norway. Another government, that of France, is being pushed toward the sea.

Notwithstanding the dismal picture, the Netherlands minister expresses confidence in the future.

"It is my absolute conviction," Dr. Loudon said, "that no matter what may be happening at present, victory in the end will come to the Allies, and with that conviction goes my second conviction that the Netherlands will be free again . . ."

Arrive on Cruiser

By Frederick T. Birchall.

Halifax, Novia Scotia, June 11.—Out of the ocean haze beyond Halifax harbor just after noon today came a Dutch cruiser amid escorting destroyers bringing to a safe haven Crown Princess Juliana of Holland and her two infant children.

With the crown princess came a small suite of noble attendants, the Baroness Veyrum, the Baroness Roell and Rear Admiral Baron and the Baroness de Vos Van Steensky. To welcome them at Halifax were assembled the lieutenant governor of Novia Scotia, F. F. Mather, Commander Edson Sherwood, representing the governor general, W. H. Measures of the Canadian department of external affairs, and the Netherlands Minister, F. E. H. Groenman.

British Raid Italian Bases In Africa, Destroy Planes

a transport were hit by bombs in Trondheim harbor. Two British planes failed to return.

Meanwhile, the British navy pounced on the Italian merchant marine from Gibraltar to South Africa, and Scotland Yard undertook a roundup of every one of the 25,000 Italians in Britain.

Extending action in which 700 Italians were seized last night amid rioting, police tonight ordered every Italian in Britain to report immediately to police stations.

With the British fleet clamping down on Italy's sea life lines for supplies and raw materials, more than 50,000 tons of Italian merchant shipping was reported in British hands or scuttled.

A prize claimed by the British was the capture in the Red Sea of the 10,000-ton Italian vessel Umbria, loaded with 5,000 tons of bombs intended for the Italian East African airforce and thousands of tons of cement.

Uncounted other Italian ships sought shelter in neutral ports. British guns block the route home through Gibraltar or Suez.

It was reported here that the Suez Canal has been effectively closed to Italian shipping by the Allied naval forces.

Clement R. Atlee, lord privy seal, told Commons the British have seized 14 Italian merchantmen and 10 others lie helpless in British ports.

Ships Seized, Scuttled

Scattered reports listed these ships as seized or scuttled:

At or near Gibraltar—Libano, 200 tons; Pagao, 3,600 tons; Oltera, 2,900 tons, seized, and other unidentified vessels beached after attempts to scuttle them; in Spanish waters—Chelina, 10,000 tons; Lavoro, 4,600 tons, and Numbolia, 200 tons, scuttled; off South Africa—Gerusalemme, 8,052 tons, and Timavo, 7,549 tons, beached; Sistiana, 5,827 tons, seized; off Australia—Remo, 9,780 tons, seized; St. Lawrence River, Capo Noli, 3,921 tons, seized; at Haifa, Palestine, Felce, 5,600 tons, seized.

The British admiralty announced the loss of 78,715 tons of merchant vessels in the week ended Sunday, June 2. Of this total 24,000 tons went down in the evacuation of troops from Dunkerque.

The British warned of minefields in Italy's Gulf of Venice, the Gulf of Guarnaro, the Gulf of Taranto, and along the coast of Italian-held Albania, but it was uncertain whether these had been laid by the British or the Italians.

Other minefields were reported along the coast of Libya, around the Dodecanese Islands and around the "foot" of "Italy's boot."

Attlee, lord privy seal, told Commons:

"Italy, like Germany, will feel the blockade."

Finds No Cause for Dismay

Hailing President Roosevelt's assurance of material aid from the United States as insuring victory for the Allies, Attlee told the House Italy's entrance in the war "does not cause us dismay."

The British press said supplies from the vast reservoir of the United States would be a "vital factor" for Allied victory.

But Andre Maurios, French author and liaison officer with the British army, commented:

"Help must come quickly to be useful.

"If we can hold out until September we will have won," Maurios said. "It is not a question of speeches—but of tanks and guns."

British military source foresaw a slowing down on the German drive through north France within a few days.

"The Germans are throwing everything they've got into this battle," one source said, "because they've got to win it to win the war."

The blitzkrieg machine was said to be making "hardly any progress" in the Rethel area—the eastern wing of the front.

Cost of the big push in tanks and men was called "colossal."

There was, too, the promise of more Tommies for the French fighting front.

Pointing out that the British withdrawal from Dunkerque had been considered "impossible," a spokesman observed:

"It seems impossible that 30 divisions can be sent to France—but it must be done."

Great Flight Clears Paris

Press said.

[Embassy officials are working 24 hours a day trying to take care of Americans in difficulty.]

Those who left last night and this morning departed while the entire valley of the Seine within many miles of here was covered with a black cloud of smoke. This smoke seemed to come from burning gasoline or oil stores west and north of the city. It brought with it a black dust that was in everyone's mouth and nose.

The smoke began to pass away about 11 o'clock, and before noon it had been cleared away by a fairly strong wind and the sun shone. It was hot for the rest of the day, until rain—the first in a month, began falling this evening.

But even in the smoky morning hours, thousands were fleeing southward across the bridges of the Seine.

Wheels Sick Daughter

I talked with one man of about 40 who was wheeling his sick daughter away. He did not know where he was going, but he wanted to get away. His wife had died six weeks ago and his two sons were with the army. One man staying behind was a blind veteran of the World War. In his coat lapel were ribbons of the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor.

Some men and women had so much baggage with them they had to push their bicycles.

They came in long straggling parades, farmers from the country, taking away their families and possessions on those old-fashioned French hayricks, drawn by three horses in single file. These ricks went along in groups of 20 and 30 The parades entered the city from every road on the right bank of the river and crossed the bridges toward the south.

All day there was a steady stream across the bridge running from the Place de la Concorde to the Chamber of Deputies.

Where they are going and what they expect to find when they get there are unanswered questions. There cannot possibly be enough food in the southwest to feed them all for more than a few months. The cars going out, although their gasoline tanks are full and there are full containers in the back seat, cannot be driven all the way. Some place tonight there must be the greatest traffic jam in histeory.

Nazis Put French Losses at 500,000

centrations and communications are being constantly harassed by the German air force, and whose military predicament, in the words of the semiofficial statement, parallels that of the Poles as the Germans advanced on Warsaw.

The general headquarters claims that two French armies, totaling 400,000 to 500,000 men, have already been destroyed—killed or captured.

The German right wing which is said to control the lower Seine and to be somewhere between Rouen and Le Havre, and the German center claimed to be somewhere between Soissons and Paris, are declared by the general headquarters to be "restlessly" pursuing the defeated French armies.

[The New York Herald Tribune reported it had been "officially confirmed" that Rouen had been taken, although it was not mentioned by the high command.]

In the Champagne sector between Rheims and the Argonne, ravaged by the World War, the general headquarters says its forces are "successfully" battling against bitter French resistance. This resistance, the Germans claim, however, is decreasing in strength, because of heavy French losses in manpower and war materials, not only in Flanders but also during the last six days.

It will now, they add, be difficult for France to replace them, because the modern northern French industrial section is already in German hands, while communications with the British Isles as well as the French colonial possessions are seriously endangered by the advance of the German forces along the Channel coast, and the entrance of Italy into the war.

In some places in the coastal and central sectors the general headquarters declares strong enemy forces have been encircled "and are now approaching their destruction." Enemy resistance, however, is said to have been able to make the stand it has because of the experience the French command gained from Flanders.

The German air force, meanwhile, it is claimed, attacked the harbor and docks in Le Havre again, destroyed canal locks and sank a destroyer and damaged other ships, including a destroyer and two transports of 10,000 tons.

Retreating columns of French soldiers were strafed and bombed, as well as wagon trains, artillery batteries and a number of bridges over the Marne, he lower Oise, furthermore, was bombed, with some places destroyed, so that the enemy retreat is being seriously hampered.

With the increasing length of the German front, however, there is always the problem of communications. For the longer the line the more difficult becomes the supplying of troops with necessary food, munitions and other war materials.

It is the German claim, however, that the longer the front, the better they like it. For the longer the front, they declare, the better their motorized units can function with less possibility of the enemy concentrating troops in any one sector and forcing his tactics of trench warfare and resulting attrition upon the Germans.

In some respects German military circles here declare the present situation in France resembles that of the early days of September, 1914—with three factors which did not exist then and which are hardly in favor of the French. These are:

1. The German right wing is attacking with strong force—allegedly the strongest of those now operating in France—west of Paris, toward the mouth of the Seine, while in 1914 it advanced eastward past Paris, over to the Marne in a southerly direction.

2—This time, after having lost three armies in Flanders, the French are forced to face the German massed might alone, for the British Expeditionary Force sent to their assistance in Flanders suffered serious losses before withdrawing to the British isles.

3—Unlike 1914, German forces are not split with a second front in the east, but are striking with their full might in the west, while the Italian entrance into the war on their side divides the enemy forces still further.

Thus the Germans are confidently entering the second week of the mammoth western drive with, according to their claims, the enemy in retreat from the Channel eastward to Rheims, while the Franco-British command is worrying where the next blow is going to strike.

In the Polar sector, about Narvik, meanwhile, the Germans now claim that on June 9 their air force struck an enemy cruiser and four transport ships with bombs. The majority of these ships, it is claimed, were set afire and burned out.

The enemy is reported to have lost 29 planes yesterday—19 in dog fights, 6 through antiaircraft artillery and the rest on the ground. Three enemy captive balloons are claimed to have been shot down while eight German planes are reported "missing."

Enemy planes, meanwhile, are reported to again have attacked north and West Germany, but without inflicting "considerable damage."

the closing of the Suez Canal lying 1,400 miles farther north, insofar as transportation from the Mediterreanean to the middle and Far East is concerned.

Would Cut Lifeline

It would halt direct British and French communication through the Suez to the Anglo-French Far Eastern colonies. Vital military supplies and many thousands of troops have been sent from these Far Eastern points—Australia, New Zealand and Indo-China—to the Allies in Europe.

An official announcement tonight defined the war zone for Italy as follows:

The entire region of Piedmont adjoining France from the Mediterranean near Nice to the Lepontine Alpine passes on the Swiss border.

All the western coast of Italy, including the southern regions of the Calabria Islands, Sicily, Sardinia, the small islands scattered in the Tyrrhenian Sea and the Province of Taranto, at the heel of the Italian boot on the Adriatic.

The actual zones of operations will be announced soon, it was said. It was stated authoritatively that since dawn, only five or six hours after Mussolini's declaration of war went into effect, Italian troops had been in battle at unspecified points.

Mussolini, under orders from King Victor Emmanuel, took over supreme command of the land, sea and air forces.

The diminutive monarch left home for the field and after a meeting of the council of ministers Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Mussolini and veteran of the war in Ethiopia, left to take command of an aviation squadron.

Military headquarters were moved from Rome as part of an effort to keep the capital an open city free from aerial bombardment.

King Takes Field

The council of ministers under the presidency of Il Duce adopted legislation for control or confiscation of commercial and industrial firms owned or operated by subjects of enemy states.

The cabinet provided for death sentences for certain crimes, such as murder, robbery by violence, kidnaping for ransom and rape. It created a special department to deal with food supplies and increased surtaxes from 25 to 100 per cent.

sary, consequently, to understand the new epoch and remove the rubbish of dead ideas and sterile ideas.

"We are crossing, and all humanity is passing, an historical moment of grave repercussions resulting from rapid changes in values."

Vargas prefaced these remarks, however, with a declaration that "we are united by ties of strict solidarity with all American countries around the ideals, aspirations and common interest in our defense."

Brazil, South America's largest country, its southern provinces filled with Germans and Italians, is regarded by most observers as the most vulnerable country in this hemisphere to attack from without or disorder within.

South America Amazed

Copyright by New York Times

Montevideo, June 11.—The first reaction in South America to the speech today of President Getulio Vargas of Brazil is one of amazement.

Latin American diplomats and editors describe the speech as the first outspokenly Fascist speech by any South American president. Surprise is widely expressed that President Vargas should have sounded the Fascist note the day after President Roosevelt's address condemning Premier Mussolini.

It had been widely believed in South America that Brazil would follow the United States' policy toward the European situation.

The evening newspaper Critica, of Buenos Aires, ran streamer headlines across the front page tonight, "Vargas, with Fascist language, justifies the aggression of the barbarians."

Aides Are Fascists

Those who were inclined to believe that President Vargas and Brazil were closely allied with United States' policy, attempted tonight to explain the Vargas speech by saying that his hands were tied by the strongly Fascist tendencies in his cabinet. It is pointed out that the ministers of war and marine are both strongly and openly Fascist. It is thought here that they probably had something to do with framing the President's speech, which was intended for the armed forces.

Another strong Fascist sympathizer in the cabinet is Francisco de Compos, minister of justice and of interior, who framed the Vargas Fascist constitution.

When Vargas set up the present regime as the result of a coup d'etat, the Brazillian censors passed announcements that it was the first really Fascist government in South America. A couple of days later Vargas denied this, and described his government as a brand of democracy designed especially for Brazil.

But he put into effect several Fascist features, including the merging of the state into one political party, and also in calling his regime "the new state."

Vargas sent his son to Italy to study, and the son recently flew back to Brazil on a plane piloted by a son of Premier Mussolini who at that time, was described as a close friend of young Vargas.

Mexican Defines Policy

Mexico City, June 11 (U.P.).—Interior Minister Manuel Garcia Tellez today summoned the publishers and managers of all capital newspapers to an unusual meeting at the ministry, at which he unequivocally expounded Mexico's foreign policy as pro-Allied and one of cooperation with the United States.

He particularly mentioned that Mexico supported the cause of France. Britain and Mexico at present do not have diplomatic relations.

He appealed to the publishers to support the government's policy.

Most Mexican newspapers already are pro-Allied, but El Popular recently has been openly pro-German and Ultimas Noticias generally is more pro-German than pro-Allied.

Nazis Bound for America

Honolulu, June 11 (AP).—Waterfront reporters said 34 Germans, en route to Mexico, Central and South America, were on the Japanese liner Asama Maru which arrived today. Government sources revealed last week that in the last six months between 150 and 200 German chemists and engineers have passed through Honolulu en route to Mexico and South America.

Stone Italian Stores

San Jose, Costa Rica, June 11 (AP). A crowd of 10,000 stoned the windows of Italian stores last night and cheered tumultuously for France, England and the United States.

The crowd marched to the presidential palace and the American Legation.

Summoned to the palace balcony by cheers, President Rafael Calderon Guardia declared:

"Our sympathies must be with the defenders of democracy."

One Killed in Suburb; Quiet Still the Rule On Italo-French Line

By the Associated Press

Geneva (Wednesday), June 12.—At least one person was killed and six injured in an exclusive residential suburb of Geneva, seat of the League of Nations, early today when a foreign war plane, apparently Italian, dropped bombs near a French fort.

Geneva was awakened at 2 a. m. by air raid warnings, and citizens shivering in their night clothes rushed to bomb shelters.

An all clear signal was sounded after 35 minutes.

Near French Fort

Carouge, the suburb which was bombed, is at the southern tip of Geneva and it lies down the mountain from the French fort on Saleva Rock.

This, the first sign of hostilities at this end of the Italo-French frontier, followed closely on reports from both sides of the border that Crown Prince Umberto is planning to throw his shock troops against the French lines in the southern half of the Maritime Alps, at the southern end of the frontier.

The French moved more men and munitions into the Dormance Valley, logical highway to invasion of the Rhone valley.

Activity behind and above the lines was intense.

Many Italian and French observation planes were in the air.

The main strength of the Italian and French forces, it was reported, is spread from the sea to Larche Pass where a mountain highway leads from the frontier to Barcelonette.

Italy's Move Brings Gloom to Vatican City

Pope Knew Of Intentions Day Before

Pontiff Had Hoped Until Final Moment Duce Wouldn't Enter

By Camille M. Cianfarra
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, June 11.—Italy's declaration of war was expected by the Pope, who had learned it was coming 24 hours before it was made, Vatican circles said this evening.

An atmosphere of gloom and sorrow could be felt throughout the Vatican. The Pope, it was stated, had hoped until the last moment that Premier Mussolini would withhold his decision, and when the news came he prayed before the altar in his private apartment for a long time.

It is not expected that the Pope will make a pronouncement on Italy's move. The attitude that the Vatican seems to have adopted is one of complete reserve. The Osservatore Romano prints only a summary of the speech that Mussolini made yesterday.

Creates New Situations

It is stressed in semiofficial circles that "the attitude and the responsibility of the Vatican are entirely separate from those of the Italian clergy and Catholics.

"While the Holy See is responsible toward the Catholics of all Nations," it was stated, "the Italian clergy and Catholics have specific duties to their country and will, as always, fulfill them generously."

Italy's entrance into the war has created a new situation between the Vatican and Rome. People are waiting to see, for instance, whether the Osservatore Romano will continue printing the official war communiques of all belligerents, as it has done up to now.

Prepare for Blackouts

So long as Italy was outside the conflict the Italian authorities had no objection to make on this point, because the Italian papers themselves were printing the British and French bulletins. Now, however, Italy is at war, and when official communiques will give details of her operations, it is not seen how the Vatican will be able to print both the Italian and the Allied versions without meeting with difficulties on the part of the Rome government.

Preparations have been completed for blackout of Vatican City in case of air raids and to house the members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See. It is known, however, that some Vatican circles do not view with favor the presence of diplomats within the Vatican territory, since their presence and possible activity, such as propaganda inside the Vatican, may lead to complications with Italy.

Italian Leader Is Indifferent To Duce's Act

Strenuous expressions of indifference to Italy's entrance into the European war were forthcoming yesterday from Alfonso Tana, proprietor of the Willard Hotel barber shop and president of the Lido Civic Club, organization of local Italian-American businessmen.

TANA

"What do we care" about Mussolini's action, Tana exclaimed yesterday as he rearranged combs, brushes and towels on a glass shelf. "We belong to America now."

His face darkening for an instant, he said, "Yes, I have relatives in Italy—a mother, brothers, sisters, a nephew, but . . .

"If my 19-year old son has to go over and fight against those people—well, okay! I'll tell him to go ahead and fight."

Smiling, he declared, "He's a 150 per cent American, that boy. He'd shoot you if you said anything against this country."

And the club members, the local doctors, lawyers, restaurant proprietors, of Italian descent? They are "150 per cent Americans, too," Tana said.

They don't discuss politics much, the president explained, unless it's to "recommend" that a recent arrival from Italy take out citizenship papers. Only full-fledged Americans are eligible for membership in the society. On July 30 the club is sponsoring a Potomac boat ride for the benefit of the American Red Cross.

"I don't understand why he did that . . . why he went in," Tana said reflectively, emphasizing in the next breath that "I've been here 36 years."

UNITED STATES LINER WASHINGTON—CAPT. HARRY MANNING (INSET)

ness had prevented learning the nationality of the submarine.

Hours later, it was reported from the ship by the Associated Press, the liner sighted another submarine, but, maneuvering to get between the undersea craft and the rising sun, Capt. Manning was able to get away unchallenged.

The State Department graphically described the encounter as follows:

"The S. S. Washington sailed from Lisbon at 5 p. m., June 10, with 1,020 passengers and 570 members of the crew bound for Galway, Ireland, on repatriation services. It carried no mail or cargo and travelled without convoy.

"Accordingly, notices were given by the United States Government to each of the belligerents.

"The course she sailed had been previously notified to the belligerents.

'At 5 a. m. this morning, Greenwich mean time, she was stopped by an unidentified submarine at 12 degrees 50 minutes west, 42 degrees 12 minutes north, and ordered to abandon ship, and later ordered to proceed on her course.

"The following messages were exchanged by flicker signal:

"Submarine—'Stop ship. Ease to ship. Torpedo ship.'

"Washington—'American ship.'

"Submarine—'Leave ship.'

"Washington—'American ship.'

"Submarine—'Ten minutes.'

"Washington—'American ship. American ship.'

"The submarine was silent and did not answer.

"Washington—'American ship. American ship.'

"Submarine—'Thought you were another ship. Please go on.'

"On the order to 'leave ship' the passengers and crew were ordered to lifeboats and some of the boats were actually being lowered when the order came to 'please go on.'

"The vessel proceeded on her previously announced course and soon sighted another submarine of unknown identity, but was not stopped.

"The vessel is in charge of Capt. Harry Manning, who communicated by radio telephone to the offices of the United States Lines in New York.

"The State Department requested the U. S. Lines to advise the captain, who will inform the passengers, that all belligerent governments are being informed that the vessel is on its present course and scheduled voyage and operating without convoy.

"The vessel has been instructed to continue on her previously announced course to Galway and to complete her evacuation schedule."

The Washington sailed from New York, May 30, two days ahead of schedule, at the State Department's request, to pick up American refugees. It was one of three refugee vessels given special permission to enter "combat areas" from which United States ships are barred by neutrality regulations.

Capt. Manning, 43, was the hero of the rescue of 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida on January 23, 1929, off the Virginia Capes. At that time he was chief officer of the liner America under Capt. George Fried and took a lifeboat through heavy seas to effect the rescue. He also has figured in other rescue dramas.

French Stand Behind Marne To Save Paris

Heavy Fights Rage On Seine and Aisne; Guns Heard in City

orders to transfer resistance south of the Marne."

This placed the great defensive effort—and the main offensive—about 40 miles from Paris. Ferte-Milon and Fere-en-Tardeois lie about 20 miles apart on a line running east and west.

In 1914, the invading Germans pushed south of the Marne to a maximum depth of about 20 miles, on a front about 70 miles long, before they were halted.

But this time there was no taxi-cab army to rush from the city to strike the Germans on the flank.

In that battle of a generation ago Gen. Gallieni rushed up his Paris garrison to help defend the Marne front.

This time such taxis as were available were heading the other way, taking refugees to the south.

The spectacular German effort to bridge the Seine with a moving line of men and machines went on under cover of a heavy smoke barrage.

Storm Slows Drive

Rain fell last night on the ravaged battle fields and helped to slow the German advance. Thunderstorms rolling over the front particularly impeded the Nazi dive bombers and tanks.

[In broad terms, the battle line apparently extended across France in this fashion::

[From the Bresle River near its mouth on the Channel, south and west to Rouen, and along the Seine from Rouen to Vernon;

[East and northeast to the Oise River and through the forest of Compiegne (where the World War armistice was signed);

[South somewhere near Chateau Thierry and along the Marne to an area southwest of Rheims;

[Thence north and east around Rheims to an area in the Vesle River Valley east of Rheims;

[Almost due north to the Rethel vicinity, and south of the Aisne, along the Reoutne River into the Argonne forest, and eastward to the Maginot Line.—Editor's note.]

The guns of the Maginot Line were reported late today to have opened up with fierce firing, apparently in an effort to impede German regiments said to be moving toward the Swiss frontier.

Fierce Fighting on Aisne

Nazi tanks were reported pushing into the district of Normandy and the departments of Seine-Inferieure and Seine and Oise.

During the day the principal German pressure in the west was on the region of Rouen and the Lower Seine. In the northeast the Nazis concentrated their efforts south of Soissons and further east in the region of Rethel on the Aisne.

Tremendous fighting raged on either side of Rethel, where the Germans charged after heavy artillery preparation. The French were said to be inflicting heavy losses in hand to hand fighting.

Meanwhile, other French legions stood watchfully on the Alpine frontier against a new enemy—Italy—but up to midnight there was nothing to indicate that any attack had come there.

Paris itself was not a capital to be captured—if it is to be captured—but only a great half-empty city lying still but alert under a rain that was as black as dusk. It fell through a heavy smoke screen which had been thrown out to complete the blackout.

The capital of France is now 125 miles to the south in the old city of Tours, on the Loire River, and there the government carried on.

Bullitt Stays On

Part of the United States Embassy staff went there, but the rest stayed on here with Ambassador William C. Bullitt—apparently to remain until the last decision comes in the battle for Paris.

While Tours lay white and peaceful under the sun, Paris was dark and silent. The shops were closed behind steel shutters; police with rifles guarded the lonely public buildings; refugees still fled softly through the empty streets; the "archies" — anti-aircraft guns — barked on and on.

16 Seamen Found Guilty of Mutiny

New York, June 11 (INS).—Sixteen seamen, the first to be tried as mutineers in New York in many years, were convicted today.

A kindly Federal Judge, carrying out the jury's recommendation for leniency, suspended sentence on all but the ringleaders, each of whom was given 77 days in prison.

The mutiny, claimed by the defendants to have resulted from their failure to be paid, occurred while their ship the S. S. Ewa, was in Colachel, India, last February. All were removed from the ship and brought to New York in chains aboard another vessel.

HAPPY REFUGEES. The dancing Rossilianos, now at the Lotus, are in a strange predicament. They were starred in the Polish Pavilion at the Worlds' Fair last summer, but now their passports have expired and they certainly can't return to a country that no longer exists. Nor can they take out citizenship papers, since they're not under an immigration quota. The State Department has kindly told them just not to bother their heads about the matter for the time being. So they're very happy, especially as Zygmunt Rossiliano has just heard from his mother in Warsaw for the first time since the outbreak of World War II.

DANCER'S SECRET? Graceful Vorina, now on the Shoreham Terrace, danced in the Hofbrau House in Munich for a month last summer. Shortly afterward Der Adolf was nearly blown to—well, at this same Hofbrau House. What we'd like to know is whether Vorina's handbag is big enough to hold a bomb.

CALIFORNIA IN GLEN ECHO. "California Night" will shortly be celebrated in Glen Echo's Spanish Ballroom. Paul Kain's band will play all the California songs ever written. The California State Society will be asked to co-operate and it is hoped that many Congressmen and Government officials from the "Golden State" will be present. Exact date for the big party will be announced in a few days.

GOOD BAD NEWS. Bill Downer's band will leave the Nightingale on June 20 to form the nucleus of a new "big name" orchestra to be headed by Charlie Spivak, recognized as one of the country's leading trumpetists. This is fine for the Downerites, but how the Nightingale patrons are going to miss them!

RIVIERA DINNER DANCING will start this evening for the first time. This promises to be a delightful innovation. The cool and colorful Lounge Riviera is an ideal spot for dining and Pete Macias' dance rhythms always have a double portion of "that certain something." Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, noted social secretary, will greet diners this evening.

KATHLEEN QUINN,

singing with Little Jack Little's band opening in the Metronome Room on Friday

PEGGY WOOD, of the King Cole Room, will be visiting Dixie Dunbar at the Capitol this week. Dixie and Peggy both sang at the Drum in Miami Beach last winter. Peggy also worked with Lucille Durant, of Reggie Childs' band (Metronome Room) at Hampton Beach, N. H., last year

ABOUT ARTHUR HERBERT, suave maestro of the Starlight Roof: He and his band have just finished a solid year at the duPont in Wilmington. He was the band leader at the opening of the Rainbow Grill in Rockefeller Center. He's one of the few maestros who leads from the guitar. He sings a pretty novelty song and shoots golf in the low 80s.

NICEST RUMOR going around is that O'Donnell's Ferns may be opening in a week or two. Hope that Marty Rubin and Lee Colvin will be there.

NEPTUNE DOINGS. Jack Rollins and his dancers will present a stepping interlude in the Neptune on Saturday. Jack and partner Della Stringham will whirl in the South American way, Marie Lett will hula the Hawaiian way and Paul De Marco will tap in the Manhattan way . . . "Composers' Night No. 2" went off beautifully in Neptune last eve. Outstanding among the tunes presented by Evelyn Tyner and Earline King were "Dreams Came True," by Abe Clar; "I've Tried So Hard to Forget," by Randolph Brown, and the sizzling "There's Lipstick on My Collar," by young Tim Panna.

GOLD POISONING is his only chronic trouble, says Leader Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room. That's the reason he wears that green linen wrist watch strap to match his green suit. When he wore the gold bracelet strap he broke out into a horrid, horrid rash!

MAYFAIR PICTURE. Jack Espey, Redskin coach, apparently combining a good time with duty by casting an eye around to see if any Redskins were sitting in the corners with blondes . . . Charming Carrie Brailed Kemp, first organizer of the American Legion Auxiliary . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dennison, of Florida and Chicago . . . Johnny Mumaw, Mayfair's head bridegroom-busboy, fresh back from Atlantic City . . .

PS-ST! One of Washington's finest entertainers seems to be on the point of landing a top spot in one of New York's topflight places. More about this later.

IN HI HAT. Bill Baker is heading the new Hi Hat Ambassadors instead of Jerry Salisbury, who had to be hospitalized all of a sudden. It's a bright and airy unit. Frank Carter is singing and accordioning 100 of the biggest hit songs of the last three generations. Everything from "Bedelia" to "Pony Boy."

"RAIN, DON'T BOTHER ME" is the catch line at the Fat Boy Roof Garden. For the wide awnings River Bend band is swinging make a shower just a pleasant diversion. Drummer-Leader Joe Cochran of the golden smile and sweet 'n hot rhythms is making the dancers happy whether they're stepping under the rain-drops or the stars.

SUMMER-TIME FEASTING. Try the "Mariner's Platter" at Hogate's. It's an epicure's dream of fish and shellfish . . . Another piece of perfection in sea food is Madrillon's boned shad stuffed with shad roe. . . . For a delicious snack try an anchovy and egg sandwich at the Harrington Tavern . . .

LE JAZZ HOT. That low-down, high-flying "St. Louis Blues," sung by Eileen George in the Anchor Room. Eileen gets so much in the spirit of the thing that she goes into a breakdown while she sings . . . And the way that George Stein's River Bend band is swing "Brown Eyes" puts it in the class of a Russian killer-diller.

Attlee Explains Withdrawal From Narvik

'Pressure of Other Fronts' Is Reason; Roosevelt Talk Hailed

London, June 11 (AP).—Following is a partial text of the British war report, delivered to the House of Commons today by Clement R. Attlee, substituting for absent Prime Minister Churchill:

. . . Because of the pressure of war on other fronts, the Allied forces have been withdrawn from Norway.

The Norwegian forces in northern Norway have laid down their arms. In order to save Norwegian territory from further destruction by Germany and to watch over Norwegian interests during the war, the Norwegian King and government have come to this country. It is with deep regret that the government have taken a decision to abandon the campaign in northern Norway at a moment when, by a turn in our favor, Narvik had fallen into our hands.

Throughout this time, the example of the King has been the mainstay of Norwegian resistance. The Norwegians have decided to continue the struggle against Germany on other fronts. The Norwegian government made this clear in their proclamation of June 10. The Norwegian government will now use all their resources to help the Allies in the war against Germany.

This decision, for which the Allied governments are deeply grateful, is evidence of the conviction of the Norwegian people that their only hope for the future lies in an Allied victory and that the Allied cause with which they are now more than ever identified will surely prevail . . .

Loss of Plane Carrier Admitted

(Attlee then informed the House of the loss of the British aircraft carrier Glorious, two destroyers, an oil tanker and a transport in the withdrawal from Norway, saying no further particulars were available.)

. . . As the House knows, Italy declared war on Britain and France this morning. Hardly ever before in history can the decision to embroil a great nation in war have been taken so wantonly and with very little excuse.

There is no quarrel between the Italians and the British and French peoples. Since we became a nation we have never fought the Italians. On the other hand when Italy so long divided and to a great extent enslaved by the Germans, sought in the nineteenth century to become a united nation, it was British sympathy and help, and French arms that enabled her to attain her desires.

Great Britain and France have always been prepared to consider any real grievances that Italy might feel and right up to this declaration of war have sought in every way to prevent the war from spreading to the Mediterranean. They have been patient under every kind of provocation and abuse. Why then has Italy now declared war? Because Signor Mussolini thinks that he sees a chance of securing some spoils at the expense of the western democracies now that they are at grips with the brute forces of Germany.

False to Traditions

Signor Mussolini uses the argument of the jackal that senses the possibility of getting some scraps from another beast's kill; the argument of the petty sneak-thief who hopes to rifle the pockets of a murderer's victim.

This is the ignoble role that Signor Mussolini has chosen for the great Italian people, which has made such splendid contributions to European civilization in the past.

False to the traditions of that Roman Empire which laid the foundations of law and order in Europe, false to the Christian faith, and false to the heritage of the Renaissance, and betraying the men of Risorgimento — Mazzini, Garibaldi, Victor Emmanuel and Cavour, the men who made Italy a free nation—the Italians are now aiding the German barbarians in their attack upon civilization.

I cannot but believe that many Italians will feel shame at the role which has been thrust upon them. France, whose arms freed Italy from German domination, is now stabbed in the back by the descendants of the men she freed. Britain is to be attacked in the hope that from her destruction Mussolini may get some pickings for his new Roman Empire. Signor Mussolini has made a profound mistake.

The victims whose spoils he hoped to share are not dead. The French people, never greater than in adversity, are fighting magnificently by sea, by air and on their own soil of France. Britain, with all its strength in the air, by sea and by land, is standing firmly by her side.

The Italians, like the Germans, will find they have to meet a resolute resistance. They will soon find, they are already finding, what is the might of sea power.

No Ill Will to Italian People

Already 14 ships have been seized and 10 others are in our ports. Three, on the best German model have been scuttled.

The imaginary restraints at the east and west ends of the Mediterranean which are supposed to impose on Italy in time of peace, become realities in time of war. Italy, like Germany, will feel the blockade. I say we have no ill will to the Italian people.

We are sorry they should be brought to the slaughter on account of the overweaning ambition and lust for blood of the Duce, but we are prepared to meet the challenge.

The two dictators have united to destroy democracy and democracy will answer the challenge. From across the Atlantic has come the answer of a great democracy. It was as though the day followed the night, when, only a few hours after the dictator of Italy had made his dastardly announcement before the serried ranks of the Blackshirts, the President of the United States of America sent to the youth of his country a message worthy of a great and free republic.

Roosevelt Inspired All

He expressed the sympathy of the whole of America for those nations who are giving their life-blood in the fight against the forces of hate. Mr. Roosevelt has virtually inspired all the free peoples of Europe. His assurance that the material resources of this great industrial nation will be placed at the disposal of the Allies, makes it inevitable that, however hard the road, the cause of civilization will in the end prevail.

Let me say to the House and to the country that this new attack does not cause us dismay. It makes no difference to our stern resolution to defeat all our enemies or to our confidence in our ability to withstand all attacks and to achieve victory.

Rather it should increase our determination to strain every nerve to meet all the dangers and difficulties of this critical time, in the sure knowledge that we fight not for ourselves alone but for the freedom of the human spirit.

CONSTANCE BENNETT, film star, was yesterday awarded a $35,000 decision over Gaumont-British Corporation, Ltd., by the District Court of Appeals in Hollywood. The actress sued the British film company for breach of contract in failing to utilize her services in an English picture

Italy Tells U. S. Of War Entry

The Italian Ambassador formally notified the State Department yesterday that Italy had declared war on Britain and France, and in reply Secretary Hull reiterated that Italy's act would "prove a great disappointment to peoples everywhere and a great human tragedy."

Telling his press conference of the incident, Hull said he had emphasized that statement, which he first made Monday.

Permission Sought For U. S. Parachute Unit

Boston, June 11 (AP).—An attempt to transform the 376th Infantry, organized reserve unit with headquarters in Boston, into a parachute regiment was reported today by military sources.

Colonel Henry A. Hale, commanding officer of the 376th, has written the War Department, asking that it be designated as a parachute and air transport unit of the infantry, the sources said.

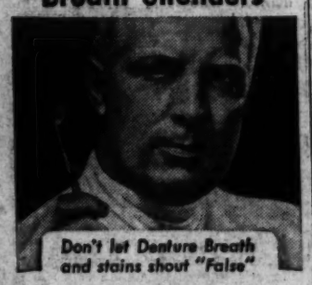
FALSE TEETH WEARERS often worst breath offenders



Dentists say—use POLIDENT

A thin dark film collects on plates and bridges. This film soaks up odors and impurities like a sponge! It holds germs and decay bacteria . . . gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. And it's so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it.

Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor.

Grateful Users Praise It

Polident makes breath sweeter—plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene.

Long-lasting can only 30¢, any drug store. Money back if not delighted. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere. Hudson Products, Inc., N. Y.

POLIDENT

NO BRUSHING

Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse—and it's easy to use.

Key Defense Industry

It is not the purpose of the national defense program to produce huge quantities of expensive equipment for possible future use. Military equipment speedily becomes obsolete and excess production entails needless waste of money. The first aim of the defense program is to put our industries on a preparedness basis that will enable them to respond immediately to emergency demands.

Specifically, this means that increased production of machine tools needed by manufacturers of aircraft, munitions and other types of defense equipment is essential. It is in this key industry that bottlenecks are causing concern to the Government and its defense advisers.

The vital importance of relieving pressure at this point is evidently realized, as shown by the steps already taken to restrict exports of certain types of tools and machinery needed by the Government. Exports of finished equipment help to build up the productive capacity of our defense industries by encouraging the investment of new capital. But exports of machine tools essential to production of defense equipment obviously retard the expansion of productive capacity.

It is easy to understand, therefore, why the machine tool industry is the first one to be subjected to intensive study by the industrial production division of the National Advisory Commission. A coordinating committee consisting of representatives of the industry and of the Government has already outlined plans for speeding up production by expanding plant facilities. That again calls for more skilled men and necessitates the inauguration of a comprehensive training program.

It has to be remembered that the pace of the industrial speed-up for defense purposes will be determined by the weakest link in the chain that leads from the first to the last stages of production. Hence it is essential to concentrate efforts upon relieving the strain at strategic points. Full cooperation of industry as well as expert guidance will be necessary to make this national effort fully effective.

Americans All

Yesterday's newspapers reported that the Italian and Italo-American residents of our large Eastern cities had listened with deep gloom and foreboding to the fateful words transmitted to them from Rome.

Much of their dismay, no doubt, was due to a realization of the rash and ignoble course to which the Italian fatherland had been committed by the will of its master. Much of it was due to fears for the fate of kindred and friends. But much of it must, also, have been due to an apprehension of their now uncomfortable situation among neighbors whose nerves and emotions have been tortured by the cataclysmic succession of disasters in western Europe.

News from England a few hours later tended to increase such fears. There had been angry rioting in the Italian quarters of London, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Glasgow and even Belfast. Only energetic action by police saved harmless shopkeepers and restaurateurs from injury and possibly death.

Meanwhile many prominent Americans of Italian birth or blood hastened publicly to repudiate the Duce and to reavow the complete allegiance of their followers to the United States. Among these were Representative D'Alesandro and Mayor LaGuardia. The mayor warned against demonstrations and promised to preserve the neutrality of the sidewalks of New York. His radio speech contained much sound advice, despite the past occasions on which Mr. LaGuardia, himself, has not remembered to follow it.

We shall do well in this crisis to take the loyalty of our Italian-born citizens and their descendants as much for granted as we expect our own to be taken. Nothing can be more dangerous to the Nation than the fear-inspired fantasies whereby an element of the population, numbering many millions, and yesterday much admired for industry, sobriety and good nature, becomes today a gigantic horse of Troy. This applies also, of course, to that other large body of our citizens who are of German or Austrian antecedents.

This is a good time to chasten ourselves with the recollection of what incalculable tragedy was wrought upon innocent persons during the spy phobias of some twenty years ago. If ever we reach the point where anyone of German or Italian blood becomes, ipso facto, suspect, we shall have adopted the racial superstitions that we have so roundly and justly condemned in the Nazis. Moreover, we shall have created a confusion and disunity which the real fifth column will assuredly turn to its advantage.

In The Maelstrom

In announcing Italy's entry into the war, Premier Mussolini declared that "Italy does not intend to drag other peoples bordering on her by sea or land into the conflict." But he coupled this assurance with a warning to Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and Egypt—all were mentioned by name—that "it depends on them and only on them whether these words of mine will or will not be rigorously confirmed."

The Duce's professed readiness to allow those countries to remain at peace is more than matched by their eagerness to do so. But with the struggle now extended to new areas the chances of any European neutral maintaining its neutrality indefinitely are obviously curtailed.

Of the five nations to which Mussolini held out the promise of non-aggression, two—Turkey and Egypt—are allied to Italy's enemies. Egypt and Great Britain are jointly pledged to protect the Suez canal. And there is every reason to believe that should Italy attempt to seize that vital artery, Egypt would resist with all the force at her command.

Turkey's treaty commitments to Great Britain and to France are more general. The pact of October 19, 1939, provides for British and French assistance to Turkey if the latter is attacked by a European power. In return, Turkey has agreed to assist Great Britain and France if an act of aggression by a European power involves them in war in the Mediterranean area. Turkey has also agreed to assist the Allies if they find themselves compelled to fulfill their guarantees to Greece and Rumania.

What constitutes an act of aggression in the Mediterranean? Furthermore, what precisely is involved in the "assistance" which Turkey is pledged to render the Allies in the event of such an aggression? On the way these questions are interpreted depends the action Turkey will now take.

She may declare war on Italy. She may, on the other hand, particularly if Italy refrains from action in the eastern Mediterranean and limits her warlike measures to the central and western portion of that sea, choose to assist Great Britain and France merely by continuing a policy of benevolent neutrality. No doubt the decision of the Ankara government will be determined, in part at least, by the attitude of Russia, with whom Turkey has remained on close and friendly terms for many years.

Spain's position, in certain major particulars, is not unlike that of Turkey, although with reverse emphasis. There is no evidence that any formal treaty of alliance exists between the Madrid government and that of Rome. But without Italian intervention Gen. Franco might never have been able to triumph in the civil war. Besides there is the possibility that, if the Allies are defeated, Spain will get back Gibraltar.

Thus far there has been no sign that Spain intends to abandon her neutrality. The wounds of the recent conflict are not yet healed. Moreover, Spanish neutrality, if carried out in a manner favorable to Italy, might have fully as much value to Mussolini as actual belligerency.

So far as Greece and Yugoslavia are concerned it can be said with certainty that they will stay out of the war—if they can. The decision, however, is not wholly up to them. Both are vulnerable and both have a great strategic importance should Mussolini decide to extend the war to the Near East. Yugoslavia, together with Greece, Turkey and Rumania, belongs to the Balkan entente, the members of which have mutually guaranteed each other's frontiers against the attack of a Balkan power. Since Italy is not specifically a Balkan power an attack by that country on any entente member would not compel the others to come to the assistance of the victim.

In the meantime, thousands of World War veterans demonstrated Monday in the streets of Budapest demanding that Hungary support Germany and Italy, even to the point of war. This is a straw in the wind, although the Budapest government has reaffirmed the nation's nonbelligerency. And Bulgaria, which like Hungary has looked to Rome for support, has announced its neutrality.

The maelstrom created by Italy's entry into the struggle has, however, created a suction which several of the European nations still clinging to peace will find difficult to withstand.

The Helping Hand

In asking Congress to appropriate a $50,000,000 civilian-relief fund for war-torn Europe President Roosevelt merely gave voice to a demand that was already being heard from many quarters. The United States has never been indifferent to the suffering resulting from catastrophic events. Despite the lagging Red Cross campaign, it is impossible to believe that it is indifferent now.

Congress does not need to be told of the destruction, the tragedy and the desolation that have been inflicted upon large parts of Europe. The appalling picture of razed villages, burning cities, shattered homes and bands of hopeless refugees trudging off to a blackened future has burned itself into virtually every American mind. To refuse aid in these circumstances would be unthinkable.

President Roosevelt has properly recognized that the task at hand is beyond the resources of the Red Cross. Undoubtedly the drive of that agency will go forward. Its fund should be quickly oversubscribed. Beyond this, however, substantial sums will be needed to make surplus American food available to starving refugees in the battle-devastated areas.

The quicker Congress responds to this humanitarian plea the more effective American generosity will be. For prompt aid is a bulwark to morale as well as a relief for empty stomachs and wounded bodies.

Taxing Or Taking

It used to be thought that wars were won and lost by finance ministers. Sometimes, no doubt, that has been the case, for uncontrollable inflation or crushing tax burdens can undermine resistance to enemy assaults as effectually as bullets. But few people believe that the outcome of the present titanic struggle will be influenced by the financial burdens placed upon the nations engaged in it.

Great Britain, France and Germany have employed the usual devices of increased taxation and heavy borrowing to meet extraordinary outlays. But France has covered only one-fourth of her budget needs by taxing. Both Great Britain and Germany are reported to have met nearly 50 per cent of their expenditures since the outbreak of war from taxes.

In the case of Great Britain the burden imposed upon taxpayers is staggering, entailing among other impositions a so-called normal income tax rate of 37½ per cent.

For Germany the sacrifice demanded of the people is almost past belief. For it is estimated that the Reich has spent as much or more than Great Britain and France combined since the outbreak of the war. Considering the relative poverty of the German people, compared with those of France and Great Britain, it is difficult to understand how taxes equaling 50 per cent of all outlays can be successfully levied.

The explanation, of course, lies in the character of the totalitarian regime under which the people live. The Nazis' control over economic life enables them probably to do what could not be done in a democracy.

A totalitarian government can decide how much it needs and then proceed to take what it wants by various means. It may resort to inflationary financing, as has been done in the Reich. Then by severely rationing consumption, it becomes easier to recapture excess purchasing power from the people either through taxation or by borrowing. Herein lies the explanation of the capacity of the German people to meet the demands of their tax collectors.

End The Racket

The bill providing that motor vehicle liens shall be recorded at the headquarters of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, where automobile titles are issued, slipped through the House on Monday with no difficulty. Differences heretofore delaying the measure had been compromised. There is now every reason to believe that the Senate will take similar action.

Many bills of national importance are awaiting action in the Senate. It has very little time to give to District affairs. Yet the Senate should make every effort to pass this local measure. For until this reform is sanctioned Congress will be in the embarrassing position of protecting a racket in the Nation's Capital.

As the law now stands, the Traffic Department issues to unsuspecting motorists automobile titles that are a snare and a delusion. Those titles take no account of liens that may be outstanding against the vehicle under transfer. Automobile purchasers may thus be swindled with the greatest of ease.

For at least two years civic groups have been importuning Congress to end this intolerable situation. The Legislature has refused only because the first bills introduced for that purpose would have involved a minor transfer of patronage from the Recorder of Deeds to the Director of Traffic. Fortunately, that petty objection has now been overcome.

The bill adopted by the House provides for the recording of automobile liens at the Traffic Department by a representative of the Recorder of Deeds. Not the slightest objection to it remains. Should this bill fail of enactment, Congress would have no reasonable reply to the charge that the racket of selling automobiles with hidden liens flourishes in Washington because of that body's negligence as a city council.

"There are 7,000,000 men in this country too poor for matrimony," wails a sociologist. Yes, and isn't it a pity that so many of them are married?

Readers Discuss The War

Reply To Lippmann

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the last few weeks the newspaper columnists of the country have been having a "hell's holiday" in their attempts to build the sentiment of all of us to fear the worst. If this is not the hysteria the President said we should avoid, I do not know what it is. We in this country do much talking of an irresponsible nature, and it certainly doesn't all help. Perhaps many people could spare a little time doing something to help the country, instead of talking it in their spare time.

An article by Walter Lippmann in The Post of May 6 is a good illustration of how not to help the country. He is deliberately inviting us to share our bed with a tiger. Let the Japanese navy have control of the Pacific, under a tacit understanding that they will not attack us in the Pacific while we are warding off European threats in the Atlantic! We can't build a large enough fleet in time to defend both coasts! Shades of Theodore Roosevelt! Talk about panic!

The article contains no logical reason why it would work—not even that the Japanese would accept our proposal. An admission of weakness never helped even a losing cause—and is ours a losing cause? Who said it was? Suppose the Japanese do know our weaknesses, we also know theirs, and a firm stand is the only thing that will ever work in dealing with any possible enemies.

Nationalising Industry

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The munitions industry of the United States must be nationalized! Are the American people so stupid, so callous, as not to be able to see the necessity for this? President Roosevelt has promised that there will be no profiteering during this slaughter of mankind. Roosevelt has made many promises. He promised to balance the budget. He promised to abolish unemployment. He now promises to abolish war profiteering. Are we to believe this promise?

Opposes War Aid

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For several years our country has gone out of its way to abuse, ridicule and villify the German government. They have made no threats against us, and even ignored our unneutral attitude, and now we are again edging our way into this war, which England started. We call England democratic, and that seems to be our reason for our conduct.

De Valera, quoted in The Post of June 7, says, "Bringing the war upon our peoples and perhaps in the end throw us back into bondage as hateful as that broken so recently after seven centuries of sublime sacrifice." Read the history of the Boer war in South Africa, the broken promises to America about reducing fleets, of dominion status to India and Ireland and Italy, for their support in the last war. Freedom to Ireland and colonies to Italy. England has been at war 56 per cent of her lifetime, and has corralled 25 per cent of all the land on the globe, and boasts she controls 100 per cent of the waves. She is rich and has 500,000,000 people to draw from. She has France on her side, who is also mighty. Germany, broken financially, is fighting both of them.

By our attitude we are laying up future troubles. Our Government has just done the most immoral thing in turning our planes over to the Allies. Why in Heaven's name do we not do it openly like men who are free, instead of adopting a subterfuge?

I am not pro-Nazi. By England's propaganda, my brother enlisted in the last war at the age of 42, and sleeps today in Romagne Cemetery in France, while thousands of our war heroes who were going to get everything are panhandling or selling pencils on the street. Economists claim this depression we are in came as a result of the last war, $40,000,000,000 spent. Are we going into this one? AMERICAN.
Washington, June 7.

Pretext For War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are a few things I'd like to have answered by those who write letters to The Post supporting a stand to aid the Allies in every possible way "short of war."

I assume these people mean by this sufficient material aid, including all forms of war implements, newer and better airplane models than the United States has, etc., even at the expense of our own national defense which these same people so loudly champion.

Do you think we can stop this? After sinking millions and millions into armaments for Britain and France, and yet it seems as if they will be defeated, do these people advocate that America then fold her arms, sit back and feel that she has done her share? I for one don't think this is what we would do. No, these people know, as well as I do, that at that point they would just as loudly call for our armed participation in the conflict. Cleverly they always manage to avoid reference to this stage of the struggle, leading on the public to think they are only asking for material aid for the Allies. Why aren't they honest enough to come out and admit theirs is a clear-cut short route to America's involvement in the war. Then the American voters would be aware of the fact that every time their representative in Congress casts a vote for such things as repealing the Johnson Act or passage of other measures to facilitate shipment of materials and money to Europe, they are in reality casting a vote to drag America to the brink of war and finally into it completely.

To those who still doubt I say go to the history of the last World War for confirmation. American boys followed American monies to the battle fields of Europe in 1917. The sinking of the Lusitania was just an immediate pretext for a declaration of war, as was the assassination of the Austrian archduke a few years earlier.

If the American people see to it that no loans, armaments, etc., reach either side in the present war, they need have no fears and jittery anticipation for a repeat "Lusitania event." A. R.
Washington, June 6.

Against Third Term

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is now practically eight years of Mr. Roosevelt's tenure of office in the Presidency can be said to have been away from the great principles upon which our free Government was established by Washington and his compatriots, and adhered to by the American people for practically 150 years. This tendency is on the wrong direction, taking President Washington's advice as a guide. Its tendency is more in the direction of European dictatorship.

The truth of the matter is that those who want a third term for President Roosevelt are the ones who are now eating at the political pie counter and others who desire to become partakers of the same feast. So anxious are these people to live on what industrious citizens produce that the third-term crowd is unanimous in favor of the third-term movement, and intend, no doubt, to push aside the nomination of anyone but Mr. Roosevelt.

The Republicans are not wanting in capable men from whom to choose a suitable candidate for the Presidency. If any of those whose names have been mentioned in this connection should fail of nomination, there are others, such, for instance, as Gov. Bricker of Ohio, who, if elected, would lead our country along wise paths of statesmanship to a greater degree of prosperity and happiness than any yet attained. CITIZEN.
Washington, June 7.

On Isolationists

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I listened to Earl Browder, the Communist, last night. Much of what he said sounded, in words, if not in tone of voice, exactly as if Hamilton Fish might have said it—Hamilton Fish, once the No. 1 denouncer of Communists. A friend, who began listening without having heard the initial announcement, asked which one of the isolationists it was who was speaking. It is surely gratifying, in this age of violence, treachery and hate, to find former bitter opponents now so fully united in their views.

Eight months ago the isolationists were working hard to retain an embargo which was strongly in the interest of Germany. Events have shattered all the pretexts which bolstered their action. The repeal of the embargo has not got us nearer the war; the failure to send more airplanes to the Allies has done so; our present defensive efforts show that the war was "our own business;" Germany's unspeakable conduct and her avowed aim of world dominion give the lie to those who said that "one side is as bad as the other;" her treatment of neutrals makes a ghastly jest of the claim that traditional neutrality, because it favored the Allies, was "taking sides," while an entirely new rule which helped Germany was "the only true neutrality."

Suppose the isolationists had succeeded; that we had helped Germany, and therefore were bearing some of the terrible blame for the present threat to liberal civilization. Could we ever forgive ourselves? And how about the isolationists, who tried to make us help Germany; should we forgive them? Yes, if they ask it. But few of them ask it. Some even keep up a violent isolationist propaganda. Others, giving no sign of any change of heart or opinion, distract attention from their own conduct by condemning the President for not preparing against the war danger which eight months ago they claimed did not exist. Now, it was chiefly the isolationists, using the term broadly, who prevented the President from accomplishing more. They are thus blaming him for not resisting them more successfully. Perhaps he deserves criticism. But they are the last who have any right to give it. Some of them are said to be Presidential candidates. Is the American people going to tolerate a President with any such record behind him?

Month of Weddings

June, the month of roses and of brides! Mother Nature brings the roses, but the brides; ah! they walk to the altar then of their own accord. Or do they? Long before Lohengrin's lilting strains peal out "Here Comes the Bride" the little lady has chosen a day in June because it's lucky. But, you say, such superstitions belong to uncivilized peoples. Maybe. But, persistently, they color our customs.

Th ancient Romans thought an auspicious engagement preceded a fortunate marriage, and they deemed June betrothals the luckiest of all, especially if the event occurred in the full of the moon or when the sun and moon are in conjunction. But woe to May engagements. Although Cupid is active in May, the month was considered unlucky to future households.

And do you wear an engagement or wedding ring? If so, you adhere to an ancient custom of the Anglo-Saxons, who were betrothed as children. The bridegroom gave a pledge, or "wed" (term from which we derived the word "wedding"). Part of the "wed" consisted of a ring, symbol of eternity and of the couple's intention to keep forever the solemn covenant into which they had entered. The man placed the ring on the maiden's right hand, and there she kept it religiously until it was transferred to the other hand at the ceremony.

Nobody knows who wore the first wedding ring, although the Romans and Greeks used them and they have been found in ancient Egyptian tombs. They appear to have been used in the ceremonies of earliest civilization.

Equally important are the orange blossoms adopted for the adornment of brides as a symbol of chastity and fecundity. This custom, supposedly of Moorish origin, is our heritage of the "golden apples" presented to Hebe when she was married to Zeus. However, orange blossoms were not entwined in bridal wreaths in England and America until a century or so ago, when, like most female fashions in dress, it came to us from the French, who borrowed it from Spain.

During the nineteenth century ladies invariably were married in hats or bonnts. Today their fashionable headdress is the veil, which originated in the days when a woman was kept veiled and seen by no man until her marriage, when her husband was the first man privileged to see her beauty.

Regardless of fashions in wedding finery, happy is the bride who adheres to the ancient custom of wearing "something borrowed, something blue, something old, something new," and to put a sixpence (about 12 cents) in her slipper to insure not being wed penniless and to forecast good fortune. When she reaches the altar, the willful lady must remember to stand with her right foot forward if she is to get the better of her husband during married life. But should she forget, all need not be lost, for the nuptial kiss, immediately following the ceremony, will set things right.

In some countries the men of the marriage party are privileged to kiss the bride in church, although nowadays the event seldom takes place immediately after the benediction because of a growing respect for the altar.

Today, groomsmen and bridesmaids serve principally to complete the wedding scene, but they once performed a number of purposes, from witnesses in important marital transactions to assisting the bridegroom in stealing or capturing his bride. In our modern marriage rite, the "best man" suggests marriage by capture. Once upon a time the bridegroom and a doughty friend or two, simply went out on the warpath and seized upon a fair damsel who had strayed from parental covert and carried her away to his home.

The modern bridegroom is less violent, but even he takes his bride on a honeymoon, a relic of those ancient days when the captor had to hide his bride until her parents' consent had been won. And even today the bridegroom carries his bride across the threshold at the end of the honeymoon, another outgrowth of the custom of stealing the bride. But not all days will be honeymoon days if one is to believe that the knots in the ribbon on the bridal bouquet are lover's knots, or "lover's quarrels," which must appear some time.

Throwing an old shoe, another ancient custom, was not always confined to weddings, although nowadays it is associated entirely with the departure of bridal couples. It was originally connected with an ancient ceremony of the transfer of property when women were regarded as chattels. In Anglo-Saxon marriages, the bride's father presented her shoe to the bridegroom, who in turn touched her on the head with it in token of his authority.

Out of the throwing of rice (grain) and flowers, which to the ancients signified fertility and good luck, has grown the custom of the bride's throwing her bouquet, the girl catching it to be the next bride.

Strange as it may seem, the bride cake is closely connected with the custom of throwing things at the bride. We adopted the brides cake from a Roman rite called "confarreation," where marriage was solemnly concluded in the presence of ten witnesses, a cake of wheat or barley being eaten at the same time. As the bride left the church, wheat was thrown upon her head; later the wheat gave way to the bride cake; and finally the wedding cake as we know it in all its elaborateness.

Every bride should be a good cake-maker, for no doubt the better the cook the happier the marriage, and eternal happiness is promised the bride who stirs her own cake.

Universal Service

By Dorothy Thompson

The Democratic Method Of Defense

THE IDEA of universal service in the defense forces of the Nation was a product of the French Revolution. Far from being an undemocratic notion, it was born together with the idea of personal freedom, and logically so. For no one has a right to freedom unless he is prepared to defend it with all other free men. The decay of democracy began with the concept that it consisted of a congeries of rights attended by no complementary responsibilities. The result of such a concept is anarchy and the result of anarchy is despotism and slavery.

ACTUALLY, the only form of military defense that is not a menace to democracy is that built upon universal service. The oldest and, for its size, the strongest democracy in the world today is the Swiss. Like our own, it was founded not upon nationality but upon an idea; it came into being with an oath—the oath to be free and defend that freedom. It is and has been a democracy in which every citizen is a soldier and every soldier a citizen. And it has thus avoided militarism while being, for its size, so strong that its powerful neighbors prefer to touch any other small state rather than the porcupine of Switzerland.

An army based upon universal service cannot become a STATE within the state, because its social frontiers are coincident with the frontiers of the state. An army of all democratic citizens is a democratic army.

WHEN THE TREATY of Versailles, anxious to keep Germany militarily weak, prohibited universal military service it began the destruction of the German Republic.

Adolf Hitler was a creation of the German army. This is a matter of indisputable historical record. The German army was not the army of the German Republic. The old army had been the army of the Hohenzollern Reich, a semi-absolutist state, based upon a rigid caste system and a benevolent and paternalistic state socialism. The new army permitted by Versailles was limited to 100,000 men and was reconstructed by the officers of the Hohenzollern tradition. The treaty required 12 years' service for each soldier, which meant that the army became a professional body. It conceived of itself as the protector of Germany, and therefore identified itself with Germany, and became a state within the state. Its aim was to throw off the Treaty of Versailles and retrieve its own power.

Adolf Hitler was given his first platform by that army; he was employed by it as a speaker. His newspaper received its first subsidy from that army. On the shoulders of that army he was raised, with its aid he overthrew the republic, and then he introduced universal military service to serve and strengthen the regime he had created.

Had the German Republic had its own army—the army of all the citizens, organized to defend the republic, the democratic idea and a free and cooperative Europe—the German Republic would be standing today and the voice of destruction would not be howling down the wind.

An army must be of the composition of the form of state it serves, otherwise it will rule that state. A democratic state must be served by a democratic army—as France is served and as Finland was served. If a state today has no army it perishes. If it has an army rooted by universal service in the prevailing philosophy of life, it will serve that philosophy of life.

Therefore, for the defense of our liberties within, as well as without, we must insist on universal service.

THERE IS an error of thinking in which each of us is likely to fall. This column has fallen into it many times. It consists of confusing means and ends and of denouncing procedures which in themselves are neither good nor bad because one sees them employed for evil purposes.

There is nothing evil, for instance, in the idea of a universal compulsory labor service, for a limited number of months out of a young man's life.

Because Hitler introduced it as a means of achieving his particular goal, and because that goal is abhorrent to us, we denounce the organization itself. But Hitler did not even invent it. As a voluntary service it existed under the German republic, and one of its authors is in exile in America today. His purpose was to create an instrument for democratizing the republic and for tying the idea of rights to the idea of service.

He achieved only limited success because the German democracy was guilty of the same intellectual and moral fallacies which have been the curse of most democracies, namely, that freedom is something you get free, for nothing, instead of something that accrues as the result of ethical and therefore truthful relations between men.

Because the Fascist state has degraded the purpose of such a service and made it an instrument for training youth to racial arrogance and joy in aggressive war is no comment on the instrument. The CCC camps, were they universalized, would follow the same pattern of organization, but they could as well be an instrument for training youths to democratic cooperation and devoted defense.

What we have in Nazism is its spirit, its ideal and its purpose; its profound contempt for man; its mechanistic interpretation of the universe; its glorification of war as an end in itself; its affirmation of violence as a characteristic of the end; its absolutely cynical amorality; its corruption, for purposes of power, of youths into physical heroes and moral cowards; its wicked use of the lie; its reckless willingness to mobilize the worst instincts; its brutalizing slyness that rewards spies and informers and makes children the enemies of their parents; its seizure of the whole private life; and its reversal of the whole decalogue whereby each commandment becomes its opposite.

A CCC ENROLLEE

If the service were universalized it could "become an instrument of democratic cooperation and devoted defense."

But the Anti-Christ steals for his purposes the very forms and rituals of the Christian service. The Black Mass is a blasphemous travesty of the High Mass, and it is no protection of Christianity to abolish the mass because it has been blasphemed.

IF WE ARE to win this struggle for liberty we must start with the assumption that liberty is much more demanding than slavery and worthy of great sacrifice.

For does anyone doubt any longer how near it is? The Nazis sweep Europe before them. Men lose their countries to foreign judges; armies are pushed into the very ocean; men abandon their capital cities, the treasure storehouses of their culture. Yet no one surrenders. Men are defeated, but they do not surrender. For in this war surrender does not mean giving up this or that piece of territory; it means abandoning the things one lives by; it is the final self-deflement. Men fight in order that they must not say "Heil Hitler!" They fight in order that they can live on decent terms with themselves. And if they cannot, then they would rather die.

And that is why Hitler cannot win even if he conquers the whole world, for there will be a rebel left in every still free heart.

But he who is not willing to relinquish his comforts now, and to accept joyfully the disciplines of freedom, is not worthy to be free. He, at least, is already conquered.

Nazis to Destroy Entire Life Code, Financier Says

Nazi Germany is out to destroy not only the countries with which it is at war, but a "whole philosophy of life, a whole code of morality and human behavior throughout the world," James P. Warburg, New York financier, yesterday told members of the graduating class at Southwestern University, Memphis, Tenn.

"You who are about to take up the responsibilities of citizenship and to enjoy its privileges have a right to know the truth," he said. "You have a right to know the facts instead of being bombarded with ceaseless propaganda by those who refuse to face reality."

He warned that the United States has but two alternatives: To throw in our lot with the Allies to defeat Hitler, or to give up the Allies as lost and prepare for home defense.

Civil War In Spain

IT MAY WELL be that in the long perspective of history that vast Battle of Flanders, which we have been following in the newspapers and on the radio, will seem of less decisive import than the two-year struggle in Spain, which J. Alvarez Del Vayo, Foreign Minister of the Loyalist Republic, describes under the title of "Freedom's Battle" (Knopf, $3).

"The first battle of the Second World War was the civil war in Spain," he says. The betrayal of Spain by the democracies preceded the betrayal of Czecho-Slovakia. And the fighting strength of sheer human conviction, even in the face of a terrific enemy superiority in planes and tanks and guns, was demonstrated in Spain, two years before the ghastly drama on the Flemish coast. In Spain, Hitler and Mussolini won the victories which encouraged them to proceed to the assassination of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Albania, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium. They count on Spain today in their plans for domination of the Mediterranean. Whenever the aroused democratic forces of the world win their long-delayed victory, they will look back to the struggle of the much-maligned Spanish Republic as Americans look back upon the dismal winter at Valley Forge.

Mr. Del Vayo, son of a Spanish general, a newspaper man before he became a statesman and a diplomat, tells the inside story of Spain's civil war and of her Loyalist government with eloquence and insight and with remarkably little bitterness. He begins with the election of February, 1936, in which the Popular Front won 268 of the 473 seats in Parliament; only 15 of the 268 were Communists. He demonstrates with little difficulty that the revolt of the generals was planned months before its outbreak in July; even before the election, two of its leaders had been guests at the Kaiserhof in Berlin. Russia did not even have an ambassador in Spain until more than two months after Franco took the field against the Madrid government; nor did the Spanish Republic have an ambassador in Moscow.

Italy, on the other hand, was in the "civil" war from the beginning. The revolt began on the week-end of July 18; the first Italian casualties in Spain occurred as early as July 28, as the official "Informazione Diplomatica" admitted three years later, when the Fascists were flaunting instead of denying their participation. When the Loyalist government complained of German and Italian intervention, both German and Italian governments made the most formal denials of the activity which they have themselves since documented. The British and French governments, however, cooperated with the Fascists in the farce of "non-intervention." If Mr. Del Vayo is bitter against any one, it is against the democracies which balked Spain's effort to resist; yet, in spite of his conviction that the defeat in Spain was largely due to Anglo-French policy, he places the victory of the Western Allies today above all bitterness and disillusionment.

WHAT MR. DEL VAYO says of the military lessons to be learned from the Spanish war is curious reading in the light of what has happened since; at the time of the Polish war he wrote his book. He felt that Spain's two-and-a-half-years' resistance had "utterly discredited" the theory of the "blitzkrieg." (It is ironic to observe that, last autumn, his translator still felt it necessary to translate "blitzkrieg" into "lightning war;" today "blitzkrieg" is a grimly daily part of our vocabulary.) So, too, he thought that Spain had discredited the German theory of permanent aerial warfare—the Fascist planes in Spain, he says, seldom penetrated more than a hundred miles behind the lines, and despite the tons of bombs they unloosed on Madrid and Barcelona, soldiers and civilians alike never ceased being amazed to find how relatively small was the number killed and wounded. The moral effect, however, was very great. . . . But that was in 1936-'38, the technique of bombing has since been immeasurably "improved."

Republican Spain will always feel a "profound gratitude," says Mr. Del Vayo to the American Ambassador, Claude Bowers, whose conduct was "exemplary." Some of the other embassies were openly pro-Fascist in sympathy. To Mexico also he acknowledges a special debt of gratitude; Mexico, even after the republic collapsed, refused to recognize Franco and generously opened her doors to the Spanish Republic in exile.

So he conceives it; a republic in exile. A half million Spaniards still camp in France, costing the French government $5,000,000 a month; more have found refuge elsewhere. A glowing faith in his people and in the ultimate victory of their democracy rings from every one of Mr. Del Vayo's pages. It was not Spain which failed, he is certain; it was the slow-moving, slow-thinking major democracies; and when they have won the war into which they were finally forced, Spain will be Spain again.

Mrs. Callender Arrives Safely

Washington relatives were informed yesterday that Mrs. Harold Callender, wife of a New York Times European correspondent, had arrived safely in the United States from the war zone.

Robert W. Buckner, of Takoma Park, Md., her brother-in-law, said she evidently was among other refugees on the United States liner Roosevelt, which docked in New York Monday night.

He had been informed, he said, that Mrs. Callender had arrived and gone to Southport, Conn., to visit James Truslow Adams, the author, and his family.

Applying Our Policy

By Ernest Lindley

Some Problems To Be Faced

THE PRESIDENT'S speech at the University of Virginia restated emphatically a few of the major aims of American policy but did not clarify their practical application.

Our sympathies are wholly with the Allies. They have been from the beginning; although they are now more intensely felt.

Our material resources are at the disposal of the Allies. So they have been all along—excepting a few specific munitions and weapons during a few weeks last fall pending alteration of the Neutrality Act. With all their enormous resources in dollar-purchasing power, the Allies, until a few weeks ago, were very slow to utilize our resources. In fact, they seemed to feel that they could get along pretty well without great demands on us except for machine tools and airplanes.

The President's speech implied that if the Allies run out of dollars, we will continue to supply them. Probably few American citizens would now object to that. Nor will a corporal's guard object to expediting our aid to the limit of our ability.

Simultaneously, we will speed up our own rearmament. The country seems to be almost unanimously for that.

IN MORE SPECIFIC terms, some of the aims of American policy may be stated this way:

Europe: Keep the Allies fighting by bolstering their morale and expediting our aid. At the moment, the objective must be to keep the French from surrendering. They have been fighting magnificently against superior numbers and superior weapons. Even if their armies are driven into a corner of France—or even if they are submerged—the French must be kept going as nominal belligerents, like the Norwegians, the Dutch, and the Belgians. For the French still have resources in North Africa. And, more important, their naval forces and their land forces in the Near East, are indispensable to the blockade of Germany and Italy. If the French should surrender, the British might be compelled to abandon the Mediterranean and would have extreme difficulty in holding the Near East, with its petroleum resources, the lack of which is the Achilles Heel of the Nazi-Fascist combination.

Finally, we will be ready, in spirit as well as raw resources, and, we hope, arms and trained men to fight. On what line we will be prepared to fight must remain vague. It depends on the fortunes of war abroad, on the progress of our rearmament, on the success of our diplomacy in neutralizing or protecting certain fronts so that, for the near future, they will not need to be protected by our arms.

If the French go down, the British must be kept going. It cannot be kept going except by pledges of our unlimited economic and industrial assistance. Indeed, more may become necessary soon. If the Germans get all the French channel ports, the British lines of supply from overseas will be most seriously menaced. It may be possible to maintain them only by heavy losses in naval vessels as well as in merchant ships.

ONE QUESTION which may be put to us shortly is this: Will we assist in convoying ships to Great Britain? By orthodox standards, this would make us a belligerent. But the fol-de-rol of international law looks even sillier now than it has looked for 25 years. If our international lawyers are worth their salaries they can find a way whereby we can, if we desire, convoy ships without declaring a war or committing ourselves to further action. An alternative might be to sell a flock of our old destroyers to the British. But even if they should have trained officers and crews immediately available, a certain amount of time would be necessary to familiarize them with our vessels.

A second alternative might be to send food, clothing and other nonmilitary necessities in unconvoyed ships bearing the insignia of the Red Cross, with the warning that the torpedoing or bombing of any of them would bring us into the war as an acknowledged belligerent.

Latin-America: Here, at least as far down as the hump of Brazil, we get into the area where we would surely fight, to protect the approaches to the Panama Canal, the lifeline of our national security.

We are now getting ready to pounce upon any Nazi-steered revolution in Latin-America. That is one reason why the President wants to be able to call out the National Guard—to replace in American territory such units of the regular Army as may have to be dispatched to assist Latin-American nations in swatting revolutions manipulated by the Nazis and their Italian satellites.

IF THE ALLIED blockade is broken, Nazi-Fascist economic pressure on Latin America will be felt at once. Europe takes about one-half of all Latin-American exports. Against the claims of this buying power, several Latin-American nations individually would be helpless. Our recourse would be to set up an All-American Trading Corporation to buy all Latin-American surpluses and control their sale to other continents. The gross outlay would be something more than $1,000,000,000 a year, but the net cost would be less. In the way of an All-American Trading Corporation lie difficulties; among them the regulation of production, so that surpluses will not increase every year, and the prevention of boot-legging.

Far East: The outlook is uncertain. It might be possible to reach an agreement with the Japanese for the preservation of the status quo in Oceania, so that our fleet could be moved to the Atlantic. Or if the Allies should be forced out of the eastern Mediterranean, the British might reinforce Singapore sufficiently to hold the Japanese fleet in check.

These are only examples of the specific terms in which American policy-makers are thinking. We are moving swiftly toward the time when high-sounding words and noble emotions must be implemented by cool, but perhaps daring, action.

Off The Record

An Appeal For Help

Roosevelt's Request

The text of President Roosevelt's request for aid to destitute in other lands follows:

My dear Mr. Vice President:

World events have made it clear to the American people that in the interest of American defense it is necessary for us to engage in a greatly enlarged program of training and armament.

At the same time our deepest sympathy has gone out to the civilian populations of war-torn areas, and I believe that this sympathy should be expressed by a concrete example of our inherent and decent generosity.

Many millions of dollars have been given to the American Red Cross for relief purposes in Europe, but I feel that the Government itself should greatly add to the assistance that is now being given.

Asks Nation-wide Support

In the pending relief bill before the Congress we are making possible the expenditure of over one billion dollars for the relief of the needy unemployed in the United States. And in addition to this, large further sums are being spent from day to day by States and municipalities in the care of the needy who cannot be given employment on work relief projects.

In view of these large sums spent at home, I feel that the Congress would receive Nation-wide support if it were to add an appropriation to the relief bill in the sum of at least fifty million dollars as a token of our deep-seated desire to help not only Americans but people who are destitute in other lands.

Clearly the greater part of the amount appropriated will be spent in the United States for the purchase and export of food materials—nearly all of which represent surplus in this country. These surpluses are due principally to the war situation in other lands. We have used and are using a part of these surpluses for distribution to our own needy families. But there is still an excess which tends, incidentally, to depreciate the prices which American farmers receive for their products. Further export of these food products will help the economics of our very large agricultural population.

Need Medical Aid

There are other things which the destitute refugees need across the seas—medicines and medical and nursing aid; bandages, surgical dressings, hospital garments and even cots and blankets and sheets, ambulances, clothing against the winter which will be upon them soon; safeguards against epidemics which could well spread throughout the world.

The funds of the Red Cross will be needed and used for these purposes. The appropriation I am suggesting will supplement their efforts.

The appropriation should, I think, be kept in somewhat elastic form because it is clear that at this time it is impossible to forecast either the exact needs or the exact methods of meeting them.

I call attention to the fact that such an appropriation in no way lightens the burden which the American Red Cross has already assumed. It is necessary that the American Red Cross continues its splendid service for wounded and sick soldiers and civilians. An appropriation by the Congress will supplement the work of the Red Cross to meet the many additional crying needs of the civilian populations who have been driven from their homes.

Very sincerely yours,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Gayda—I always try to avoid that. But it's very difficult. Everybody seems to know my editorials are dictated by you.

Mussolini—It's getting so it's apparent even to me. Can't you camouflage 'em a little?

Gayda—Don't you want 'em as strong as ever?

Mussolini—Yes, but your choice of words is too much like mine.

Gayda—After all, they ARE your words, chief.

Mussolini—Do we both have to admit it?

Gayda—I had an editorial all written for today.

Mussolini—Whom did it denounce?

Gayda—England, France and Turkey.

Mussolini—What! No denunciation of the United States?

Gayda—Of course it denounced America. We always denounce America. I thought you knew it.

Mussolini—And I thought you had forgotten it. What names are you calling Americans today?

Gayda—I call them decadent, money-pinching, materialistic, soulless, busybodies and exploiters of the masses, and say they are devoid of character and without a spark of true manhood.

Mussolini—Don't forget the hypocrite stuff.

Mussolini's War

By Barnet Nover

The Tragedy Of A Nation

OUR GRISLY ERA offers no more nauseating spectacle than is provided by Italy's entry into the war.

With that cold-blooded act, taken at the precise moment when the Allies find themselves at the lowest ebb in their fortunes and fighting with their backs to the wall, a nation which, in happier days, had made many great and lasting contributions to civilization reached the bottom level of degradation. And the Italian tragedy is all the grimmer because the move was only made possible because a people famed for its earthy common sense and rampant individualism had been reduced to the status of lickspittles and automatons.

WE CAN TAKE it for granted that the frantic cheers of the regimented multitude outside the Palazzo Venezia did not in the least represent the wishes and desires of the overwhelming majority of the Italian people. They have again and again during recent years revealed their true feelings regarding war and peace. No nation was more relieved than was Italy when the Munich settlement gave Europe a temporary breathing spell. And no people were happier than the Italians when, to their surprise and relief, they found themselves at peace on September 1 though their country's ally had gone to war.

The Italian people wanted to remain at peace because they were tired of war—they had fought two wars during the last five years and neither resulted in any profit to them—because they saw no advantage in going to war and because, being a practical people, they realized that even on the winning side Italy would be the loser. Yet they now find themselves at war. The puppet dictator so ordered and a puppet people had no choice but to follow.

WHY DID Mussolini go to war? His speech of June 10 is as empty of thought as it is full of rhetoric. It was the speech of the bankrupt leader of a bankrupt nation. But because he and the regime he had foisted on the Italian people 18 years ago are so thoroughly bankrupt Mussolini had no choice.

If the Allies win Italian fascism will be a gone goose. It could live and superficially even prosper as long as it could be made to appear to short-sighted businessmen and even more short-sighted statesmen as a sovereign remedy for social unrest, a "bulwark against bolshevism." It could not survive in a Europe from which the plague of Hitlerism had been wiped out.

Italy has been drained dry during these 18 years, its inadequate resources used up to feed a voracious military machine and a top-heavy bureaucracy, its people spiritually enfeebled. And once deprived of the ability to blackmail the easygoing and befuddled democracies, as would be the case in the event of an Allied victory, Mussolini would at last be unable to avoid a reckoning with his sorely troubled people.

BUT IF HITLER WINS, as Mussolini undoubtedly reckons he will, can Italy derive any real advantage from a triumph which would make Germany the master of Europe? Not a bit of it. Even if Hitler permits Mussolini to serve as the gauleiter of the entire Mediterranean world the Italian people would gain nothing that would amply compensate them for the human and material costs of going to war. The Mediterranean is no empty region. It is crowded and the standard of living is low. Moreover it has few of the resources which Italy needs to make her a first-class power. And at all times Italy's dominance in the Mediterranean would be subject to Germany's desires. In a Europe dominated by Hitler Italy would be no more free than is Slovakia today.

Yet in the event of a German victory Mussolini and the Blackshirt hierarchy might continue to enjoy at least the appearance of power and the perquisites that go with power, regardless of what such a victory might mean to Italy and to the Italian people. In other words, Mussolini went to war not to save Italy, for Italy needed no saving, but to save his regime. And to save his regime he has compelled his people to perpetrate an act of cowardice for which it is difficult to find a parallel in the most sordid annals of mankind.

MUSSOLINI'S act of low cunning will plague his people as long as decency and honor and sportsmanship continue to have any meaning. It may produce temporary successes for it was timed right. But even as to that one should not be too sure. The Allies are sorely pressed. The Italian stab in the back may complete the process of bloodletting capable of leaving France prostrate. That is undoubtedly what Mussolini calculates will happen and that is why he waited as long as he did before discovering that "a great people is truly such if it considers its obligations sacred." But he may be wrong. "France," said Premier Reynaud, "has gone through rougher tests."

The pit Mussolini has dug with such cynical shamelessness for France and Great Britain may be his grave.

Barlow Bombs Again

NO GOATS THIS TIME—Inventor Lester Barlow pushes plunger setting off his new glmite bomb at Bolling Field.

Lester Barlow's liquid oxygen-carbon explosive proved today to the satisfaction of Glenn L. Martin Co. engineers that it was more powerful than TNT, and the Baltimore inventor thereupon announced further experiments were off unless funds were forthcoming from Congress.

Barlow, who contends his invention would furnish a limitless supply of explosive at half the cost of TNT and with superior destructive power, staged a demonstration at the Army's Bolling Field for members of Congress and representatives of the Army and Navy.

Barlow detonated half-pound and pound charges of his explosives in a four-foot pit, blowing a 150-pound steel disc skyward. He repeated the tests with TNT.

Measured by the length of time the disc was in the air, Barlow's explosive showed an average force 30 per cent greater than TNT for the pound charge and 38 per cent greater for the half-pound charge.

Barlow said his experiments would be discontinued unless Congress allowed his $600,000 claim for World War aerial bomb inventions, or made a special appropriation.

"I win and you can't deny it," shouted District Attorney Edward M. Curran.

"I'll stand by my decision and don't care to hear any further arguments," retorted Justice David A. Pine, of United States District Court.

It was a serious case—involving a pair of horseshoes. The scene, however, was not a courtroom, but a patch of green grass at the Congressional Country Club yesterday. The controversy involved a game of horseshoes at the District Bar Association's annual outing.

Some 600 local lawyers spent the day entertaining judges, members of Congress and municipal leaders.

It was a gala affair—a day devoted to fun and frolic. The first man to mention "habeas corpus" was threatened with manslaughter. Next to kegs of free beer, the interest centered on sports—golf, baseball, tennis and swimming.

Things started with a buffet luncheon and concluded at night with a water carnival produced by Attorney Al Lyman and the Shoreham Hotel swimming team.

The program was in charge of Jerome Barnard and was supervised by Francis Hill, president of the association. Local courts adjourned at noon and legal problems of the day were forgotten.

A baseball game with opposing teams captained by Attorney Sam Beach and Assistant U. S. Attorney Dave Hart, ended in a 26-26 tie.

"But make it 26-27 in favor of our side," said Hart, "I was scorekeeper!"

WHAT a picture it makes. A precious gem of star-spangled bunting that carries in its folds all the aspirations of America . . . it means more to 135,000,000 Americans than all the gold buried under Fort Knox, all the skyscrapers from New York to San Francisco.

And along the Avenue as the flag goes by, hearts beat faster . . . pride grows stronger . . . Liberty and justice are marching . . . The American Way is on parade.

The American Way . . . the way of peace and justice. The American Way . . . threatened today by foreign-inspired "Fifth Column" groups seeking to create confusion, inaction and panic . . . to disrupt our national unity by setting race against race, class against class, religious group against religious group.

As dark clouds hover over the world, our flag is more precious to us than ever. Stronger than traitors . . . it is our bulwark against foreign armies and foreign "isms". Stronger than Communist, Nazi or Fascist . . . strong as democracy itself.

Our hats are off, our hopes ride high, our hearts go with it, as the flag goes by.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

If Your Heart Belongs To Daddy, Give Him A Man-Sized Ash-Tray

New York, June 11.

DURING the past few days there has been chatter, in many a blissful home, as to what to get Father for his day, ruminates Leonard Q. Hall, helpmeet of the above lady, and I have a helpful thought on the matter, I hope.

ALICE HUGHES

Childless myself, I shall not know the supreme beauty of having Junior gallop up with some slightly grimy gift he has bought with petty cash bulldozed from Mamma. However, I do know the primary needs of many a native father, and they do not include new bedroom slippers, for he loves the old ones, and the wife or chick who clutters up his tie rack with some of those severe attacks of silken aurora borealis or erysipelas is doing the old bloke no favor.

What Pop actually needs and craves is not assorted haberdashery so much as increased understanding and an occasional-friendly pat on the head of the faithful Old Dog Tray that he is. Our part of the world has always made a cult of motherhood and it is widely known that a mother can do no wrong. One occasionally gets into jail, but not because of her maternity. She merely didn't know it was loaded. Fatherhood, on the other hand, has always limped home a bad second. He didn't even get a "day" until years after Mama, as sort of an afterthought.

If mothers didn't snap at fathers as they pick up your hat and headed for the door, "Where you off to, Luke?" new happiness would come into a faded life, and fresh light to the eyes of an amiable spaniel. If the world's women ever learn and retain the fact that in every man's mind and heart is a small corner entirely his, into which not even his best beloved can penetrate, civilization will really be marching. And when he is living in this little corner and doesn't talk for a while, he is usually accused of pouting. Nonsense! So girls, and ladies and little children, give the old man or young a kindly word. Throw him a meaty bone. He's no mother, but he means well.

FATHERS ABOUT TOWN—I don't suppose there is any more outstanding father in our town than little John D. Rockefeller, with his passel of five strapping boys. All are attractive young men, especially Winthrop, the unmarried one, and at whom some thousand head of young ladies are now taking pot shots, no doubt. He seems to have done, with his wife, an excellent job of raising them, for there isn't a black sheep in the herd, though they are no sissies.

Fatherhood gets little play here in our Murray Hill neighborhood. You see 100 men walking dogs to every one leading his darling little offspring by the paddy. Midtown men are confirmed pooch perambulators, and they clog sidewalk traffic at midnight.

Millions of mother songs are staple goods in Tin Pan Alley, but papa songs are no go. The only two I recall are even faintly insulting, "What's the Matter With Father?" strongly implies that something is, like strong drink, and the other, "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl that Married Dear Old Dad" turns into a mother song, too! Poor Pop.

Something constructive for Father? Easy—just be sure that all ash trays in the house are enormous and plentiful. Pop hates to grope for an ash receiver, and then to come up with one the size of a half dollar. Just do this for Poppy! As a matter of fact, he'll appreciate anything you do!

Simple, Casual and Cool

Here's a midsummer frock which is simple enough to be worn to work, flattering enough to dine out when coupled with a large dark cartwheel, and casual enough to lounge about country clubs. It looks cool and it is cool since it's made of crush-resistant acetate, rayon—very sheer and easy to care for. The polka dots add pep to the classic styling which buttons down the front, has big pockets and a convertible collar

Star-Mother Offers Plan For Beauty

Never Think of Grwing Older, Glenda Farrell Says in Her Program

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU are clinging to the comforting thought that the things it takes to make a woman attractive are beyond your reach, or that you ar egiving the best years of your looks to your family, stop fooling yourself . . . And keep an open mind for this beauty session with Glenda Farrell, popular actress and home maker.

"How do the women of the theater keep looking young?" Miss Farrell repeated a question prompted by the incredible observation that she doesn't look a day over 25 and that I had interrupted her preparations for the arrival of her prep-school son!

"Why," she replied thoughtfully, "I believe it's mainly because they never think of themselves as growing older year after year. Then, too, they cater to their looks. They take care of themselves. They have to!"

And in your opinion, Miss Farrell, what is the most important factor in a woman's looks?

"The figure! Women who tend to take on weight often console themselves that it's glandular, but I believe that an increase in weight is usually due to a letting down. They let down . . . and begin to stuff themselves with food. And the more they stuff, the less well they feel and soon they are 'ailing' all the time."

There you have three points out of the four. If you never think of yourself as growing older day by day, you will not succumb so quickly to the inroads made by time. Moreover, if you do not think of yourself as getting along, you will take better care of your looks. Third, youth and beauty are so closely indentified in our minds that we might as well think of them as one. Either the beautiful woman or the young-looking woman must have a slim, lovely figure.

Now for the fourth point:

"What it takes more than anything else in the theater is vitality," she declared. "A woman can feel logy and get by at a banquet. But she can't project a character over the footlights unless she is feeling up to it. The audience may not know exactly why she is not registering, but there won't be any doubt in their minds that she isn't!"

Scheme of Beauty

Now you have all four points in Glenda Farrell's scheme for beauty. If you would follow them, you would soon find they cover practically all the minor measures, and that some of these dovetail. For example, in the control of weight and in vitality diet is what counts.

When she first began playing in "Separate Rooms," a robust comedy in which she runs—and doesn't walk—for the greater part of the performance, Miss Farrell lost six pounds just like that! Her doctor ordered more rest and vitamins. She takes three vitamin A, B, C, D and G tablets a day, and one vitamin B1 tablet, by his orders, to maintain the high vitamin diet such furious activity requires.

For those who own a movie camera, she has one last bit of beauty wisdom. Have a couple of hundred feet of yourself filmed, showing you as you move about, sit and stand . . . Then analyze your faults! You'll be ready and willing to work to improve!

Cologne Rub-Down

THERE'S nothing comparable to an eau de cologne or toilet water rub-down in hot weather. Either takes the wilt out of your appearance and bolsters up a listless spirit. Instead of the usual predominant one-blossom scent the newest toilet waters and eau de colognes are a blend of innumerable flower fragrances. Many of the latest essences are keyed to harmonize with perfumes and sachets.

Summertime—a clear, sparkling, delicately tinted, crisply scented toilet water is a veritable bouquet of spring flowers. It is excellent for a gentle rub-down after your bath and for use between showers—behind your ears, on your temples, in the crooks of elbows and on the wrists.

Reflection—a cool, refreshing and feminine eau de cologne combines the fragrance of 20 or more flowers. There's a soupcon of jasmine, sweet pea, honeysuckle, rose and many other aromas.

Friction—another floral essence, combines all the qualities of a bath oil, body lotion and eau de cologne. A few drops in the tub softens and scents the water and a small amount dabbed on the body, neck or face, makes the skin feel fresh and cool.

Save Your Fabrics From Fading

New York (AP).—Here's some light on your fabric fading troubles: Manufacturers say many of them are your own fault, that the fabrics fade in the sun instead of in washing, as you may have thought. You may have washed your colored cottons in too hot water or with bleaching compounds and then dried them in direct sunlight. Fabrics fade much faster when wet.

Another source of difficulty, manufacturers say, has been the fact that many fabrics have been loosely labeled as having fast color, implying they were fast to everything, whereas, manufacturers assert, there is no such thing as a really fast color. The color of any fabric will "give" if it's punished enough.

Woman Hesitates to Have Child in Second Marriage, As Her First Venture Failed After Baby Came

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When I was 15, I left school and ran off to be married to a boy who was then 23. Two years later, we had a baby girl. When she was 6 months old, we separated. (Looking back, I realize the fault was as much mine as his.) Taking my daughter, I went back to live with my parents. I got a job to help support myself and the baby. After two years' separation, when I was 19, I obtained a divorce.

My former husband remarried almost immediately, and after three years I married a boy who had been courting me since my divorce. I was then 22 and he was 20. He is an only child and his mother (who is herself divorced) has never considered me good enough for him. Yet the only black mark against me is the worry I caused my own mother by my runaway marriage and the subsequent divorce.

I am very much in love with my present husband, and, taking profit from past mistakes, I am doing all I can to make our marriage happy. But every once in a while his mother comes between us. Why is she so superior in her attitude? Why does she look down on me? I am as proud of my daughter as she is proud of her son, and I can't understand her unfriendly behavior. Things have reached the point where I have nothing at all to do with his family.

During our latest argument over his mother I told my husband that I never again want her in our home. Yet he understands that he is free to visit her at any time. Is it wrong of me to want a little peace? I have a feeling that if she and I go our separate ways we can avoid needless friction. Am I right in this?

I have one other question: My husband insistently urges me to quit my job and stay home. Although he loves my daughter, he wants us to have a child of our own. If I thought such a move would stabilize our marriage and add to our happiness I would gladly do it. But I have a hunch that everything would be wrong after the baby had come, and I simply couldn't stand going through another upset. Please help me. THELMA B.

Don't Reckon Future In Terms of the Past

DEAR THELMA B: The cherished hope of devoted parents that life will confer its choicest gifts upon their offspring seems to come to its most furious flowering in those parents whose own dreams of happiness have gone awry. Men and women who have made, as the saying goes, the biggest mess of their own lives, often blunder equally in their interfering efforts to insure a better harvest for their children. I think this is the explanation of your mother-in-law's behavior.

Without justifying her attitude, I submit that she probably "looks down on" you as an intellectual and social inferior (both of herself and her son)—for the reason that you left school in your fifteenth year and got married. Academic snobbery is a characteristic of socially striving middle-class persons. Moreover, any approximation of child marriage is looked upon askance in Anglo-Saxon society, and the youngster who marries as early as you did automatically invites the question whether he (or she) is moronic; or simply, as the quaint phrase has it, underbred.

In addition to these two possible reasons why she might think you weren't "good enough" for her son, there is the likelihood that she considered you, from the beginning, to be a jaded worldling in comparison to him; so that she assumed you were roping him in with seasoned, unscrupulous wiles—which warranted moral condemnation.

However, whatever her reasons, you are simply adding fuel to the flame (and making conditions worse for yourself) in actively resenting her unfriendliness. The far better thing to do is to overlook her hostile distrust, while turning in a consistently admirable performance as gracious lady and competent wife. Unless you adopt a positive, constructive course of action designed to compel her respect and confidence, you are going to create an ever-widening rift between your husband and yourself. It should be obvious that one can't build a fine durable marriage while carrying on a dogfight with one's mother-in-law.

Now, as to whether you should hearken to your husband's insistence, resign your job and have a baby—that is a question which I cannot decide offhand. If his income is secure and sufficient to tide the family over such an adventure, the concession might prove well worth while. I imagine your "hunch that everything would be wrong after the baby had come,'" is simply a carry-over from your unhappy experience as a new mother in the first marriage.

I suppose you were chronically tired and penny-pinched then, and you might be again, if you had two children to support on one slender income. But the fact that one difficult situation licked you in your untried youth certainly doesn't mean that a comparable situation would defeat you again. On the contrary, you know from experience what to strive for and guard against; and so perhaps you are far better prepared today than you were a few years ago to be, simultaneously, a successful wife and happy mother, regardless of handicaps. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Concentrated Soup Mix a New Find

FOOD merchants have certainly done their bit to help lighten cooking duties. This is a welcoming thought for the hot days when one may have the yen to hit the gypsy trails. One chore-lightener that has come to my attention recently is a Noodle Soup Mix that comes in a silver, gold and blue package. It contains pure egg noodles, dextrose, chicken fat, vegetable protein derivative, salt, spice, dehydrated toasted onion and dehydrated parsley.

It is one of those quick as Jack Robinson affairs. You open the little 2½-ounce package and empty the contents into 1 quart of boiling water. Cook for 7 minutes and serve. The noodles pop up in the liquid and the parsley comes up looking as if it were freshly picked from the garden. The information on the package reads, "Serves four," but if you like chicken noodle soup it is safer to plan on it's serving two.

This conveniently packaged soup concentrate is also a splendid and convenient food article for summer cottagers, hikers, or any groups who like to prepare meals in the open.

City Folk Like Rural Decorations

Big Stores Feature Country Furnishings, Simple and Casual

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

COUNTRIFIED accents in decorating have, paradoxically, the greatest appeal for city people. And so the big stores make quite a point of rural furnishings. The lure of country rooms is their tidy informality, their comfortable hominess. Starched and simple they usually are, casual, orderly, as fastidious as organdy or freshly "done up" muslin. For in this column today we're not thinking of the country in terms of shacks or cabins or hideouts. We mean the kind with prim gardens and picket fences, with croquet and leghorn hats and muffins for tea.

"Sitting Room in Dijon" is the title of as pleasant a country room as we've seen this season. A documented wallpaper, a small scale scenic pattern in browns, ivory and rose, has established an intimate charmingly stuffy atmosphere in the room. Blended with these colorings are French provincial furniture in natural light brown wood finishes and a beige textural rug. Accent is provided in white painted blinds, white taffeta over-curtains, the white painted frame of a daybed, in the green upholstery and the flowered chintz used on one easy chair.

A more formal room, in country mood for the summer, made the transition to seasonal informality very easily. With the dignity of French and English furniture of the eighteenth century was combined the cool flower blue of faded blue denim which was quilted for the sofa covering and used in deep folds and austere swags for the window drapery.

"All right, we can fix you right up. What about a little white sharkskin suit? Now nothing is as cool looking as white——"

"I said 'not soil easily'."

"Well, I have some adorable little black chiffons. Now nothing's as cool looking as black——"

"I said 'wash easily'."

"I have some stunning silk prints."

"Will they wash?"

"Well—a lot of people do wash them. Of course we don't guarantee——"

"Haven't you any cottons?"

"Oh, yes, I have some very smart linens . . . Now here's a little model that's especially smart with this box pleated skirt——"

"Pleats! I said 'launder easily'."

"Well, here's one with only some kick pleats."

"I won't press pleats. Besides, I want something thin."

"All right, look at this little air-conditioned voile. Isn't that accordian pleated skirt graceful?"

"I said 'no pleats'."

"Pleats are very good this summer."

"Haven't you anything I would not have to be always pressing?"

"Yes, indeed. What about one of these little printed rayon chiffons? Now this is called Arctic Girl——"

"Isn't that over a taffeta slip?"

"Yes, but of course you wouldn't have to wear much under the taffeta."

"I said something that would launder"

"All right, I can give you one of these little pure silk shirtmakers. Now here's one with knife pleats——"

"No pleats!"

"But everything's pleats this summer."

"Let me see some other cottons."

"Say, wouldn't you like one of these smart little gingham suits? See this sweet little red and green one with the cunning basque jacket."

"It's so heavy——"

"Oh, but these solid fabrics really keep out the heat."

"Haven't you anything cooler looking?"

"Here's one in orange and purple. Of course they all come in bright colors."

Haven't you something sort of thin . . . and sort of dark?"

"How about a smart little navy organdie with a white sash?"

"I said something that wouldn't muss."

"Well, here's a little printed voile. Isn't that anoN'Fifbk5c! dwy voile with some interesting detail. Isn't that an adorable fichu collar with those little Val lace ruffles?"

"I said 'launder easily'."

"Maybe you'd like one of the silk sports pastels. See, these have the new long sleeves."

"I'd like something darker and cooler."

"How about this seersucker? See how beautiful it is . . . with all this shirring around the waist."

"I said 'launder easily'."

"Here's a very smart spun rayon. Aren't those marvelous lines? Look at those padded shoulders——"

"No! I suppose I might as well go back to silk."

"Then I have JUST the thing for you! A candy striped red and white jersey with a perfectly adorable little fringed shawl . . . And it also comes with a hood!"

production for the national defense commission, and afterward announced the Ford Co. could swing quickly into mass production of warplanes as soon as it gets contracts.

West Point Plan Studied

The President disclosed that consideration is being given to advancing the graduation of next year's West Point and Annapolis classes from June to February to provide additional officers for the armed forces. He said the Navy has recommended such a step and that the Army is studying the proposal.

The House, 396 to 6, passed the Administration tax bill, designed to raise $1,000,000,000 annually for the next five years to pay for the huge defense outlays.

Senators Clark Lead Fight

Senate approval of arms trade-in plan came after several opponents of the President's program charged it was "taking us into the war." Democratic Senators Clark of Idaho, and Clark of Missouri, led the fight against the amendment.

Authority already exists for the President to trade in surplus planes and ammunition and for selling surplus guns and other equipment. The transfer of arms to the United States Steel corporation, subsidiary of the United States Steel Export Co., for resale to the Allies was a direct sale. When and if the new legislation becomes law, however, the steel company is expected to pay the Government in new munitions rather than cash.

Senator Clark, of Missouri, contended that because the guns sold are obsolete compared with modern weapons, does not mean they are "surplus." Until replaced by something better, he declared, they may still be needed for defense of the United States.

He said the trade-in or sale of Army and Navy munitions to manufacturers for resale to the Allies was an "evasion of international law and the neutrality act."

Senator Clark, of Idaho, termed the whole program a "horrible travesty" and "an act of war." He said the classificatoin of Army and Navy planes as surplus because they do not have self-sealing gas tanks and armored cockpits "an utter fraud."

Majority Leader Barkley defended the sale of the arms, declaring we now have enough rifles for an army of 5,000,000 men. He said there is no idea of raising such a force now and that before it could be raised and trained modern equipment could be produced for it.

As the Senate was approving the trade-in authority, President Roosevelt told his press conference the Army and Navy lists of military supplies are now being combed to see what can be spared for the British and French. He said he is not considering the sale of "surplus" destroyers to the Allies, nor is he contemplating asking for a modification of the "cash and carry" rule of the Neutrality Act.

Senators Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, and Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, introduced bills to lift this rule and also the Johnson Act banning extension of credits or loans to debt-defaulting countries. The President declined to comment on the measures.

During his press conference Mr. Roosevelt had a copy of a newspaper on his desk turned to one of the "Stop Hitler Now" advertisements which are sponsored by an organization headed by William Allen White, Kansas publisher. The President praised the campaign as educational.

Asked if he considered that the United States should now be described as a "non-belligerent" rather than "neutral," the President laughed and said he had been so busy he had not had time to consult his thesaurus.

The roll-call vote by which the Senate approved an amendment making it possible for surplus American war stocks to be traded in for resale to the Allies follows:

Falls Church Gets Tax Specialist

Carrying out plans for the collection of delinquent personal property taxes amounting to $4,887.71, David A. Lyons, of Petersburg, Va., a specialist in tax collection employed by the Falls Church Town Council, arrived in town yesterday, Mayor L. P. Daniels said.

The council at its meeting Monday night authorized John A. K. Donovan, town attorney, to confer with Federal and State highway authorities in an effort to have Broad street widened through the town. The mayor said the State is widening the highway from the town limits toward Leesburg.

The council requested that the State widen Lee Highway from Broad street to Hillwood avenue.

House Passes Defense Taxes

on a long list of commodities such as tobacco, gasoline and alcoholic beverages, it is believed that the new revenue bill would affect virtually every adult in the Nation.

In addition to boosting taxes, the measure authorizes an increase in the present $45,000,000,000 national debt limit to $49,000,000,000 through issuance of $4,000,000,000 of securities, maturing within five years, to be known as the "National Defense Series." Technically it is these obligations for which the new taxes are intended to pay, and any surplus would go into the general fund of the Treasury.

About two-thirds of the estimated new revenue—including the excises and a 10 per cent supertax—is projected for five years only, but most of the increases on corporation and individual incomes are written as permanent changes in the tax law.

Meeting an hour earlier than usual, the House devoted seven hours to debate on the bill, which under a stringent "gag rule" could be amended only by the Ways and Means Committee. The committee offered no changes, and the House shouted down an attempt of Representative Thill (Republican), of Wisconsin, to send the measure back to committee with instructions to write in an excess-profits tax.

The six who opposed the bill were Republican Representatives Thill; Alexander, of Minnesota; Thorkelson, of Montana, and Crawford and Wolcott, of Michigan, and Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said that he hoped the tax measure could be reported out of the Finance Committee this week and brought before the Senate not later than Monday.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, declared if he could get the figures in time, he would propose that an excess war-profits tax be added to the bill in committee, and Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, another committee member, said he would move to raise the annual yield by at least $500,000,000.

A proposal will also be offered to allow taxpayers to charge off in five years the investment in plants and equipment set up for the rearmament program. But the Byrd amendment for the 10 per cent cut in Federal expenditures (except for national defense, fixed charges and trust funds) was given best chance of success.

Rites at Potomac For JesseB.Roberts

Funeral services for Jesse B. Foberts, 80, long-time resident of Glen Echo Heights, Md., who died Monday in a Takoma Park hospital, will be at 2:30 p. m. today in the Methodist Church at Potomac, burial to be in the church cemetery. The Rev. K. D. Swecker, pastor of the church, will officiate.

Mr. Roberts is survived by several daughters and sons. He was a lifeling resident of Maryland and had lived in Montgomery County most of his life. He was a retired employe of the United States War Department.

Marsha Hatch Becomes Bride of Glen Leet

Senator's Daughter Wears Mother's Wedding Gown of Satin Brocade For Ceremony in Mt. Vernon Place Church

WEARING HER MOTHER'S wedding gown of pale ivory satin brocade and lace, Miss Marsha Hatch, only daughter of Senator and Mrs. Carl A. Hatch, of Clovis, N. Mex., became the bride of Glen Leet, of Providence, R. I., yesterday afternoon.

The Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding at 4 p. m., with the Rev. John W. Rustin officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her picturesque gown was fashioned with a wide front panel of lace, long tight-fitting lace sleeves and a flowing train terminating in fan plaits. Her veil of white tulle fell from a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Stewart Hatch, of Houston, Tex., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a pink net dress with a bouffant skirt and a fitted lace bodice. A shower bouquet of pink larkspurs and babies' breath accented her ensemble.

Miss Elizabeth Reardan, of San Francisco, was maid of honor. Her frock of yellow net was similar to that of the matron of honor and she carried a shower bouquet of delphiniums and white marguerites.

There were six other bridal attendants, dressed alike in bouffant blue net frocks. Each bridesmaid carried a shower bouquet of delphinium and white marguerites.

3 Senate Daughters Among Attendants

In the group were three daughters of Senators—Miss Annie Elizabeth Bailey, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina; Miss Chiyo Thomas, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah; Miss Cuyler Schwartz, daughter of Senator and Mrs. H. H. Schwartz, of Wyoming.

Still others in the corps of attendants were Mrs. Robert S. Caviness, of Washington; Mrs. Al Harting, of Dallas, Texas, a former schoolmate of the bride, and Miss Mickey Caviness, of Oklahoma City, a cousin of the bride.

Dr. Willam Lessel Leet, of Providence, R. I., brother of the bridegroom, was best man; and ushers were John Macy, Charles Mills, Dr. John C. Patterson and Karl Stromsem, all of Washington; Keith Tindale and Ralph Spear, of Chicago; Thomas Neblett, of New Orleans, and Birchard E. Wyatt, of Detroit.

To Make Home In Rhode Island

Miss Mary Elizabeth Bickley, of Clovis, N. Mex., a former schoolmate of the bride, played for the wedding. Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. E. K. Neumann, wife of the former attorney general of New Mexico, sang "I Love You Truly."

After the reception, there was a reception at the Mayflower Hotel for close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The former Miss Hatch is a graduate of Holton-Arms School. The bridegroom is the son of A. F. Leet, of Brockton, Mass. He is a graduate of Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., and received his master's degree from Syracuse University.

After a Southern cruise, Mr. and Mrs. Leet will be at home at Headwinds, North Kingstowne Beach, R. I., until September, when they will go to Providence to make their home. Mr. Leet is executive secretary of the State Department of Public Welfare of Rhode Island.

Eugenia Merrill Makes Debut

Miss Eugenia Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, made her bow to society yesterday afternoon at a large garden party given by her parents at their home on Belmont road.

Assisting the debutante were a number of her contemporaries. Several friends of her sister, Miss Rosemary Merrill, poured tea, and a large group of Mrs. Merrill's friends were in the party.

Miss Merrill, the debutante, wore a frock of flowered chiffon, made on simple lines. Her sister was gowned in bouffant white organdy, while Mrs. Merrill's dress was of cream crepe.

After the garden party, the girls who assisted and an equal number of young men stayed on for a buffet supper. Among Miss Merrill's house guests who came to Washington to attend the party are Miss Margaret Powers, of Wilton, Conn., and Miss Ellen Vaughan, of Boston—both of whom were classmates of Miss Merrill at Dobbs Ferry.

Herbert Sparrows Return to City From Hawaii

Lieut. and Mrs. Herbert Sparrow have just returned to this country from Hawaii and will be in Washington today for a short visit. Accompanying them are their children, Herbert, jr., and Virginia Winslow.

Lieut. Sparrow has been appointed instructor in the department of English at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Mrs. Herbert G. Sparrow, sr., who had planned a trip to France has delayed her departure indefinitely because of the war.

Luncheon Held For Mrs. Drury

A "welcome home" party for popular Mrs. Abner Drury, who recently returned from an extended visit in Florida, enlivened the social whirl yesterday when a number of her friends got together for a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Irene Caldwell.

Gayly informal, the event combined the best features of a garden party and an indoor fete. The long table in the dining room was laden with a variety of dishes to which guests helped themselves. Then, they had their choice of sitting inside at one of the small tables set up in the living room and on the sun porch, or at larger tables in the garden.

Among those present were Mrs. John J. Shugrue and Mrs. Oswald Schuette, sisters of the guest of honor; Mrs. Robert E. Moran, Mrs. James Moran, Mrs. Burks Summers, Mrs. George Allen, Mrs. Walter Distler, Mrs. Albert Cox, Mrs. Martin Codell, Mrs. Harry Butcher and Mrs. Henry Thomas.

Still others there included Mrs. Charles Daley, Mrs. Michael Keane, Mrs. James Nolan, Mrs. E. W. Titus, Mrs. F. McKenzie Davison, Mrs. Barge Hartz, Mrs. James Haley, Mrs. Joseph Cotter, Miss Helene Kravadze and Mrs. Arthur Phelan.

The Matthewses Leave for New York

Mr. and Mrs. Wright Matthews, of Houston, Tex., who arrived in Washington early this week, went to New York late yesterday to spend a few days. They will return to the Mayflower on Friday. Former residents of the Capital, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews have a host of friends here, and their visits to Washington always are accented with a round of fetes. Mr. Matthews was assistant commissioner of Internal Revenue until four years ago when he resigned that position in order to go into private law practice in Texas.

On Monday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Matthews gathered in about 150 of their friends for a reception in the East Room of the Mayflower. Receiving informally, Mrs. Matthews was trimly turned out in a dusty pink crepe frock with a Paul Flato flower arrangement. Mr. Flato is the Texas designer who has achieved wide success with his costume jewelry paterns.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

THOSE GOOD-LOOKING red, white and blue enamel pins which are being worn by some of Washington's smartest ladies are the cockade pins sold by the Friends of France to raise money for Miss Anne Morgan's splendid work among the evacues of France. Like everything that Mrs. Arthur Woods and the other members of the committee undertake, the sale of the pins has had enormous success. More than 20,000 have already been sold. One New York debutante sold $300 worth of the pins in one evening at a well-known New York night club and Mrs. Woods tells me that the committee intends putting them on sale in Washington's gay spots, too.

OTHER ARTICLES being sold for the same purpose are red, white and blue cigarette cases and powder compacts and these have appeared among the presents given to a number of the recent debutantes these past weeks. There are also miniature pins which have found favor with men as button-hole decorations. Noel Coward was wearing one on his visit to Washington last week.

MRS. WOODS' clever slogan for selling these charming souvenirs of a worthy cause is, "Be quick, be chic, be generous." Some of the ladies who have all of these qualities and are wearing the pins are Mrs. George Pettengill, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. George Sloane, of Warrenton; Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Shaw Parker, and the wife of our Secretary of War, Mrs. Harry Woodring, who wears a cockade pin herself and pins miniatures on the smart summer suits of her children.

MR. AND MRS. Joseph Green (he is head of the State Department's Munitions Control Board) entertained at cocktails the other afternoon at their home in Chevy Chase. The party was in honor of Mrs. V. Lansing Collins, whose late husband was for many years secretary of Princeton University. Mrs. Collins' son, Lansing, who has just completed a course of study at the Foreign Service School of the State Department and will soon be off to his second diplomatic post at Batavia, shared honors with his mother.

AS A MATTER OF FACT the honors were shared pretty generally all around, as a number of people were being welcomed back from foreign posts. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Packer were making their first appearance, having recently arrived home from Riga, and James Stewart was being welcomed back from Mexico. Mrs. Stewart has gone on to visit in Colorado.

Miss Cornelia Bassel, secretary of the Foreign Service School, also came in for much attention, as she had, at one time or another, bolstered up most of the gentlemen present during the trying epoch of their examinations.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emmons, she charming in pink linen; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bonsal, Barbara Stevens, wearing sheer black; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Livesey, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McDermott, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Hulen and a number of others.

Miss Towers Is Married To Lieut. Riley

Flower-Decked Fort Myer Chapel Scene of Ceremony

The Fort Myer Chapel was decorated with palms and masses of white flowers and lit by tapers for the wedding yesterday of Miss Marjorie Towers to Lieut. Herbert Douglas Riley, U. S. N. The pretty, dark-haired bride is the daughter of Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of aeronautics for the Navy, and Mrs. Martin B. Saportas, of New York. Lieut. Riley is the son of Mrs. Martin Riley, of Baltimore, and the late Mr. Riley.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white mousseline de soie with a long train, full skirt and short puffed sleeves trimmed with a bow. Her net veil fell from a diadem of the same material and she carried a nosegay of lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a necklace of aquamarines.

Mrs. William Ryan Is Matron of Honor

Her matron of honor, Mrs. William Ryan, was attired in pale green organza with bows on the skirt, a natural straw hat, and carried spring blossoms. The other attendants were similary dressed only in yellow. They were Mrs. Everett Rigsbee and Mrs. E. Gordon Riley.

E. Gordon Riley was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Charles Carstairs Towers, the bride's brother; Lieut. Comdr. William R. Terrell, Lieut. Everett Rigsbee, William T. Easton, Frank A. Brandley, George W. Anderson and Charles D. Griffin.

A reception at the 1925 F Street Club followed the ceremony. Several hundred guests attended, including leading Navy figures and members of residential society. The bride's mother, Mrs. Saportas, and Mr. Saportas, came from New York for the ceremony, and Mrs. Saportas wore powder blue with a flower hat. Mrs. Towers was in a red, green and white print with a gay turban to match.

Made Debut In New York

The bride, who was introduced to society in New York several seasons ago, attended the Brearley School, and was graduated from the Bishop School in La Jolla, Calif. She is a granddaughter of the late Charles S. Carstairs and is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Carstairs of New York.

Miss Ervin Engaged To Dr. Haworth

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ervin, of Columbus and Middleport, Ohio, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elaine, to Dr. Ellis Haworth, son of Mrs. Florence E. Haworth and the late Thomas W. Haworth, of Washington.

Miss Ervin has a master's degree from Ohio State University and is now on the faculty of the Woodrow Wilson High School here.

Dr. Haworth, who is a graduate of George Washington University and Johns Hopkins University, is professor of science and chairman of the division of science in Wilson Teachers College. He is also a lecturer in education in the summer school of Catholic University.

Well known in Washington educational circles, Dr. Haworth has served for a number of years as head of the science department in local junior and senior high schools.

About the Town

with DUDLEY HARMON

IN THE MIDST of Laura Blair's gay debut party the other afternoon, a group of guests followed Eugene O'Dunne and his portable radio to a spot outdoors behind the kitchen. Sitting on upturned garbage cans, they listened intently to President Roosevelt's speech from Charlottesville.

Other groups gathered around the hundreds of cars parked at Grasslands. Waiting chauffeurs, too, clustered in knots to listen, while the saxophones of Blair's dance orchestra blared in the background.

"He's wonderful." "Someone ought to wake up those college boys." "He's not saying anything important." "I've heard all that before," etc., etc., were some of the many comments. "We ought to send the Allies everything we've got, except 'our boys'," seemed to be the consensus of opinion.

TABLES OF PUNCH were set up on the terrace under the trees. Everybody neglected the dance floor to mill around outside.

Seen here and there: Mrs. Frederick Brooke, in a chiffon print, presiding over the punch bowl . . . Cecilia vom Rath, down from her summer home at Long Island for the recent debutante parties, and set to return there shortly . . . Mrs. Warren Barbour in a black and white checked silk print.

The pretty deb receiving with her father, while Mrs. Blair, who has been ill, chatted with friends in a circle of chairs in the corner. The Blair home, by the way, is that lovely, historic yellow brick house at 1651 Pennsylvania avenue. It has been in the family for several generations and is filled with beautiful examples of Chinese Chippendale and Mr. Blair's famous collection of early American glass.

OTHER PARTY SNAPSHOTS: Andrew Wylie and Leonard Block discussing the war—the Blocks, incidentally, will spend the summer in Nantucket . . . Mrs. John R. Williams seated comfortably in a big chair . . . Mrs. Lewis Clark chatting with Nancy Mann, who drank ice water . . . Mrs. Crosby Miller, whose sister is married to an Italian diplomat. She is visiting at the family home in Warrenton and listened to the Mussolini speech yesterday . . . Mrs. Joshua Evans talking to Carroll Glover.

Stellita Stapleton talking with five men . . . Zeva Fish wearing a patriotic dress of white sprinkled with tiny red and blue stars . . . Louise Stillwell in pink with a blue jacket . . . Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman representing her debutante daughter, Peggy, who had to miss the party as she is studying for college boards . . . Anthony Rumbold, of the British Embassy, Mrs. William Sowers and dozens of others.

HERE AND THERE on a sunny afternoon at the peaceful Chevy Chase Club . . . Mrs. John Sternhagen keeping a watchful eye on her children in the pool . . . Prince Hohenloe having a workout on the tennis court with the pro. The Hohenlohes have given up their trip to California . . . Margot Lee, District tennis champion, arriving at the court to play the semifinals of the club tournament . . . Carroll Morgan watching the play . . . Marian Shouse and Mrs. Walter White having a farewell mint julep before the latter left for California . . . and loads of pink and white young people golfing on the beautiful links.

THERE'S NO MONEY in peace these days, alas. The many societies for the prevention of war have begun to lay off as many of their workers as they can possibly spare. Many have their headquarters in Washington.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock have opened Ker Avor, their Newport home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Laird Dunlop 3d, the latter's sister, Mrs. Oliver Mallory Walker, and Mr. Walker have returned from a stay at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Walker and their three children, Betsy, Anne and Mallory, will go next week to Rehoboth, where they have taken a cottage for the season. Mr. Walker will join his family week-ends.

Col. Frank M. Kennedy, Air Corps, U. S. A., and Mrs. Kennedy, with their daughter, Elizabeth Louise Kennedy, have arrived from Sacramento, Calif., and are at the Fairfax before planning a more permanent residence. Col. Kennedy has been assigned to duty in the office of the Chief of Air Corps after commanding the Sacramento Air Depot. Mrs. Kennedy is a sister of Mrs. White, wife of Col. Andrew J. White, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Brown Mirick have issued invitations to the wedding reception of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Brown Merick, to Charles Leo Dugan, Jr., on Saturday at 4:30 at 314 Newark street.

Mrs. Albert Raiss, of New York, and her young daughter, Suzanne, are visiting the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Peyser, at their home in Chevy Chase.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MISS ELIZABETH WILBUR, of Warrenton, who was graduated with honors last week from the Cathedral School, has arrived at her home in the hunt country. One of the debutantes of the season, she bids fair to be very popular.

Miss Wilbur is the daughter of Mrs. Frederick Haserick, of "Loretto," near Warrenton, and of the late William Wilbur, of Warrenton and Philadelphia. She is a younger sister of Miss Jane Wilbur, who is so well known in the hunting sets of Virginia, Maryland and Camden, S. C. Miss Elizabeth Wilbur will attend parties in the hunt country, Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia during the coming season. Her mother and step-father will entertain for her later on in Warrenton.

DR. JOSEPH MAYBANK, of Charleston, S. C., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Poindexter Montague at their home, "Melmore," Middleburg. Dr. Maybank is the son of Governor Maybank, of South Carolina.

The Montague home was the scene of a quiet wedding recently when Mrs. Joseph Hume, of New Orleans, and Col. William E. Simms, of Lexington, Ky., motored to Middleburg from Washington and were married by the Rev. D. Campbell Mayers. Mrs. F. H. Clavert, of Washington, cousin of the bride, came down to Virginia with her, and the only others at the wedding were Mrs. Montague and her two sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gwynne Tayloe, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Littleton, jr. After the ceremony, refreshments were served at "Melmore" and the couple left by motor for White Sulphur Springs for several weeks. Later they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Montague, who are cousins of Mrs. Simms.

Americans Urged To Read Constitution

Mrs. William Leetch, D. A. R. State Chairman, Warns in Radio Talk Against Being Casual in Patriotism

A review of the Constitution and the first ten amendments—The Bill of Rights—was urged upon every citizen yesterday by Mrs. William D. Leetch, State chairman of National Defense Through Patriotic Education of the District D. A. R. She spoke on a broadcast over Station WMAL, in observance of Flag Week, and warned Americans to "stop being casual" in their patriotism.

"Only with understanding of Constitutional provisions and safeguards, will come reawakened appreciation of the privilege of living under the Stars and Stripes," she declared.

"The flag represents the living Nation—the American way, our kind of civilization, our remarkable progress under the Constitution, which has made us the happiest, most prosperous nation on earth. It represents the 'do or die' spirit of America and the great cornerstones of the Republic, freedom, justice, equality and humanity. We are great, not alone in the vastness of our territory, but in the righteous, God-fearing principles upon which our Republic was founded," she said.

"There is a desperate need for holding tightly to what we have. Women must take time out from their everyday chores, even at personal sacrifice, to become acquainted with the programs and of the reds, pinks, and yellows. They must actively assist in turning the searchlight of fact and truth upon this menace. Even those who once scoffed at the disclosures of the Dies Committee, investigating un-American activities, are now serious listeners in the face of Trojan horse successes abroad.

"Women are heavy investors in America. We spend the largest portion of earned income, we have savings accounts, we have investments and life insurance, but more than all else, we have a primary investment in America in our homes, our husbands and our children. When all we love and hold dearest in life is at stake, can we afford to be idle? The national crisis is a challenge to all of us. The country needs leadership. It is an opportunity and the citizens' responsibility.

"The Daughters of the American Revolution ask you to act as responsible citizens of a still free republic, for the defense of the United States of America, to outlaw the Communist Party, found by the Dies Committee to be a 'foreign conspiracy masked as a political party,' remove it from the ballot; register international organizations; provide for fingerprinting and registering of aliens, and the deportation of alien criminals not now deportable. This much the American people can do to show that they will no longer permit this particular 'fifth column' to parade with legal status in the United States.

"Our women want every precaution taken to really defend and protect our country and its people. We believe that the primary and most important arm of any national defense program is the morale of its people and the integrity and solvency of its government. If we are to have a real national defense, our first step should be to discard alien theories—to clean house at home, to have more pro-Americans fighting for Americanism. The mild and gentle Saviour of Mankind said, 'He that is not with me is against me . . .' He did not compromise—we will not compromise."

J. C. R. S. Meets At Miss Askin's, Plans Dance

The Washington Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society of Denver, met last night at the home of Miss Ruth Askin, 627 Allison street, to start plans for its annual donor dance to be held next December 8.

Miss Marion Ostrow, general chairman, will be assisted by Miss Hilda Friedman, program and publicity chairman; the Misses Marian Barker, Ruth Askin and Ruth Isaacson, prizes; Mildred Schwartz, telephone committee; Ann and Lillian Kaufman, luggage and blanket club; Evelyn Davis, ways and means; Vea Goldberg, accounts.

Junior Alliance Maps Plans For Summer Red Cross Work

Plans for Red Cross work during the summer were discussed yesterday afternoon at the annual luncheon for the Junior Alliance, held in the empire room of the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. John R. Phillips took office as president, succeeding Mrs. Jay P. Conger.

The members of the alliance which has devoted much of its work to philanthropy since it was organized two years ago, expect to form a Red Cross unit in the fall. In the meantime, during the summer months, they will do individual work. Within the last ten days, they have made 16 garments for refugee children.

The club has made donations to Children's Hospital and Metropolitan Police Boys' Club and, as its chief project, has given assistance to needy children in Thomson School. It provided 15 cots, and 40 blankets for the school this year and 80 bottles of milk daily for the lunch periods.

Mrs. Frederic Newburgh, president of the Housekeepers' Alliance by which the junior group was sponsored, was guest of honor at the luncheon. Mrs. William H. Hessick, jr., the founder and honorary president, also was present.

New officers, in addition to Mrs. Phillips, are Mrs. Clifford Stephens, first vice president; Mrs. Daniel C. Wathey, second vice president; Mrs. Wyrth P. Baker, third vice president; Mrs. Carlton C. Duffus, secretary; Mrs. Albert Wendell Davis, chaplain, and Miss Annie Lee Chisholm, historian.

Committee chairmen announced by the president include Miss Ruth Madden and Mrs. Yvonne Knapp, cochairman of public welfare; Mrs. Hessick, chairman of publicity; Mrs. Baker, ways and means; Mrs. Albert Davis, membership; Mrs. Roland Dulin, art; Mrs. Woodson T. Birthright, American home Mrs. Martha Williams, education; Mrs. Knapp, flag and national defense, and Mrs. Hessick, chairman of resolutions and revisions.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

SUNDAY, as guests arrived at the Arts Club, many having come from the British Embassy, where they made their contributions to "Bundles for Britain," I stood in the peaceful garden and looked beyond the rose-covered wall at an American flag waving above a nearby building.

I thought back to the time the historic old house, now occupied by the club, served as the Executive Mansion for President James Monroe, while the White House was being repaired of damage caused when the British set it afire in the War of 1812. But I did not hate the British. I remembered that human rights and freedom were at stake then for our little Republic in the New World—and how freedom triumphed.

Today, human rights and freedom are at stake for the whole world and Great Britain and France stand in defense of them. I recalled again that, after dark days, when even our Capital was invaded, freedom was won. And what was then a defeat for the British, but a victory for a righteous cause, presages success for them and their Allies today. That old clubhouse had a reassuring message.

OLD RETAINER—Turning from contemplation of world events and their significance, I enjoyed the garden with its red-brick wall and flagged paths. There was also Jerry, who has kept the Arts Club free from mice for the last 13 years. He blinked complacently and washed his face in deference to the occasion—but he said nothing, for he lost his "meow" through some throat difficulty in kittenhood. He looked the veteran that he is and maintained the dignity befitting an old retainer in such an establishment.

Mrs. Mary Louise Burford, who is beginning her thirteenth year as hostess at the club, watches over Jerry with real concern if he doesn't eat or appears to be feeling his age.

She knows all the stories about the old clubhouse and only regrets it does not have a good ghost. Some years ago there was a rocking chair that rocked when nobody was in it (so the colored servants said) and that was the best evidence of a ghost the house has ever boasted, but since the rocker has been replaced by an upright chair, there just isn't a sign left.

Pioneer Women To Hold Party Today

The Goldie Meyerson Club of the Pioneer Women for Palestine will hold a luncheon and garden party at the home of Mrs. Morris Pollin, 4821 Colorado avenue northwest, at 12:30 this afternoon.

Park View Club Closes Its Season

Forty Attend Luncheon-Bridge At Rixey Mansion

The Park View Woman's Club closed its season yesterday with a luncheon and bridge at the Rixey Manor, Arlington, Va.

About 40 members and guests attended. Honor guests were Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edward T. Perkins, who founded the club in 1923, and Mrs. Ellis Logan, who organized it as president of the District Federation at that time.

Mrs. Logan is regarded as the Park View Club's "mother" and the members always remember her with flowers on Mother's Day.

Mrs. William O. Hancock, the club president, was attending a family reunion in Detroit and was unable to be present. Mrs. A. H. O. Rolle, first vice president, presided in her absence.

Other officers, all of whom were elected last season for two-year terms, are: Mrs. Thomas Faris, second vice president and luncheon chairman; Mrs. Waugh P. Heygster, recording secretary; Mrs. William O. Gale, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Martha Kirby, treasurer; Mrs. Lawrence Murray, parliamentarian.

The tables were decorated in green and white, the club colors, with candy bouquets as favors. Accordion numbers were played by Mrs. Warren Wagner, a member.

The luncheon ends an active season in which the regular meetings have been held on the second Tuesday evenings, with programs on various subjects. Mrs. Faris is chairman of the program.

Other committee heads are Mrs. George Jones, literature; Mrs. D. Edward Clarke, education; Mrs. George W. Evans, art; Mrs. Rolle, ways and means; Mrs. John McKay, bridge; Mrs. L. E. Felton, philanthropic; Mrs. Gale, publicity; Mrs. Ruth E. Stitt, hospitality; Mrs. George Dalwick, visiting committee, and Mrs. Thomas H. Naylor, membership.

The club has a limited membership of 55 and a waiting list.

Overseas Unit Gives Dinner

Flag Week was observed last night by the Washington unit of the Women's Overseas Service League with a dinner meeting at the Dodge Hotel. The national president, Miss Ruth McClelland, who is a member of the unit, was among those present.

The unit president, Miss Hazel Nielson, presided at the business meeting and Mrs. Virginia Armistead Nelson, chairman of the patriotic committee, presided at the program.

Featured on the program was the presentation of an award to Miss Nora Lee Orndorff, teacher of the fifth grade at Addison School, for her teaching of Appreciation of American Citizenship. She was given the unanimous vote of the judges and last night spoke briefly, outlining her plan of instruction in this field. The award was a year's membership in the Elementary Principal's Association.

A framed picture of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence, the gift of Mrs. Wallace W. Chiswell, was presented to Miss Elsie E. Green, principal of Whittier School, which was chosen as the one in which a number of teachers had the most interesting programs in Appreciation of American Citizenship.

Miss Ann Singleton, publicity chairman of the unit, read "The American's Creed," by William Tyler Page.

This was the last meeting for the unit before the national convention at which it will be hostess here June 29 to July 4.

Safety Education Camp for Patrol Units Indorsed

A safety education camp for captains and lieutenants and other members of the Boy Patrol was indorsed yesterday by the board of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers at its June meeting.

The congress, of which Mrs. C. D. Lewis is president, will if necessary assist in the payment of the camp fees for boys whose parents are unable to do so. The students will go to one of the Police Boys' Club camps and will be trained under the supervision of the safety advisory council of the American Automobile Association.

The board also made a contribution of $25 to the Stephen A. Kramer memorial fund, $1,000 of which will be used for a portrait of the late Washington educator, and interest on another $1,000 for a scholarship to Wilson Teachers' College.

New chairmen appointed were Mrs. Edward Koegel, editor of the News Letter; Mrs. Henry Lipscomb, publications; Mrs. Thelma Richardson, record book; Mrs. T. A. Martin, fifth division representative, and Mrs. Van Lippard, seventh division representatives.

Sorority Alumnae To Attend Picnic

Mrs. Earl F. Fowyer, 410 Columbia street, Falls Church, Va., will entertain Washington Alpha Gamma Delta Alumnae Club members and their families at a pic at her home tomorrow.

Mrs. E. L. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. J. H. Nelson, Mrs. Lytton Boyle, Mrs. E. S. Leland and Mrs. Lloyd Sykes will be cohostess.

Hundreds Seek Jobs With Defense Advisory Commission

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Offices of the National Defense Advisory Commission, in its second week of organization, already turned away several hundred applicants for jobs.

The jobs, a spokesman said yesterday, are not open now, and under present plans for the organization, will not be open for some time.

Present guides in answering job requests are these:

The advisory commission is planning to operate with a small central staff and draw on existing organizations within the Government for special services. Legal work, officials said, will be handled for a while by the Treasury's legal staff. Other agencies already set up will be called on for research and information facilities.

Most of the central office force will be built up from Civil Service personnel. As a result, officials said, nearly all job applications are being routed to the Civil Service Commission.

Members of the defense commission are bringing in highly placed men and women from outside the government service to key posts in their organization.

Among the new staff members, it was learned, is Miss Caroline Ware, social scientist, writer, and teacher, who will be assistant to Miss Harriet Elliott, commission member in charge of consumer protection.

Miss Ware served as consumer ad the old NRA staff. She is co-author, with her husband, Gardiner C. Means, of "The Modern Economy in Action," and also worked with him on a report, "The Structure of the American Economy" prepared by the National Resources Committee. She is associate professor of social economy and social history at American University.

Three others have been shifted from their jobs in the Government service to key places in the commission.

Robert Horton, Washington newspaperman, is serving as information director, on leave from his post as information director for the Maritime Commission. Horton was Washington correspondents for the New York World-Telegram before joining the Maritime staff.

Col. James H. Byrnes, executive officer for the Assistant Secretary of War, and Capt. A. B. Read, assistant to Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, have been detailed to represent the War and Navy departments in the office of Edward R. Stettinius, jr., commission member in charge of raw materials.

The Senate yesterday gave a double boost to War Department employes with passage of amendments to the Sheppard bill for speeding national defense which would give them time and a half pay for overtime, and insure their holding on to protection of the Lloyd-La Follette act.

The amendments were introduced by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and accepted by Chairman Sheppard, of the Military Affairs Committee.

Spokesmen for employe organizations, which have fought proposals to raise the Lloyd-La Follette act provisions for the defense program, applauded the Senate action.

Crushed by Truck, D. C. Employe Dies

The coroner's office last night was investigating the death of Ernest Griffith, colored, 49, of 1514 B street northeast, who died at Providence Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Saturday when he was crushed by a truck at the District incinerator.

A District employe, Griffith was said to have been directing a truck into the disposal plant when the accident occurred. The truck was operated, police said, by Albert Mathis, colored, 19, of 124 N street southeast.

Lieut. George Darnall, chief of the homicide squad, said the death would not be classified as a traffic fatality and probably would be termed accidental.

Hole Cut in Jewelry Shop Window; 4 Watches Gone

Employing a glass cutter, a thief trimmed a neat hole in a jewelry store window early yesterday and escaped with four wrist watches valued at $66.

Policeman J. F. Gawan, First Precinct, discovered the hole about 4 a. m. at the Hughes Jewelry Co., 503 Fourteenth street northwest. The opening, he said, was just large enough to permit the entrance of an arm.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Eat All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Dear Dad,

Tomorrow is Father's Day and I just want to tell you how much I-----

In the simple trusting eyes of an adolescent boy, there is no man in the world quite like his Dad. None so kind—so generous—so endowed with manly virtues. To shatter his boyish illusion by the unwise and intemperate use of liquor is a cruel blow no thoughtful father would ever wish to inflict on his son.

Repeated often, it can change the course of a boy's whole life. For youthful ideals are fragile—easily twisted and destroyed. Any man—especially any Dad—who cannot drink wisely and moderately owes it to his family—his son—not to drink at all.

The House of Seagram once again selects Father's Day as an appropriate time to repeat the message we have expressed so often in the past—"Fine whiskey is a luxury—one of the pleasures of life to be enjoyed only in moderation—never at the sacrifice of life's necessities—nor at the expense of another person's happiness."

Guard Principles of Free Worship, Farley Urges Conference on Religious Liberty

Group Expresses Views on Social Security, Other Topics

Declaring that tolerance, goodwill and understanding form an "indestructible bond" among Americans, Postmaster General Farley last night urged safeguarding of the principles of freedom of worship.

His message was read at a Constitution Hall mass meeting climaxing the Nation-wide Conference on Religious Liberty, which in earlier sessions at Calvary Baptist Church asked President Roosevelt's recall of Myron Taylor from the Vatican, and expressed views on conscientious objectors, war, social security and other vital issues.

The Taylor appointment drew sharp criticism last night from Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of The Christian Century, who warned that it violated the American Constitution in that "it created a relationship between the Government of the United States and a particular church."

"In the Ambassadorship to the Vatican, the processes of the state are interlocked with the official processes of the Roman Catholic Church," he said, charging that "this is an unconstitutional relationship."

"Acts as an Ambassador"

"Mr. Taylor was appointed as an ambassador. He was received as an ambassador. He acts as an ambassador and describes himself as an ambassador. The United States now has formally effected diplomatic relations with the Vatican. That this was accomplished without the consent of the Senate only adds flagrancy to the fact that it exists."

Also speaking last night were Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Rabbi Louis L. Mann, of the Chicago Sinai Congregation. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, presided. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, general chairman of the Emergency Committee on Religious Liberty, sponsors of the conference, also spoke. Choirs of Calvary and First Baptist and New York Avenue Presbyterian Churches sang.

Mr. Farley, whose letter was read by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, wrote that "the preservation of religious liberty is a matter of conscience and the patriotic duty in which I believe Americans of all faiths may find a common meeting ground."

"Intolerance Is Malignant Disease"

"The present plight of Europe has taught us that intolerance is a malignant disease," he said, "which, if unchecked, may develop and expand into a challenge of violence against the most cherished principles and institutions of mankind. Intolerance, in the beginning, may be directed against a single group, political, racial or religious, but it never ends there. Those who direct these forces of evil soon find new victims for their savage purposes."

Referring to the pride of his party for the part Thomas Jefferson played in drafting the Constitution and Bill of Rights, Farley said Jefferson profoundly sensed society's obligation to humble men and women who spend their lives at manual labor, then added:

"Jefferson also realized that without liberty of conscience and worship, no individual could be free to achieve the highest purposes of human life."

Declaring that "lesser matters tend to fall into obscurity in times of peril and upheaval like the present, the Cabinet member expressed the conviction that, "without sacrificing individual convictions on the sacred question of divine worship, it is the duty of all of us to pursue the path of tolerance, good will and mutual understanding in our relationship to other people. I think we have this as an indestructible bond between us."

Seminar on Church and State

Concluding, he wrote of his sincere and earnest hope that the conference would "sustain and nurture the noble purpose you have in mind—the preservation in full vigor of the fundameental principle of religious liberty."

Adoption of the resolution regarding the Vatican mission came following a seminar on chaurch and state, when Dr. David A. Muzzey, of Columbia University, scored the mission on the grounds of being irreconcilible with freedom of conscience—basis of America's religious theory.

A request that the Government respect religious convictions of those who object to all wars or to some wars, and also try cases of conscientious objectors by a civilian tribunal was embodied in a resolution emanating from a seminar discussion on war, led by Dr. Rowland Bainton, of Yale Divinity School.

The same resolution asked that students with conscientious objections in schools and colleges where military service is compulsory be permitted alternative service carrying the same credits.

The conference went on record as opposing the amendment of the Social Security Act so as to include churches within its operation. It was emphasized that the petition was made "while indorsing the extension of the benefits provided through the Social Security Act to all other agencies and workers desirous of its coverage."

The conference also urged that the religious bodies of the country be urged to become more actively interested in the spiritual welfare of those in service of our national defenses, including CCC enrollees.

George Washington U. Awards 70 Honors to School Leaders

George Washington University last night awarded 70 honors for scholarship and campus leadership in traditional class night exercises held in the university yard.

Today June week activities reach their culmination when 700 students will graduate at the 119th commencement ceremony in Constitution Hall at 8 p. m. The honorary degree of Doctor of Letters will be conferred upon Felix Morley, editor of The Post.

Alumni achievement awards will be made to Helen R. Carloss, special assistant to the United States Attorney General; Ida May Lind, director of District elementary school education; Dr. William J. Mallory, professor of medicine; Edwin A. Schmitt, engineer; Theodore W. Noyes, editor-in-chief of the Evening Star; Wilbur J. Carr, former Assistant Secretary of State. The status of professor emeritus will be conferred upon Dr. Mallory, Dr. George B. Jenkins, Dr. William B. Mason, and Prof. Anna Pearl Cooper.

The major prizes distributed last night are as follows:

ABC Board Confused, Sets New Hearing

Row Over Petitions And Misunderstanding End 2-Hour Session

After two hours of arguments over a petition for a beer license for Morris Ostrow, 106 Thirteenth street southeast, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday stated "we're all confused" and "let's start over again." June 25 was set for an entirely new hearing.

Opposition led by A. D. Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, and Irving A. Lehman, secretary to the official board of the Epworth Methodist Church, had presented two sets of petitions with a combined list of protestants totaling 275. One of the lists was headed by the words "Class B liquor license," which the applicant's attorney, Albert Levin, said was "misleading." He contended, as did his own petition, that a Class B license was for off-sale of beer and light wines and not "liquor."

After this confusion was straightened out, Calvert said he was not opposed to Levin's petition but Levin said he was opposed to Calvert's and Lehman's petition. Whereupon Lehman came into the argument and said Calvert "could not speak for me" and that he was opposed to Levin's petition.

By this time, board members had their heads together and said, "we've had enough." All petitions and testimony was ordered to be "put away in the safe," and the new hearing date was set.

Ostrow operates a grocery store at 106 Thirteenth street southeast, and was denied a beer license March 22, 1939.

Keystone Board Adopts Program

Asks Underpasses For Dupont and Scott Circles; Sen. King Speaks

The advisory board of the Keystone Automobile Club, holding its final session of the year, last night adopted its annual program.

The meeting was held at the home of Mark Lansburgh, 3111 Idaho avenue northwest.

The program, to be submitted to a referendum of the membership, includes:

Underpasses for Scott and Dupont circles.

Recording of automobile liens.

Opposition to all moves for decentralizing the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Disapproval of a provision in the personal property tax on automobiles giving no credit on old cars to purchasers of new ones.

Street name signs visible at night.

Support of additional appropriations for snow removal.

Ask Uniform Signs

Opposition to use of reflector arrows requiring right-side traffic at street car loading platforms.

Uniform, readable traffic signs.

Straightening, widening and improving of Rock Creek Park roads used for through traffic.

Elimination of the unfit driver by requiring reporting of all accidents involving death, personal injury or property damage.

Opposition to unreasonable parking restrictions.

Playgrounds be made available throughout the year.

Support of all safety education measures.

Opposition to additional gasoline taxes not used for highway and traffic projects.

In his annual report to the board, George Keneipp, Keystone Club secretary, quoted Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, that "there has been no appreciable reduction in the number of adjustments made," despite the publicity given traffic ticket fixers.

King Fears Nazi Victory

Senator William H. King, who has been a member of the Senate District Committee since 1918, and is now chairman, told how he had seen Washington built into a beautiful Capital. "Washington should be made even more beautiful," he said, "but the progress must be steady, because as the demands for improvements increase the tax burden will grow."

Visibly troubled by the European crisis, the Utah Senator digressed to declare that "a victory for the Nazis will mean the United States will lose a large part, if not all, of its foreign trade."

"A Nazi victory," he said, "will leave us isolated, and we will have to live within ourselves." He left early in order to prepare for Senate action today on defense taxes.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, who has just been named head of the accident investigation bureau, termed it a "prevention bureau," and said that he planned no wholesale arrests. "We believe the people will comply voluntarily," he asserted.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer revealed that if the District accident rate continued as its present rate the year's record would show 300 fewer personal injuries and 30 fewer deaths as against last year. Compulsory automobile inspection, he said, kept 3,000 unsafe cars off the roads last year.

A plea for adding the driver's photograph to his permit as a means of preventing fraud was made by M. O. Eldridge, assistant traffic director. Other speakers were Maj. Brown, Inspector William E. Holmes, head of the traffic division; Francis Gillin, National Capital Parks superintendent; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, and William S. Canning, Keystone engineer director.

Took a Dip and a Tip

Outraged residents in the McKinley High School area were foiled again last night in their efforts to quiet and clothe youthful swimming enthusiasts who had been splashing through the school pool after hours in their "birthday suits."

Last night the indignant complainants were betrayed by a loud radio, tuned into short wave. At 10:27 p. m. the police dispatcher ordered a No. 12 scout car to the scene. At 10:27 the half-dozen boys and girls in the pool heard the broadcast.

At 10:30 the last swimmer disappeared, dressing hastily as he ran. At 10:32 the scout car appeared. The pool was dark and deserted.

Mrs. Donahue in N. Y.

Gifts of flowers and candy were still arriving at Doctors Hospital yesterday for Mrs. Woolworth Donahue, who underwent an operation there about two weeks ago. But Mrs. Donahue was not there to receive them. She left the hospital Sunday for her New York home.

Dairy Company Violated Labor Act, Suit Says

Southern Dairies, Inc., Named in Action Filed By U. S. Agency

Administrator Philip B. Fleming, of the Wage-Hour Division of the Labor Department, in a suit filed in District Court yesterday accused Southern Dairies, Inc., 60 M street northeast, of violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, and sought an injunction to enjoin the firm from violating the act.

The company has filed and refused to make, keep and preserve the records of persons employed and of the wages, hours and other conditions of employment, the suit charges. It was further stated in the suit that records kept by the concern were knowingly false in material respects concerning hours worked.

Administrator Fleming declared that Southern Dairies has continually violated the act and intends to do so unless enjoined by the court. The firm has subsidiaries in Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida.

From October 24, 1938, through October 23, 1939, the company paid employes at less than 25 cents an hour, and from October 24 to the present time has been paying less than 30 cents an hour, the suit contends. Failure to pay corrected wage rates and to compensate employes at the rate of time-and-a-half for labor in excess of 44 hours a week up to October 23, 1939, and to compensate for hours in excess of 42 since that date was also listed by Col. Fleming.

Bicyclist Hurt As He Hits Door Of Parked Car

Thrown from his bicycle when he struck the open door of a parked car, Ralph Lechner, 17, of 5105 Seventh street northwest, suffered a brain concussion last night. He was treated at Casualty Hospital. The car owner, according to police, is Melvin Edward Wright, 33, of Marbury, Md.

Also injured in traffic mishaps yesterday were:

Victoria Kloepfer, 50, of 2800 Connecticut avenue, who was struck by a car driven by James D. Stubbins, 51, of 3029 Klingle road northwest, as she was crossing Connecticut avenue. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for a skull fracture.

Betty Taylor, 29, Arlington, Va., who while crossing East Capitol street was struck by a car driven by Albert L. Snyder, 42, 741 L street northeast. She suffered multiple bruises and an injury to her left leg. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Jews Observe Festival Of Weeks

Rites Commemorate Moses' Reception Of 10 Commandments

At sundown yesterday candles were lighted in Jewish homes here to usher in the Festival of Weeks which commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mount Sinai.

Against the background of the troubled international situation, people in synagogues today will find special significance in accounts of the establishment of the moral law, thousands of years ago, it was pointed out yesterday.

Adas Israel Congregation at 9:30 a. m. today will hold a service typical of those in other synagogues. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz will read from Exodus about the Ten Commandments and will give a sermon.

For the orthodox, the observance extends to sundown Thursday. Tomorrow morning at memorial services in synagogues, special prayers will be said for the peace of the departed.

Rabbi Metz pointed out that the observance has a double significance, for it also commemorates an agricultural holiday of the time when the people of Israel lived on the soil and brought the first fruits of the harvest to the temple.

He explained that the festival gets its name from the fact that it is "a week of weeks"—that is, seven weeks—after the Passover.

A devout member of a congregation here yesterday said that the festival has much meaning for the present day in the fact that with the receiving of the Ten Commandments the Jewish nation was formed on those principles, rather than on a battlefield.

In Jewish homes it is customary for dairy foods to be eaten at meals during the festival. Flowers and ferns have been carried to the synagogues for decoration.

Parade to Open V. F. W. Meeting

A parade of 16 brass bands and 25 units of former service men, civic organizations and other patriotic groups will march up Connecticut avenue tonight to open the District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' twenty-first encampment.

The parade is sponsored by the Cleveland ark Business Men's Association.

Miss Alice Lorraine Johnson, of 3070 Foxhall road northwest, 1940 beauty winner at Woodrow Wilson High School, will be queen of the parade, which will start at 7:30 o'clock at Macomb street and proceed out Connecticut to Nebraska avenue, thence to Woodrow Wilson High for a public memorial service.

$16,000 Asked To Keep 60 In Glenn Dale

Funds Sought To Halt Release Of Patients At Sanatorium

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan to request an additional $16,000 for the Glenn Dale Sanatorium after acting Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger reported recent action by the Budget Bureau in curtailing the institution's 1941 budget would result in releasing 60 patients.

Dr. Seckinger met yesterday with the Commissioners and reported the present population at the institution had reached 670 patients, although a $214,000 appropriation contained in the supply bill would only care for 610.

In a memorandum to the Commissioners, Dr. Seckinger said:

"I wish to ask whether the Commissioners desire us to discharge 60 tubercular patients at the end of this month, or whether it is desired that we request a deficiency appropriation at once to restore the amount of the reduction."

The Budget Bureau had reduced the appropriation for maintenance at Glenn Dale from $238,000 to $214,000, on the premise of an estimated daily average patient load of 610. Dr. Seckinger said, however, starting with December, the patient load had increased "considerably."

At the same time, the commissioners acted favorably on a request by President Roosevelt to set a 44-hour work week for all classes of employes at Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale. The order becomes effective on July 1.

In a letter dated June 1, the President wrote Commissioner Hazen that a study conducted by the Bureau of the Budget disclosed a lack of uniformity in the hours of civilian employes in the hospitals of the Federal Government. The President said some of these employes "work more, while some work less, than a 44-hour week."

He urged the 44-hour week should not include time off for meals, "on-call" or standby duty, "officer of the day" duty in excess of the regular duty period, or duty required in emergencies.

Edward Finn's Son, 5, Drowned In N. J. Pool

Jack Finn, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finn, formerly of 7308 Georgia avenue northwest, was drowned last night in a Highstown (N. J.) pond, the Associated Press reported.

The boy was reported to have wandered away alone from his grandparents' home and fallen into Etra Pond. The Finn family left Washington last week after the boy's father was released from Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a stomach ailment. Edward Finn formerly was manager of the Golden Star Valet Service and for several years was in the Hecht Co. advertising department, neighbors here said.

'The Mortal Storm' Will Jar You With Its Power

Star Cast Does Bottome Story Full Justice; New Bill Opens Today at RKO-Keith's; This, That and the Other About the Theater

ANY AMERICAN who ever has entertained feelings of reluctance toward support of our national defense program will find overwhelming evidence in its favor in "The Mortal Storm," opening Friday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the Phyllis Bottome book presents the most rational and, therefore, the most powerful indictment of Hitlerism that ever has found its way to the screen. No wonder the author was completely satisfied with it!

BELL

Although he never appears on the scene and not even his voice is heard, Hitler is the dominant figure in the play. The action is initiated in a college town in the Alpine south of Germany in 1933, immediately before the Third Reich and the Fuehrer's ascension to the chancellorship, and then goes on to depict the consequences of the totalitarian "ideal" upon the lives of a learned non-Aryan professor and scientist, the members of his family and their friends. Seldom is the film permitted to express itself in terms of extreme physical violence. Indeed, it seems to lean over backward, in a manner of speaking, to achieve a sane and wholly admirable conservatism. The psychological impact of the picture's bitter and tragic developments is all the more irresistible on this account.

Miss Bottome's forceful story of the family persecuted for the courage to defend its own ideals of freedom of thought, speech and action, is magnificently played by a cast that is led by Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Irene Rich and Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya.

Frank Borzage's direction is such that the drama desks left yesterday afternoon's preview screening silent and profoundly moved. Perhaps some of us were just a little frightened by what we had seen. Nobody had anything to say against the defense plans.

If what the American public wants in the present state of the world is escapist drama, the producers of "The Mortal Storm" hage ignored the "trend" and gone to the opposite extreme. They have made free use of the name of Hitler and have pulled none of their punches. Nor does "The Mortal Storm" bear the taint of "propaganda" drama, in the usual sense. Its factual disclosures evade the stigma of hair-trigger ranting by providing intervals of romance, gayety, pathos and tragedy that are both enthralling and sound. I cannot too heartily recommend that everyone but the ostriches among us immediately place "The Mortal Storm" on his must list.

In response to numerous inquiries, the impressive speech delivered by Thomas A. Edison—in the person of Spencer Tracy—in "Edison, the Man," current on the Capitol screen, is not a verbatim quotation of any address ever made by the "Wizard of Menlo Park." It is, instead, an embodiment of the spirit of many of his utterances, contrived by Scenarists Talbot Jennings and Bradbury Foote to illuminate the character of their pivotal figure. When Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, son of the great inventor, previewed the picture in New Jersey, he was so impressed by the patriotic value of his father's ostensible words that he requested a copy of the exact speech used on the screen—which, of course, was immediately granted.

If "escapist" entertainment is what you want at the moment, it will be available at RKO-Keith's Theater, beginning this morning. A swiftly-paced comedy of marital entanglements is what you will find in "My Favorite Wife." It opens today, with Cary Grant, Irene Dunne, Gail Patrick and Randolph Scott involved in the predicaments of a young man who found himself with too many wives, by at least one.

Word leaks out that Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins, who so long and so successfully have presided over the destinies of the Little Theater, have made it two by taking over the Little Theater in Baltimore for their joint operation. In celebration of this twin-city expansion, they are entertaining the drama desks of the Washington and Baltimore press at luncheon today in the Variety Club in Baltimore. Nice going is what I always say.

Mrs. Sam Jack Kaufman, wife of the guest musical conductor at Loew's Capitol Theater, on Sunday night presented her husband with a new baby daughter, born in Doctors Hospital. Perhaps that is what ailed the Sabbath evening overture—if anything did. The baby was born while Sam Jack was right in the midst of it. Unless Mrs. Kaufman has changed his mind, their daughter will be named Carol. Congratulations.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 11.

When Fred Allen caught sight of those yellow slacks Jack Benny's been sporting about town, he said, "I always knew that guy had a streak of yellow, but I didn't know it was all wool and a yard wide." Will our Hollywood hecklers, with a mailed fist, give Allen a reception on his air show! I wouldn't miss it for all the tea in China.

HOPPER

The best ambassador of good will we could possibly send to South America is Bing Crosby, and he doesn't go single handed. The Lin Howards and David Butlers make the trip with him. Boy! To be a centipede tucked away somewhere in their luggage—and wouldn't my friends like to send me that way, too! Wow!

Alex MacDougall writes: "Those of us who admire Garbo are skeptical about her doing Madame Curie. She isn't physically suited to it. Why not Leontovich? Here is a gifted artists who could make it truly memorable."

You've heard about dirty linen being washed in public? Well, Universal's thinking of buying a laundry to wash theirs. Deanna Durbin and 25 girls wear 12 starched petticoats each, which have to be laundered and starched stiff at the end of each shooting day—all for "Spring Parade." Girls look cuter when they take 'em off.

They hand picked gravel for a road sequence in the same picture, because Deanna has to work there in her bare feet. And in spite of everything, she's suffering from cinder feet.

The John Carradines were so proud of a famous painting they'd just bought and hung in their living room. It was a rather voluptuous lady in the nude. Their 3-year-old looked at it and said, "Daddy, hasn't that lady got any bedroom so she could undress alone?" Painting is up for sale.

Joel McCrea, rancher—not actor—is on a cattle buying spree . . . You never get away from the smell of grease paint. Actor Ricardo Cortez directed for a couple of years, but he's right back there acting again. He acted as guide for poor little rich girl, Barbara Hutton, too.

George Sanders, who's played the man you love to hate ever since he did "Lloyds of London," now becomes the man you'll love to love in "Foreign Correspondent." But if he wants to reach that star rating which he so eminently deserves, because he can act rings around most of those he's had to support, I'd advise him to take a vacation. So far, he's done seven pictures since January, 1940.

Last year an independent producer and minister made a picture called "The Great Commandment," which was so good Darryl Zanuck bought it so he could add a million or two and remake it into a super-colossal with Ty Power starred. Now, it looks as though "heaven can wait" while Ty does "The Californian," which is a remake of "The Mark of Zorro."

Costars of Mighty Screen Play

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriet Parsons, producer of Screen Snapshots.)

Hollywood, June 11 (INS).—Twentieth Century-Fox jumped the gun and took up Dean Jagger's option today, although 20 days still remained before a decision had to be made. That means Dean must be okay as Brigham Young. He'll next have an important spot in "The Californian," a new version of "The Mark of Zorro," with Ty Power in the Fairbanks, sr., role.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Cotton, Cotton, who's got Joe Cotton? the lad who played the lead opposite Katharine Hepburn in her hit play, "Philadelphia Story," arrived in Hollywood Saturday and seems to be the most-sought-after young actor in town. Garson Kanin would have given him the second lead in "They Knew What They Wanted," if Orson Welles hadn't claimed priority rights. Welles pleaded that he'd written his entire picture, "Citizen Kane," with Cotton in mind and needed him for the top spot. Now, I understand, Arthur Hornblow wants Cotton for Colbert's "Arise My Love," Joe Pasternak wants him for Dietrich's "Seven Sinners," and George Cukor wants him for the film version of "Philadelphia Story." Hmmm! I must take a look at this young feller.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Roy Rogers is going to be a papa; William Dieterle had to halt shooting on "The Man From Fleet Street" because Nigel Bruce was so unnerved by a letter from David Niven, saying he was leaving for France immediately; Mary Brian back in town after a year in the legit; Fred Allen and Jack Benny lunching amicably at the Beverly Derby and planning the next stage in their "feud"; Lew Ayres, home from South America, had his first date with the much-dated Elyse Knox.

That's all today. Here's a new tag: See you tomorrow.

New York, June 11.

STOCKTON RUSH is the descendant of Benjamin Rush, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He lives at the family homestead in Chester Valley, Pa., near Valley Forge . . . Rush recently decided to employ a dusky retainer whose name is Washington. The new employe is a faithful, industrious man, but the one unmatchable quality which induced Rush to hire him was the realization that he, whose ancestor was a famed Revolutionary War patriot, could now tell his man: "Washington, go right down to Valley Forge and fetch me a case of beer."

THOMAS MITCHELL, the screen actor, accompanied Larry White to Jack & Charlie's, where they sat in the downstairs room Jack Kriendler, the proprietor, greeted them and then expressed admiration for the tie White was wearing . . . "You like it that much?" said the pleased customer. "Then you can have it. Here it is. I present it to you." He removed the tie and gave it to Kriendler, who thanked him and then went upstairs to add it to his collection . . . A half hour later one of the cafe's managers approached White and informed him that he'd have to leave, because no gentleman may sit in Jack & Charlie's without a tie . . . White left.

HELEN HAYES and Charles MacArthur were invited to join the new "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies." They wired: "We gladly join. Americans will sleep better at night with the knowledge that our country is supporting her first line of defense on the Somme River with all she has, short of the blood of her sons." Bob Sherwood gave $5,000 to this committee and is writing its ads . . . Fay Bainter, who returned to look at Broadway last week, was envious of but one thing: the way Ray Bolger does an exit step.

CONTRARY to the belief which was prevalent in Washington, Fulton Lewis didn't assist Col. Lindbergh in his last speech . . . Lewis had invited Lindbergh to lunch, but the flier begged off, explaining: "I'm going to sit down and write this speech myself" . . . Before the broadcast, Lewis again volunteered to help. He offered his experience in radio technique and suggested that Lindbergh furnish an outline of what he wanted to say and permit Lewis to adapt it into a form suitable for radio presentation. "No, thank you," Lindbergh told him. "This is my speech, and what I have to say his to be said in my own way."

AFTER AL JOLSON and George Hale produce the Eddie Davis-Matt Brooks musical, "Hold On to Your Hats," Hale will produce, in the fall, a new one by the same authors, called "Boys Will Be Girls" . . . After the rehearsals, Jolson was told that all the seats for the opening week in Detroit had been sold. He ordered the choicest bottle of wine available and invited his crew to drink. "This champagne," Jolson warned, "costs $40 a bottle, boys" . . . "Yeah," Davis reminded, "but don't forget—you get a nickel back for the bottle."

WHEN THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE studies the reports submitted by its census-takers one of the distressing items—reducing the education average of citizens—concerns the schooling received by Gypsy Rose Lee . . . When the census-taker questioned Miss Lee about her education, Gypsy confided: "I went to school for two weeks" . . . The investigator wrote the answer: "Five weeks" . . . "But I said two," Gypsy reminded . . . "I know," he explained, "but it's against the law to have less than five."

THIS IS HOW Walter Hampden secured his screen role in Cecil de Mille's new movie about the Northwest Mounted. Hampden, who had been offered the role of an Indian, received a wire from de Mille, asking what color his eyes were. The movie is done in technicolor, and de Mille heard disquieting reports that Hampden's eyes were blue—pretty, but not quite recognized in Indian tradition . . . Before replying, Hampden went to the Senz Studio on Fifth avenue and asked Eddie Senz, makeup expert, whether he could change the color of his eyes . . . Senz took him to the Better Vision Institute, which is supported by the entire eyeglass industry. After long and trying experiments, fitting colored contact lenses over his eyes, the proper ones at last were fashioned for the star—who thereby was able to win the role he coveted.

Early Hot Wave Upsets Screen Star

Hollywood's first heat prostration victim of the year, premature as it may seem, was recorded recently when Gloria Dickson, lovely blonde emotional star featured in "I Want a Divorce," collapsed while working in a difficult scene on location at Monrovia.

Miss Dickson was required to stand in the sun, hatless, for a lengthy series of "takes." When she fainted the thermometer on a nearby farmhouse was registering 95 degrees. The actress was treated by a company nurse in attendance and ordered home by Director Ralph Murphy.

650 Graduate At Catholic U. Finals Today

Alumni Head Calls Lust for Power Great World Evil

The 650 students of the 1940 graduating class of the Catholic University of America yesterday were told by Andrew P. Maloney, president of the New Jersey chapter of the Catholic University Alumni Association, "You have a right to ask why whole nations of free peoples relinquish their God-given liberties and, like sheep, follow into slavery the commands of ruthless anti-Christian dictators."

In answer to his affirmation, Maloney stated that the true answer lay "in the desperate struggle among men for power, material goods and personal glory."

The occasion was the fifty-first annual class day of the college, held in McMahon Hall on the campus at 4:45 p. m., which preceded commencement exercises, to be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the university gymnasium.

Twelve awards were made by Bishop Corrigan, eight of them to residents of the District. They were:

$25 to the outstanding senior in the college of arts and sciences to Ernest L. Unterkoefler, of Philadelphia.

Three plaques presented by the Engineers' Club to Charles E. Kaman, 5231 Third place northwest; John W. Deegan, of Ridgeway, Pa., and Lester M. Lewis, 3219 McKinley street northwest.

Membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers to Robert V. Viner, 707 Kentucky avenue southeast.

Medal and membership in the American Institute of Chemists to John T. Eiker 3d, 828 Allison street northwest.

Junior membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers to Nicholas P. Sarelas, of Saco, Me., and a volume to Charles E. Chaney, 1707 Kilbourne place northwest.

Medal and volume presented by the American Institute of Architects to Edgar C. Beery, jr., 900 Sheridan street northwest, and a volume presented by the institute to George H. Taureka, Lyndhurst, N. J.

Certificate presented by the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences to Charles H. Kaman, 5231 Third place northwest. Certificate presented by the institute for preparing and presenting the best lecture at student branch meetings to Joseph A. Ellis, 2902 Tenth place northeast.

Volume presented to the outstanding senior student of the French language in the name of the French Ambassador through the Washington Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French to Brother Basil P. Dougherty, F. S. C., of the Brothers of Christian Schools.

High School Graduates YOU CAN TRAIN IN ONE YEAR FOR A CAREER IN

RADIO & TELEVISION ENGINEERING

1 Yr. DAY COURSE -- 2 Yr. EVENING COURSE PREPARES for JOBS in PROFESSIONAL FIELD

New developments in this growing industry have created new opportunities for trained engineers. Engineers in more than 300 broadcasting stations are now using CREI training—proof that CREI is recognized for its high calibre of training. The intensive course is the practical equivalent of the final 2 years of college engineering. Shops and "labs" are equipped with the most modern radio and television apparatus. The outstanding faculty is headed by E. H. Rietzke. Next term begins in September — preparatory Summer home study material now without extra charge.

SCHOOL OPEN FOR INSPECTION DAILY

Graduates and parents are invited to inspect the school facilities. Personal appointments gladly arranged at any time. Illustrated catalog given on request.

McQUINN SMASHES SINGLE TO SCORE TWO MATES IN SEVENTH YESTERDAY AND CLINCH DEFEAT OF NATS

Nats Saved From Cellar After Loss to Browns

A's Defeat Puts Griffs Back in 7th

Washington Loses, Drops to 8th Place, But Moves as Macks Drop Night Game

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

The Nats moved into the American League cellar yesterday, with no thanks to the St. Louis Browns, but they moved right out again last night, thanks to the Chicago White Sox. It was all a bit involved, but one item was very plain: The Nats took a 5-2 beating from the Browns.

That defeat sent the Nats careening into a tie with the Athletics for eighth place, but in the cool of the evening they emerged again without flexing a muscle. Because up in Philadelphia, in a night game, the Athletics got themselves licked, 5 to 4, by the White Sox, and the Nats rocketed back to seventh place.

The pitcher the Browns beat yesterday was Dutch Leonard, of all people. Leonard, seeking his eighth straight victory incurred his fifth defeat. He was strangely wild—for Leonard—and ineffective, especially in the seventh inning when the Browns broke a 1-1 tie by knocking him loose from four game-winning runs.

Excusable Defeat

It was an excusable sort of defeat for Leonard. Back in the fifth inning, he reinjured a painful leg injury while covering first base, and limped obviously from that point.

The Browns achieved their fifth straight success—their longest winning streak since 1936—by translating their eight hits and two of the five walks Leonard allowed, into runs. The Nats outhit the Browns, 9 to 8, if that is any consolation, which it is not. With men on bases, the Nats succeeded only in letting down the whooping 2,000 customers and letting themselves down into the cellar.

It was an inspiring sort of ball game until that seventh inning. The game was rocking along at 1-1 figures, and it was a duel between Leonard's knuckler and Kennedy's fast ball. But in the seventh Leonard lost his effectiveness and the ball game.

The first thing that happened in the seventh was a single by Bob Swift, and Leonard did not appear to be in particular distress when Kennedy forced Swift at second on an attempted sacrifice. But from that point, the Browns went into high-speed production.

'Strategy' Fails

Roy Cullenbine whacked a two-bagger into the rightfield corner to move Kennedy to third, and then Leonard issued a deliberate pass to Rip Radcliff—uncensurable strategy, inasmuch as Radcliff happens to be the league's leading hitter. But George McQuinn emptied the bases of two of their occupants with a single to center. Leonard moved

Boston Holds Lead; Finney Gets 4 Hits

10,000 See Indian Mound Star Lose 4th In 12 Starts; Cronin, Williams Hit Homers

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 11.—The aroused Red Sox chased mighty Bob Feller in short order today as they protected their slim American League lead by defeating the Cleveland Indians, 9-2, before a 10,000 crowd.

Subjected to his fourth setback in 12 starts, Feller gave the Stockers seven of their 11 hits and five runs. They clinched the game in the third when Lou Finney singled, Ted Williams tripled and Manager Joe Cronin contributed his third homer of the season.

Feller yielded to Joe Dobson after the fifth, who gave Williams his fifth homer, a drive into the right-field stands with two aboard in the seventh. Finney sparked the Boston attack with four hits, including a pair of doubles, out of five tries.

Jack Wilson gave the Indians seven hits, three of them to Rollie Hesley, including a single, a double and a homer, that ended the Indians' scoring in the fourth inning.

Bobby Doerr, who had been sidelined by a pulled muscle, returned to action, along with Finney and the spiked Jim Tabor. Doerr was moved into the leadoff position and he greeted Feller with a two-bagger and added a single later. Williams took over Double X's specialty and drove in four runs.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

On the word of Gabe Menendez, who is completely uninterested in the Bill McDowell-Kid Cocoa bout aside from the fact that he is the matchmaker and will get a cut of the gate receipts, it will be a crowd-pleasing battle at Griffith Stadium on Monday evening.

POVICH

Matchmaker Menendez, who will be richer for every dollar that comes through the gate, is making a frenzied effort to sell the fight to Washington fans. Already he has sold it two parties: (1) Promoter Joe Turner, whom he persuaded to post a $750 guarantee for McDowell, and (2) the District Boxing Commission, whom he persuaded to license Washington's first white vs. colored bout.

"Kindly do not forget," Menendez was saying, "that Phil Furr turned down this fight with the Cocoa Kid. It was supposed to go to the winner of the Furr-Mamakos fight, but after Furr won that one, he wanted no parts of Cocoa Kid. You know what Furr told me? He said, 'I'm not fighting Cocoa Kid. Why should I? I can knock out the likes of Mamakos every day in the week, but I don't belong in there with clever boxers. I couldn't hit Cocoa Kid with a handful of buckshot.'"

And so left high and dry with the Puerto Rican under contract and nobody to fight him, Menendez scurried about and lariated McDowell with the lure of a $750 guarantee, which is twice as much as that young man had ever received for a fight in Washington.

"Who is McDowell, you're asking?" queried Menendez impatiently. "He's had four fights in Washington and he's never been licked here. He was good enough to beat Furr not once, but twice. Down in Texas, where he used to be the cow-milking champion, the people always said he was a better fighter than Lew Jenkins, and Jenkins is the lightweight champ. We aren't tossing Cocoa Kid in there against a push-over. McDowell will do all right."

Menendez will do all right, too, if his record of matchmaking is any criterion. He has staged seven fight cards for Joe Turner, and only once has he turned up with a bad fight. After every other matchmaker in the vicinity had tried and failed to get Furr and Mamakos in the same ring, he succeeded. For the first time in a year, Turner was able to show a sizable profit on a fight show.

Like most fight managers (that's what Menendez was), he always fancied himself as a matchmaker, and a few months ago he chucked his stable of fighters to make matches for Turner. For the first time in his life, he is being paid a salary. Since he was 15 years old, Menendez had subsisted on tips that he earned as a bell-hop, as a clubhouse boy in the Florida State Baseball League and from percentages of his gypsy stable of fighters.

"The fight racket is no place for a fellow who has a trade or can earn a regular salary otherwise," says Menendez, philosophically, but for a guy like myself who doesn't know any better, it's all right. Guys like myself get to like it. I get just as much of a belt out of seeing two fellows I have matched make a crowd-pleasing fight as I used to when one of my own fighters took a duke. If McDowell and Kid Cocoa don't give a good show, I'll want to run away and hide."

He has his own ideas about the paucity of good fighters in Washington. "It can be a good fight town, but it can't produce many good fighters, because it will never have a good proportion of fighters. It's a white-collar town, and most of the boys step into nice-paying jobs. They don't have to fight to make a living. It's different in the industrial towns.

"Down in my town of Tampa, the kids are crying to be fighters. We used to pay a dollar a round for the preliminaries, and we could have our choice of 50 kids for every fight. If they had a scale like the $5 a round they have to pay in Washington, 10,000 Tampa kids would turn fighters overnight.

The Cocoa Kid was one of the lads fighting around Tampa 10 years ago when Menendez was struggling to hustle some of his own boys onto the town's fight cards. "I remember him when he came to Tampa from Puerto Rico. He was a scrawny kid with the fastest left hand I ever saw. But he was glad to get $20 for his fights. Colored boys, the best of 'em, were never paid more than that."

The Cocoa Kid has come along, it seems. He has won all of his last 40 fights. He's ranked as Henry Armstrong's No. One challenger both by the National Boxing Commission and Ring Magazine. He's a 6-foot, 140-pounder, which might account for some of his success. These are just a few of the things that Menendez would like to have known to the customers before the fight, because Menendez has his eye on an underslung, banana-colored, eight-cylinder job which he hopes to own after the fight.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Joe DiMaggio may have been named the most valuable player in the American League. But, in more ways than one, Bobby Feller is "it."

CONSIDINE

"I've insured Bobby for $100,000," Alva Bradley, president of the Indians, was telling us the other night in Cleveland. "In fact, I've got him insured for $105,000. I carry a straight $5,000 on every one of my players, and Feller's included in that group. The $100,000 extra is straight life insurance."

We asked him just how close Cleveland came to losing the great young pitcher. Bradley took out a handkerchief and rubbed it across his suddenly damp forehead.

"Closer than anybody realized," he mused. "In fact, I had made up my mind that he'd be tossed on the open market. We had pulled a boner in the way we handled him, and the Judge would have been perfectly right in declaring him a free agent. When the Judge was reading his decision—it was a long son-of-a-gun—Jake Ruppert leaned over my shoulder at the meeting and said, 'You've lost that ball player.' But just about the time the Judge got around to the last page he cleared his throat and said, 'However . . .' and finished up by letting us keep him."

We asked Bradley what Feller would have brought on the open market.

"Nobody ever will know, but it would have made Benny McCoy's bonus look like cigarette money. I know this much: I've since met a banker who had arranged to turn $250,000 in cash over to one of the rich Eastern owners. The fellow had that much ready to give Feller for signing. In fact, he had sent him $1,000—just to get the kid's promise not to sign with any club until he heard from him—in case the Judge cut him loose.

"I'm convinced that the bidding might have gone to $300,000. And that's an amazing tribute to that kid, when you come to think of it. A year before that, he hurt his arm on a tractor down home and we brought him up to Cleveland so that our trainer could work on him. We put him in our concession department at the ball park. Well, his arm came around nicely. But as a matter of fact we really didn't know what kind of pitcher he was. You see, he never had pitched a single game for one of our farms.

"But finally we got a chance to use him. The Cards came in for an exhibition, and Steve O'Neill put Bobby in there—as a kind of gag, and to see what the kid would do. You know what he did, of course. He faced eight Cards, I think it was, and struck out seven of them. Steve couldn't even hold him behind the plate. We let him go East with the team on its next trip, to be near the trainer and as a kind of reward, and darn if they didn't put him in as a relief pitcher against Washington. It broke the rule, of course. But nothing was said, so they started playing him regularly and he began setting those strikeout records. Yep, when you look at it coldly, we deserved to lose him. And thank God we didn't. It would've turned baseball upside down."

Feller will make about $40,000 this year, Bradley reports. "That's not all salary from us," he explained. "Bobby's got a candy bar named after him now, and he gets a cut of the sports equipment which uses his name. Isn't bad for a kid of 21, a kid who never had too much at home. He's a great boy, too, never let anybody fool you about that.

It came as something of a surprise to the Cleveland fans to read last week that the "Yankees had virtually stolen Feller's shirt—with a steal home and a steal second at crucial moments during the game. Feller had cured himself of most of his weakness for letting base runners get the jump on him. And he seemed to have corrected the last iota of weakness when Ben Chapman joined the Indian team. Chapman—the moment he became a colleague of Feller's instead of an antagonist—told the kid how he and others were stealing so easily on him.

"Whenever I could see daylight under your left foot I knew you were going to throw to the batter, and not try to catch me. So I'd head for the next base." With all the painstaking passion for perfection which is invested in Feller, Bobby practiced for weeks in front of a mirror and finally broke himself of this habit that was telegraphing his pitching intentions. Perhaps the Yankees have discovered some other tip-off. But Feller is going to find out what it is, someday, and lick it, for there doesn't seem to be a particle of doubt that he is the greatest thrower of our generation. We wonder where the Indians would be today if the Judge had stopped reading his long decision that day—stopped reading at the point that caused the late Jake Ruppert to sympathize with Bradley.

And we wonder, too, where the Red Sox would be—for Tom Yawkey was the man who was ready to START bidding at a quarter of a million.

Sandy Boot Takes 'Cap At Aqueduct

By the Associated Press

Aqueduct, N. Y., June 11.—J. B. Partridge's plodding veteran Sandy Boot, which recently made up a world of ground to finish third in the 1-mile Harlem Claiming Stakes at Belmont Park, found the mile and a furlong of today's Short Grass Handicap much to his liking and scored an easy three-length triumph. Taking the lead in the long stretch, the gelding handled his 122 pounds in admirable fashion to pay favorite players $4.70 for $2. The event was for Class "C" horses.

Sidney Gooch's Short Distance performed as if she would prefer a snorter distance. She managed to hold on to second position by five lengths, while Mrs. C. O. Iselin's Strabo took the show in front of Aluminio and Harry's Pal. As this was the first time the mile and a furlong distance has been used with the remodeled track, Sandy Boot's 1:51 2-5 automatically established a track record for the 9 furlongs.

The weather improved as the afternoon wore on and the mutuels play on the first five races—$328,888—was less than $2,000 under the opening day's handle for the same number of events. The attendance today was 8,829, as compared to yesterday's 9,060.

Gehringer, Bartell, Campbell Hit Homers as Detroit Again Stops Atley Donald's Streak

By the Associated Press

New York, June 11.—The Detroit Tigers interrupted Atley Donald's triumphal parade again today with a 6-to-1 victory over the New York Yankees that boosted the Bengals into second place in the American League.

It was the Tigers who stopped Donald last August when he had set a rookie record for 12 consecutive victories. After a late start this spring he had won two games in a row before they blasted out a barrage of three home runs to lick him today.

For five innings the sophomore right-hander and Tom Bridges, Detroit's veteran curve ball expert, engaged in a razor-edged pitching battle, but Donald weakened and Bridges didn't, holding the world champions to five hits.

The Tigers went out in front in the third with a run on two singles and an error and stayed there. But the game wasn't wrapped away until the seventh when Charley Gehringer and Dick Bartell homered. Bruce Campbell added another round-tripper in the eighth.

Another Net Foe Bows in 3 Sets To Miss Jacobs

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 11.—For the second successive day, Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., polished off her opponent in straight love sets today in the Pennsylvania and Eastern States Tennis Championships.

The Nation's second-ranking woman tennis player defeated 16-year-old Janet Middleton, of Norristown, Pa., in a 25-minute match to advance to the third round. Yesterday, Miss Jacobs eliminated Louise Moessner, of Allentown, Pa., in a 30-minute match.

Pinch Homer Defeats Macks For White Sox

Solters Comes Through In 9th to Decide Night Contest by 5-4 Score

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 11.—A home run by Pinch Hitter Julius Solters with one on in the ninth inning gave the Chicago White Sox a 5 to 4 victory over the Athletics in a see-saw game before 10,144 at Shibe Park tonight.

Chubby Dean, pinchhitting for Ed Heusser in the ninth for the A's, doubled and reached third with one out, but Wally Moses popped out and Bob Johnson fanned to end the game.

Johnson slammed his tenth homer of the year with one on in the first to put the A's ahead. The White Sox battered Lee Ross in the fourth to tie the score on consecutive singles by Mike Kreevich, Taft Wright, Luke Appling, a base on balls and Eric McNair's fly.

Appling's two-bagger and Larry Rosenthal's single put the Sox ahead in the sixth. Then Edgar Smith, the Sox pitcher, weakened in the eighth. Johnson's double, Frank Hayes' infield hit and Dick Siebert's single tied the score and brought Johnny Rigney to the mound. Sam Chapman fanned, but Appling threw wild on Al Brancato's grounder and Hayes scored to put the A's back in the lead until Solters broke up the game.

Two More 'Outsiders' Upset Favorites in City Net Tourney

Jim Farrin, Stocklinski Eliminated

Garnett, Donovan Gain Quarterfinals With Smith, Shore On Edgemoor Courts

By Jack Munhall.

Brushing aside favored opponents with a dispatch that must have brought another blush to the collective face of the rankings committee, a pair of former collegians yesterday reached the quarter-final singles round of the City of Washington tennis tournament at Edgemoor to place a total of four "outsiders" in line for the title.

Gaining the round of eight and joining the Harvard supset combination of Bill Breese and Dick Murphy, who Monday accounted for a pair of seeded favorites, were Yelverton Garnett, 210-pound Virginia alumnus, and Ramey Donovan, slender former captain of the Fordham net team who moved here last spring.

The 6-foot 4-inch Garnett, emulating Breese's fireball tactics which eliminated Buddy Adair, blasted fourth-seeded Jimmy Farrin into an overwhelming 6—1, 6—0 defeat, while the steady Donovan impressively licked sixth-ranked Ray Stocklinski, 6—4, 7—5.

Stars vs. Dark Horses

Thus, in the quarter-final encounters today it will be four seeded stars and as many "dark horses." Upholding the prestige of the seedings committee will be top-seeded Barney Welsh, second-seeded Hugh Lynch, fifth-seeded Alphonso Smith and eight-seeded Frank Shore. Smith and Shore were victorious yesterday, defeating Billy Turner, 6—1, 6—1, and Ed Mather, 6—4, 6—4, respectively.

Each brigade will be missing a member come the semifinals, however, for one quarterfinal match pits two of the outsiders, Murphy and Breese tomorrow while another scheduled today demands the elimination of either Welsh or Shore. The other two quarterfinals today pair off Lynch and Garnett, and Donovan and Smith.

Without trying to predict the outcome of the quarter finals one can expect that three of the unseeded upstarts with view the semifinals as spectators. Welsh of course, figures to beat Shore by any score he chooses. Lynch appears much too steady for the erratic Garnett, and Smith should down Donovan after a close battle. Ditto for Murphy over Breese. The upset hunch is Donovan to surprise Smith—especially should Smith be an iota off his game—for the former Ram star and high-ranking Eastern junior player has all the strokes. Moreover, he's steady as the stage door johnnies.

Climax in 2d Set

The Breese-Murphy match originally scheduled for today was postponed until tomorrow so that Breese and Mather might meet Welsh and Dooly Mitchell in quarter final doubles at 5:15 today.

The Donovan Stocklinski match, bringing together two consistent strokers, was yesterday's feature. Not spectacular, it nevertheless was good, exciting tennis with Donovan forcing the pace and Stocklinski gobbling up more ground than Hitler in his effort to make returns.

Climax came in the second set when Stocklinski, fighting desperately to avoid defeat, overcame a 5-1 deficit to square the set, only to drop the two decided games as Donovan summoned up his last ounce of reserve to put over timely placements.

Errors Costly

Farrin, off his game, suffered perhaps the most one-sided defeat of his local tournament career as Garnett drove him from his preferred position at the net with scorching passing shots and then stormed the barrier himself to score repeatedly on overhead smashes.

Smith, again relying on his peculiar looping forehand for which few local players have the answer, had little trouble with Turner, who made the mistake of trying to take the net. Those tactics were made to order for Smith, the former national boys' singles and doubles titleholder and national junior champion, and he passed Turner so frequently that the latter must have been dizzy from watching the balls go by.

Shore, none too impressive himself, took advantage of his opponent's many errors, to beat Mather in a hard-fought struggle. In the final analysis it was his dipsy-doodle forehand skimmer which turned the tide.

SINGLES RESULTS

Third round—Alphonso Smith defeated Billy Turner, 6—1, 6—1; Yelverton Garnett defeated Lieut. James Farrin, 6—1, 6—0; Ramey Donovan defeated Ray Stocklinski, 6—4, 7—5; Frank Shore defeated Ed Mather, 6—4, 6—4.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS

Quarterfinal round—4 p. m., singles, Smith vs. Donovan; Welsh vs. Shore; Lynch vs. Garnett.

DOUBLES

Third round—5:15, Breese and Mather vs. Welsh and Mitchell.

Washington Roller Team Ups Lead

Scoring three points in the first open house period, Washington's Pawnees roller derbyists went into a lead they never lost as they defeated the Chicago Aztecs, 15-9, in a battle-marred game last night at Riverside Stadium.

The victory gave the District of Columbia contingent a 12-10 lead in games and also increased its lead in points scored to 298 to 284 for the Chicagoans.

One of the largest crowds of the roller derby season saw Esther Nails, newcomer to the Aztecs club, run wild as she paced her team to a terrific struggle before losing. Bernice Abar was her particular enemy last night, and several male members of the Washington team also came in for rough tactics at her hands. She wasn't ruled off the rink, but her mate, Charlene Phillips, was sent to the showers after 14 minutes in penalties.

District College Net Trials Open Today on Navy Courts

Annapolis, Md., June 11.—Leading college tennis players from 13 institutions constituting the third district area were converging on Annapolis today for the district's three-day elimination tournament, leading up to the national finals. The Naval Academy will be the fourteenth entry in the tourney and the matches will be contested on the courts of the naval reservation, beginning tomorrow and continuing through Friday.

Georgetown and George Washington universities are sending players to represent the district area and other universities sending entries are Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana and Mississippi. Art Hendrix, Naval Academy coach, has perfected arrangements for the tourney.

A series of singles and doubles matches will be contested daily to select four top singles players and two doubles teams for the national collegiate finals which will be staged on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club, of Haverford, Pa., during the week of June 24. Entries were to be received until late at night. Among the late entries announced by Hendrix are Joe Davis, of Vanderbilt, who won the Southeastern Conference championship last year; Henry Watts and Meyer Gelfand, of Georgetown.

Some of the leading players to compete will include Joe Hunt, Navy and former Davis Cup player; Charles Rider, ace of the strong North Carolina team; Dave Johnson, of George Washington, and Louis Brownstein, University of Miami. Virginia will be represented by its entire team, led by its star, Landon Buchanan, while Maryland will have Doyle Royal.

Bobby Bruns Signs To Meet Winner Of Rassle Bouts

Bobby Bruns, recognized in 12¾ States, portions of Ninth street and the northern tip of Labrador as the world's wrestling champion, yesterday was signed by Promoter Joe Turner to waltz with one of tomorrow night's showmen in a "battle for the crown" June 20 in Griffith Stadium.

One of the four lads taking part in the cofeature dramas tomorrow night at the ball park will get a chance with Bruns. Jack Hader meets Zim Zam Zum, and Karol Krauser faces the Swedish Angel in the qualifying heats under the stars.

Giants Take Two as Paul Dean Is Star

'Daffy' Hurls 4-Hit Ball; Cubs Lose, 4 to 0 and 3 to 1

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 11.—Paul Dean today came back up the same trail Brother Dizzy plodded down last week by holding the Chicago Cubs to four hits as the New York Giants swept a doubleheader, 4 to 0 and 3 to 1, and closed in toward second place in the National League.

"Daffy" made his first start of the season of the second game of the program and walked the first man he faced. This pass, with a single and an infield out, gave the Cubs their only run of the second game. After the first inning Dean was invincible and he finished unexpectedly strong, retiring 11 men in order in the last four frames.

It was the first National League victory in two years for the one-time star of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was claimed on a draft by the Giants last winter from Columbus, of the American Association. He had worked a total of ten innings in three relief appearance this spring.

Bill Lohrman pitched five-hit shutout ball for New York in taking the first game, his fifth victory against one defeat. He kept the blows well spaced and was never in trouble.

Phils Beat Walters, 4-1, Behind Beck

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 11.—Bucky Walters, who ran up a nine-game winning streak before stopping, extended his losing streak to two today as the Phillies pounded him for nine hits and a 4-to-1 victory over the Reds.

While Walter Beck pitched a steady game for the winners, Bucky got himself into trouble inning after inning and only a perfect throw by Johnny Rizzo from leftfield in the eighth prevented the Phils from enlarging on the score. The long-range strike doubled Joe Marty at the plate on Morrie Arnovich's high fly.

Lonnie Frey scored the Red's lone run in the third. He was hit by a pitched ball and Ival Goodman tripled him in.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Cecil Travis was the standout performer among the Nats yesterday and to him we are awarding the major share of points in the Man of the Month contest:

To Travis, five points because he made two of the Nats' hits, because his triple in the fifth led to the tying run at that point, and because his play on Radcliff's drive in the fifth inning with two on base nipped a rally by the Browns.

To George Case, four points because he made two of the Nats' hits, because his single drove in a run in the eighth, and because his catch of Cullenbine's long drive in the first inning was the fielding feature of the game.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, one point because he drove in a run with a single, and doubled later in the game.

To Buddy Lewis, one point because he handled hard chances flawlessly at third base.

War or Not, English Stage Derby Today

Traditional Race To Be at Newmarket Instead of Epsom Downs

By the Associated Press

Newmarket, England, June 11.—Come parachutists or what-have-you, the wartime version of the traditional English Derby will be run tomorrow, with Lighthouse II, hope of Lord Derby, whose ancestors founded the race, established as a 9-to-4 favorite in the field of 18.

The race will be run at Newmarket instead of Epsom Downs, due to the war racing program. It lacks some of the customary color this year and is far short of the value of peacetime derbies. Ordinarily the classic is worth some $40,000 to $50,000. Tomorrow's substitute will run about $15,000.

Only four horses were backed with any kind of a wagering at tonight's Derby eve callover odds. One thousand pounds sterling was bet on Lighthouse II to win. The second and third choices—the Aga Khan's Stardust, at 85-20, and the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux, at 13-2, were backed by a like amount. Some £700 were put on the nose of Marcel Boussac's Pharatis, a 100-6 shot.

Bentaur, Long-Shot Dream, Pays $212 at Charles Town

33 Bet on J. R. Cale's Gelding in 7th

100-to-1 Shot Leads All Way; Finished 8th In Initial Start; Lone $5 Ticket on Winner

By a Special Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 11.—The long-shot players' dream—the 100-to-1-shot—was a reality today for a few scattered bettors. J. R. Cale's Bentaur, paying a $212.20 mutuel, won the seventh race. Only 33 tickets were sold to win on the 5-year-old gelded son of Minotaur and Prismar. The sales included one $5 ticket, 12 $2 tickets and four $1 across-the-board combinations.

Although well under the record for this track, Bentaur's mutuel was the longest in several seasons here and the hysterical shouts of the lucky ones made them standouts in the crowd of 5,000.

Bentaur had flashed a bit of speed in his previous race and then finished eighth, beaten 15 lengths. In his initial start here, the gelding had stood still when the starting bell came and refused to budge.

Today he went to the front immediately, set all the pace and finished a half-length in front of Bright Light and another two lengths ahead of Dian. Jockey C. Payne, who was unhurt in a spectacular spill here last week, rode the sensational winner.

"There are courses for horses and horses for courses" goes an old turf adage. Miss Warning fits the bill over the local 4½-furlong sprint route. The 3-year-old daughter of Crack Brigade may not be a star on other tracks and at longer distances, but she was something of a champion with Jockey Albert Vessell doing some of the No. 1 Grade A booting.

The filly turned in her fourth victory in five tries at the abbreviated sprint route, all under the guidance of Vesseli. Miss Warning was the favorite at a $5.80 mutuel in a field of seven and turned in time of 0:51 2-5 over a holding track.

R. C. Waple's Hiblaze was second, beaten two and a half lengths. A length and a half farther back came E. H. Titmus, jr.'s Timber Storm to be third two lengths in advance of Trapshot. Miss Warning performed in the colors of W. Amoss.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROSIT, $4.20, $2.60, $2.40; BLUE PRELUDE, $3.60, $3.00; MICROPLAY, $5.00.

PROSIT was sent to lead between horses, took command with bold rush and won well in hand. BLUE PRELUDE, first to get in motion, was forced to come around MICROPLAY and closed gamely. MICROPLAY had keen early speed to go to top and weakened gradually after being displaced. DON GOMEZ was blocked entering stretch. WELSH STAR raced in close quarters along rail. POSTPONEMENT could not reach contention. SAIL BY broke well and could not keep up. DACOTAH dwelt at break.

SECOND RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:01½. Off 3:02. Winner, W. J. Tapp's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROVING EYE, $5.60, $3.40, $3.20; VERITAS, $6.40, $4.00; DIXIE S, $5.20.

ROVING EYE was sent to front in run to turn, opened good lead and was drawing out in easy fashion at end. VERITAS was off in tangle and rushed to contention, but could not threaten leader. DIXIE S raced in close quarters along rail early and showed good effort. JUMELUS showed good effort. HILDUR QUEEN could not reach leaders. CIRCUS LIGHTS was blocked directly after break and shut off in run up backstretch. PRINCE TURLEY had early speed and stopped. LA CANTER showed nothing.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:27½. Off 3:28. Winner, A. L. Leith's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLD SWEEP, $19.40, $10.40, $5.40; SUN SALVATOR, $4.40, $2.80; STONEHAVEN, $2.60.

GOLD SWEEP, going in best form, took command in opening furlong, saved ground to backstretch, was taken out in better going and easily held SUN SALVATOR safe. The latter was under urging from start and showed good effort. STONEHAVEN was held safe throughout. KIRTON was closest to pace to backstretch and tired badly. FIVE-O-FOUR could not threaten. CAMOLA was poorly handled.

Daily Double, ROVING EYE and GOLD SWEEP, Paid $113.20

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:55. Off 3:55½. Winner, Mrs. K. N. Gilpin's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED IDOL, $3.40, $3.20, $2.40; DEAR GRACIE, $23.20, $6.20; NUGGET, $2.40.

RED IDOL, much the best, opened long lead on backstretch and won well in hand. DEAR GRACIE was forward factor from start and held on gamely. NUGGET could not threaten seriously while strongly ridden. MARSHALL A. lost ground at turns. SALBURNE stumbled and almost fell at break and made up some ground. IDLE SCOUT had early speed and tired. OVERBOST and MISS HALLBAR were outrun.

FIFTH RACE (original substitute)—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:22½. Off 4:23½. Winner, B. Bond's b. g. (10), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time 0:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $7.60, $4.60, $2.60; ACE OF TRUMPS, $7.20, $3.40; WAYOUT, $2.40.

SMALL CHANGE, going in best form, took command at once, drew clear of ACE OF TRUMPS and held advantage gamely under drive. ACE OF TRUMPS was hard ridden and had no excuses. WAYOUT had rough early trip, was blocked by ACE OF TRUMPS and faltered. SMALL DEVIL was pinched back early, saved ground and tired in stretch run. CAN BLOOM could not keep up. BREAD KING was blocked on backstretch and failed to recover.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:51½. Off 4:52. Winner, W. A. Moss' br. f. (3), by Crack Brigade—Warning. Trained by A. Young. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS WARNING, $5.80, $3.80, $2.60; HIBLAZE, $4.40, $2.60; TIMBER STORM, $2.20.

MISS WARNING took command after opening furlong, was placaed to intermittent punishment in stretch and held her advantage. HIBLAZE was outrun by winner and TIMBER STORM going to far turn and could not threaten seriously while under strong handling. TRAPSHOT was squeezed back early and closed some ground. CHIDE had no excuses. MISS MAKER was off slowly. VANISHING HOPE was off alertly and faded.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:16½. Off 5:17½. Winner, J. S. Cale's ch. g. (5), by Minotaur—Prismar. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:52⅘.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

This truly is the "Love in Bloom" meeting. There's more romance around these mountains than is to be found on a South Sea island. I know of eight weddings since the start of the 48-day session. The third jockey to take a bride is Willie Kelley, 19-year-old Kingston, Pa., boy. He was "hitched" to Rose Christine Hoff, 20, of Charles Town last Monday night. Jockeys George Witmer and Willie Dufford took the trip to the altar earlier in the meeting. And I could swear I saw Clymene making eyes at the lead pony the other day. Jockey Denny West is glad he stayed here instead of going to Wheeling. Since he made the decision he has been riding winners. West is one of the tallest active jockeys. He stands five feet nine inches and weighs only 110 pounds. His mother is six feet tall and weighs about 140 and his father is five feet eight and weighs 135. West has to watch his diet closer than a movie star. Salads, toast, green vegetables, an occasional steak and coffee keep him wiry and strong. There may be a scarcity of race horses in some sections but not around these parts. I was talking to a horseman about Bel Air and he said that the stables there would be filled as well as those at Timonium. He also said that many horses would be able to get into the entries. He figures that all the purse money to be distributed will not be enough to pay for feed and help for the horses. Jim Pappos, of Winchester, Va., is the No. 1 Benningite of that section. Hagerstown and Cumberland are putting in the "tote" form of betting and will use the Puett starting gate. Brother Harold Bester is busy getting the Hagerstown plant ready for the meeting which follows this.

BILL.

Second race—This looks like a two-horse race between High Aim and Blenethel, and I prefer them in the order named, despite the fact the latter is favored by the weights. Miss Pilgrim, a doubtful starter, could

Dettweiler Barely Misses Tie With Gipe in Federal Golf

First Day Leader Wins Cup With 148

FBI Linksmen Take Melon Trophy For Class A Teams

Jim Gipe's 148 total stood up for individual honors as the annual Federal Golf Association Tournament yesterday at Beaver Dam and the host club member received the J. Edgar Hoover trophy for the championship of the 9 to 4:30 linksmen.

Gipe shot 77—71, 148, on Monday. Billy Dettweiler, representing FBI, gave the Navy Department employe a scare yesterday with a morning round of 74 and an afternoon out nine of 36 but he hit a ball out of bounds on the thirteenth hole and the double-bogey five cost him a shot at the cup as he finished with 76 for 150.

The Andrew Mellon Trophy for the Class A team championship went to the F. B. I. team with Dettweiler's 150 the pace-setter. Carl Betsch had 73, 82—155; C. Beals, 81, 81—162, and Bowler Astor Clark, 88, 79—167.

Maj. McClure Has Low Gross In Bar Tourney

Maj. John E. McClure, of Burning Tree, won low gross with a two over par 74 in the annual outing of the District Bar Association yesterday at Congressional Country Club. The exhibition match between four of the city's leading amateurs and pros found Amateur Champion Ralph Bogart's 71 leading the simon-pures and Beaver Dam Pro Al Houghton's 69 pacing the pros.

Leo Walper "won" the "high score" prize among the pros and he shot a creditable 75. Host Pro Wiffy Cox trailed Houghton by a shot with a 70, while Lewis Worsham, jr., of Burning Tree, had 71.

Malone Posts 74

Bogart topped the 73's of Roger Peacock and Volney Burnett by two strokes, while Charley Malone trailed with a 74, in the amateur scoring. The pros had a best ball of 61 while the best the simon-pures could do was 67.

Worsham and Walper played together and trounced Bogart and Burnett, while Cox and Worsham were partners and won over Peacock and Malone.

Trailing the 74 of Maj. McClure among the Bar members were Ralph Quinter, jr., and T. T. Smith, each with 77.

N. E. Sill Low

N. E. Sill was low net scorer under the novel handicapping system with 95-36, 59, with S. E. Burt, 117-56, 61, and R. M. Gray, 107-46, 61.

The prize for the most consistent golfer went to southpaw Frank Ortman, while L. E. Cox (not Wiffy) was the most inconsistent. The highest score was posted by A. Holland.

Low gross among the judges was a 91 by Samuel Whitaker, while Judge J. P. McMahon had low net, 103-36, 67, with Judge B. J. Laws second, 96-28, 68.

Dempsey Sharpens Up His Fight Weapons

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Jack Dempsey (left), still the real heavyweight king to legions of boxing fans, plants a playful left under the chin of Jim Downing, Atlanta, Ga., promoter after signing in New York for a charity fight with Wrestler Cowboy Luttrell in Atlanta, July 1. The fight may be Jack's first step toward a series of exhibitions in the ring

Dempsey to Spar With Godoy In Work for Atlanta 'Comeback'

Old Manassa Mauler Appears Today At Arturo's Camp; Fights July 1

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, June 11.—Jack Dempsey, preparing for his return to the ring on July 1, will spar one round tomorrow with Challenger Arturo Godoy at the latter's camp in Carmel, N. Y.

Depmsey says, "the workout will do me some good, and I may be able to give Godoy a couple of pointers on how to lick Joe Louis a week from Thursday."

But what's the low-down on the old Manassa Mauler's proposed resumption of leather tossing? Is it just a gag—for publicity purposes?

Jack was sitting in his Broadway restaurant when we put the vacuum on him. He appeared a bit haggard—an aftermath possibly of his separation from wife Hannah and the settlement of a certain business unpleasantry.

Predicts Knockout

"No. It's no gag," Dempsey said. "I'm going to fight a wrestler down in Atlanta on July 1. His name is Cowboy Luttrell. We're matched for ten rounds. We're going to fight with gloves, the lightest ones Georgia officials will permit, and under Marquis of Queensberry rules. I ought to knock him out quick because I can still punch, and he doesn't know how to fight."

But Jack hasn't fought publicly since 1932 when he lost a four-round decision to King Levinsky. And he'll be 45 on the 24th of this month. Under the circumstances, isn't he taking a big chance getting into the ring with a trained athlete like Luttrell?

Thinks He's Tough

"Naw, I'm not takin' any chance," the big fellow said. "This Luttrell must be as old as I am. You know how those wrestlers are—they keep workin' till they're ready for the old men's home. And I know he can't fight because he tried to nail me twice already—once when I refereed one of his bouts at Knoxville and another time at Atlanta. He swings from the floor. He's muscle-bound and slow. All his fightin' is in his head. He thinks he's a tough guy because he's been bullying wrestlers and other referees around the country and getting away with it. Well, he won't bully anybody else when I get through with him."

How come the match was arranged?

Jack explained that Luttrell got quite a bit of Southern publicity out of his Atlanta and Knoxville brushes with Referee Dempsey. In both instances the police intervened before Jack could belt him out. But Luttrell went swaggering through various cities, bragging that Dempsey was afraid of him and that the next time he got Mr. Manassa into the ring as a referee he'd "moider" him.

Dempsey continued, "the Atlanta promoter, Jim Downing, figured it would be a good stunt to let us settle our feud in the ring. He made me a good offer and I accepted it immediately because I don't like any part of this Luttrell and it will be a pleasure to take care of him. I made the provision, however, that the Red Cross must cut in on the proceeds."

Browns Win, 5-2; Nats Back in Celler

two more runs into scoring position with a wild pitch, but he struck out Harland Clift. He didn't strike out Walter Judnich. That young man banged a single through the pitcher's legs and the third and fourth runs of the inning clattered home.

It wasn't until the fifth inning that the Nats came up with a run against Kennedy. Then Cecil Travis led off with a triple to left and was promptly scored by Bloodworth, who singled to right. That run tied the score at 1-1, the Browns having picked up a tally off Leonard in the fourth when the big pitcher walked two batters and pitched a single to Bernardino.

Back in the second inning, the Nats muffed a scoring chance after Bonura andd Travis singled with one out. Bloodworth obliged Kennnedy by striking out, and Ferrell flied out. In the seventh, Bloodworth's double was wasted, and in the eighth the Nats came up with only one run after an auspicious start.

Pinch Hitter Jake Early opened the eighth with a single to right, but Welaj forced him and in turn was forced by Lewis. In an attempt for a double play Berardino pitched the ball into the dugout and Lewis moved to second, from which point Case scored him with a single to center. The rally subsided when Kennedy knocked down Walker's drive and threw him out.

In the ninth, the Nats got two runners on base when Travis walked with one out and Ferrell beat out a slow roller with two out, but in this crisis Third Baseman Harland Clift galloped against the leftfield boxes for Pinch Hitter Sammy West's game-ending foul pop.

Congressional Man Threatens In Seniors Golf

John McCarron Posts 80 to Tie for Third; Leader Boasts a 73

Rye, N. Y., June 11.—The eight-man delegation from Washington, and environs to the United States Senior Golf Championship today produced 60-year-old John McCarron, of the Congressional Club as a threat to the low gross leaders after the first day of play on the Apawamis Club links. McCarron shot 80 to tie for third place.

First-day leader was Findlay S. Johnson, 65, winner of the national amateur title in 1898, who shot a record-equaling 75, a one-over-par round that tied the mark set by Richard Doughty, of Detroit in 1936. Deadlocked for second place with 79's were Fred Haggerson, 56, of Nassau Club, Long Island, N. Y.; Barrow, 55, of Echo Lake, Westfield, N. J., and Bill Hunt, 58, of Houston, Texas.

Tied at 80

Tied at 80 with McCarron were Charles Mason, 56, of Brookline, Mass., and Archie Brown, 59, of South Hampton, N. Y.

McCarron's closest neighborhood rival was William Hinshaw, 72, of the Columbia Club, who went around in 88 on a day when anything under 90 on the rain-soaked course had to be rated excellent. After Hinshaw came Dr. R. A. Kielty, the junior member of the group, at 55, of Congressional, who shot a 90. Dr. Noah Pomeroy, 69, another Congressional man, posted a 91.

Mid-Atlantic Post Entry Deadline Close

D. C. Golfers Urged To Phone in Names To Jesse Dowling

The entry deadline for the thirty-sixth annual Middle Atlantic Amateur Golf Championship expired yesterday without a single Washington entry in the fold, according to Association President Jesse Dowling, of Baltimore.

The tournament starts tomorrow at the Hillendale Club, in Baltimore, with an 18-hole qualifying round to be followed by match play Friday and Saturday.

Only 36 entries had been received from Baltimore, and none from Virginia. Roger Peacock is expected to be among a score or more of post entries from the District. Secretary Dr. W. C. Burr has three names he will phone in tomorrow, Earle Skinker, Ralph Bogart and Buddy Sharkey.

Dowling would like all Washington golfers who desire to play to rush their entries to him today at the Hillendale Club. However, post entries will be accepted on the tee tomorrow until late in the afternoon.

Mrs. Stokes Places 3d In Eastern Golf Play

Cards 86 in Opening Round of Eastern Tournament at Baltimore; Washington Team 2d; Mrs. Lawler Ties for Low Net

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., June 11.—Mrs. Walter B. Stokes, of the Manor Club, placed third in the opening round of the Women's Eastern Golf Association Tournament here today with an 86, 10 over par. Grace Amory, of New York, led with an 80, and Anne Krumbhaar, of Philadelphia, was second with 82.

The Washington team was second with 440 against 439 by the Pennsylvania team. Washingtonians who figured in the team total were:

Mrs. Stokes, 86; Mrs. Myron Davy, Congressional, 87; Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, 87; Mrs. Leo Walper, Capitol, 89, and Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor, 91.

In low net for the day, Mrs. Gordon Alexander 3d, of Elkridge, and Mrs. J. J. Lawler, of Indian Spring, tied with 80s.

Miss Amory, finalist in the Metropolitan championship last week, had a 39, 41 for her 80. She had four birdies on the round, including a three on the eight hole, which is a birdie there even for men's par. Her principal trouble came from straying tee shots, but her chipping and putting kept down the score.

Low handicap players, other than Miss Amory, had trouble scoring on the lengthy Five Farms course. Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former National champion, took a 90, and the only other one-stroke competitor, Jean Bauer, from Providence, had a 92. Miss Alice Rutherford, of New York, a two-stroke entrant, recorded a 98.

National Metropolitan Wins in Bankers Loop

National Metropolitan Bank, defending champion in the Bankers Softball League, lost an 8-7 decision to the Stone Paper Tube nine yesterday. A home run by Mayberry, of Stone Paper, with two men on base in the last inning, swung the tide away from the Bankers.

Twilight Softball League Opens June 19

The Sports Center Twilight Softball League will open its season June 19 with eight teams entered. Games will be played every Wednesday and Friday at 6 o'clock at Edgewood Field.

Delaware Park Record Set By Pass Out

Brandon Entry Wins Montchannin Purse In 1:43 for Mark

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Del., June 11.—Brandon Stable's Pass Out, a bay son of By Pass II and Spree and a candidate for Saturday's $10,000 Kent Handicap, qualified handsomely for the impending stake today when he raced to victory in the featured fifth race Montchannin Purse in new track record time.

Making his own pace and carrying top weight of 120 pounds, Pass Out negotiated the 1 mile and 70 yards at 1:43, clipping a fifth of a second off the old mark for that distance. The veteran Maurice (Moose) Peters had the mount.

Off alertly after a long delay occasioned by the bad deportment of Stagefright, Pass Out took the track immediately and he held sway thereafter, racing by the judges two lengths in advance of J. O. Keene's War Beauty. The latter, away sluggishly, closed fast from the top of the stretch and was easily second best, beating Hal Price Headley's Stagefright five lengths for the place. Son Altesse and Gold Teddy finished in a dead heat for fourth money, a head back of Stagefright. There were seven starters.

Beermen Win Post League Game, 8-3

Reliance Life Nine Loses 6th Straight To Ed Colliflower

Reliance Life's ball team kept its record in The Washington Post Industrial League clean yesterday when it suffered its sixth defeat without a victory, 8 to 3, at the hands of the Heurich Brewers, on the West Ellipse.

For six innings big Ed Colliflower held the Insurance club scoreless while Beer sluggers ran up a 6-to-0 lead. Then a 3-run uprising in the seventh beat Colliflower out of a shutout. In all, however, he gave up eight scattered safeties, including Edmonston's triple.

The Brewers strengthened their lead on first place in the loop with a 13-hit barrage, featured by Murphy's triple and doubles by Knight, Kaufman and Schriverner. Kaufman's record of four bingles in five official times was easily best.

Dillingham Scores 5 Goals as Harvard Wins

Dedham, Mass., June 11 (AP).—Capt. Gay Dillingham scored five goals today while pacing Harvard's polo forces to a 6-4 victory today over the University of Arizona in the opening match of the intercollegiate tournament's consolation round.

The Grimson team was beaten by Army and Arizona bowed to Princeton in Saturday's first-round championship matches.

Bill Ackerman

On Fishing

For the second successive season cobia have made their appearance in the Cape Charles area during the first week of June—just about two weeks ahead of their normal arrival. And, from where with the blues (when we have any in the bay) they work up the western shore of Virginia. In late July and August this great pelagic gamester is taken as far up as Point Lookout.

ACKERMAN

If their arrival is early for Cape Charles, think how much earlier it is to find that they are already on the Northwest Middles. True, none were caught, but Capt. Taft Tippett fishing W. N. Wood and his party, called their attention to one weighing about 30 pounds, cruising around his boat while they were busy pulling in 200 hardheads.

Down Messick way, Capt. Floyd Rollins who might be expected to pick up one, as soon as they arrive in bay waters, is instead, catching channel bass in greater numbers than he has ever before. From 2 to 10 every day he is out, and weighing up to 45 pounds.

There is however, hardly, any fishing point south of the Virginia Capes, where the spot-tails are not being taken in quantity.

Cape Charles, where the big bass arrived at about the same time as the heavy northeaster, was unable to get boats out for more than a week, but since, it is another story. It appears now to be just how many the individual angler cares to land.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Soxman, of Takoma, were a couple of the local anglers to get in on the first of the good going. It was another local angler, J. Herbert Vance, of Hyattsville, who took the honors on the first cobia.

The week-end, for those anglers fishing across the bay—Sharps, Poplar, the Gooses and Diamond Shoals—supplied real hot fishing. Almost as good as the Ridge fleet found on the Middles, but for those of us who fished Holland Point and grounds above, the going wasn't what it should have been.

The joint conference considering the amended Barkley pollution bill meets again today. The House conferees are supporting the Mundt amendment that Senator Barkley is trying to get deleted in accordance with the demands of the lobby of the industrial interests which have in the past polluted more than 70 per cent of the streams of our country. Without the Mundt amendment the Barkley bill is a hollow shell designed by polluters to block passage of actual pollution control legislation.

You remember the two outdoor meetings and picnics of the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League at the Joe Cox farm near Forest Glen, Md., of the past two summers. The third annual comes off today. Transportation may be had from the Fourteenth street entrance of the Commerce Building from 2:30 to 6 p. m. Those using their own cars, take East-West highway, turn left 1 mile at Montgomery Hills.

The Tidal Basin has been producing bass at an almost unbelievable rate since the season opened on Decoration Day. While the average is little over a pound, many weighing up to three pounds have been caught. It is a Post printer, R. C. Finch, who has the top honors with a four-pounder so far in the Charles Stores contest, taken with live bait.

Virginia Fish Commission Sets Limits

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 11.—The State commission of game and inland fisheries reported today that an unusually large number of inquiries had been received and that the sale of licenses had been brisk in preparation for the opening of the bass season in Eastern Virginia on Saturday.

The season will open 15 days later, on July 1, west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Bag limit for large and small-mouth bass is ten a day, 150 a season. The bass must be at least 10 inches. Bag limit for red-eye or rock bass is 15 a day and 150 a season of at least 6 inches in length.

New pike regulations call for the season to run concurrently with that for bass, except in the Nottoway and Meherrin Rivers. The pike bag limit is 20 a day and there is no size limit, all pike caught to be counted as a part of the bag limit.

Betty Jameson And Patty Berg Easy Winners

National Champion Beats Mrs. Winters, 8 and 7, at St. Louis

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 11.—National Champion Betty Jameson set the pace in the first round of the Women's Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament today with a sparkling 8-and-7 victory over Mrs. Bryan Winter, of Dallas.

The San Antonio girl, medalist with a record 73, toured the out nine in 37, had Mrs. Winter 7 down at the turn, took the tenth with a birdie 4 and ended the match on the eleventh by halving it with a 5. Her 37 was one under par.

Rain fell intermittently all day and in early afternoon a windstorm struck the Glen Echo course, but the elements didn't handicap the favorites.

Chubby Patty Berg, the defending champion and former National titleholder, played through much of the storm without a whimper and blasted Mrs. H. H. Silverforb, of Kansas City, out of the meet, 7 and 6.

The University of Minnesota co-ed, seeking her third straight Trans-Mississippi title, was even par for the 12 holes her match required.

Miss Jameson will meet Georgia Dexheimer, St. Louis district champion, in the second round tomorrow and Miss Berg plays Mrs. Mahlon Wallace, five time St. Louis district champion.

One of tomorrow's highlights should be the bout between Marion Miley, comely Lexington, Ky., representative and two-time champion and little Jeanne Cline, 16-year-old Bloomington, Ill., girl who first won national attention by upsetting a couple of veterans in the Western Open last summer.

Middies Change Strokes for Crew Race at 'Keepsie

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., June 11.—Dion Sullivan, of San Francisco, Calif., will replace Frank Cuccias as stroke of the Naval Academy crew for the Poughkeepsie Regatta next Tuesday, Navy's coach, Buck Walsh, announced today.

Cuccias, of New York City, has been demoted to No. 2 in the Jayvee boat, Walsh said. Sullivan has never been to Poughkeepsie, but Walsh feels the middie will give Navy its best chance of winning.

Walsh said four losses did not rule Navy out of the picture next Tuesday. He added that he had great confidence in his varsity boat.

The Navy squad will leave here at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow, hoping to get in a workout at Poughkeepsie late in the afternoon. Twenty-eight men will make the trip.

FBI Beats Naval Air Nine, 5 to 1

Improving its hold on third place in the U. S. Government Baseball League, FBI mine earned a 5-1 decision over Naval Air Station yesterday with Third Basemen Meyers' blow the decisive factor.

With a pair of his mates on base, Meyer blasted the only home run of the game in the seventh to turn a close 2-1 edge into a wide lead for the G-Men. Nichols hurled a 5-hit game at the Airmen and struck out six. His teammates rapped two Air hurlers for nine hits.

Promoter Joe Turner Sends Proposal to Eddie Mead; Expects Gate of $30,000

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez went out on the limb to the extent of $10,000—on paper—yesterday to prove that you never grow too old to dream. They offered Henry Armstrong $10,000 to come to Washington in August to defend his world's welterweight championship.

The idea is that Hammering Hank will meet the winner of Monday night's Cocoa Kid-Bill McDowell fight in Griffith Stadium.

Menedez dispatched a telegram to Fat Eddie Mead, manager of Armstrong, yesterday in Henry's New Jersey training quarters predicting a gate of $30,000 for a title fight and offering Armstrong a privilege of 37½ per cent of the gate.

Two items now block such an arrangement, however:

1. Armstrong first must successfully defend his title against Lightweight Champion Lew Ambers next month.

2. Turner and Menendez must scrape up enough arguments to convince Mead it would be worth his while to fight in Washington.

Menendez yesterday, however, insisted that Mead has "all but given me his word."

New Haven, home of the Puerto Rican colored fighter, rated No. 1 title contender, and Baltimore already have offered Armstrong $7,500 to defend his crown against Cocoa Kid, Menendez claimed.

Basing his predictions on an expected 7,500 turnout for Monday night's 10-rounder between Cocoa Kid and McDowell in Griffith Stadium, Menendez, in his wire to Mead, stated:

"Have Bill McDowell-Cocoa Kid, two leading contenders, boxing here Monday night. Offer winner to Armstrong to defend world's welterweight championship at Griffith Stadium first week in August. Match would draw $30,000 or better. My terms, $10,000 guarantee with privilege of 37½ per cent. Hope you can consider this offer. Anxiously awaiting reply."

Mead and the Cocoa Kid, who has won his last 40 fights, have been trying to get a bout with Armstrong for the title for some time, and the local promoters' hopes hinge on a recent conversation with Mead in New York when he said he would like to come to Washington.

McDowell, who defeated Phil Furr in his last two appearances here, ranks eighth.

B. Steiner Paces Market To 7-0 Triumph

After a season of starring in the public high school series, Central High's Benny Steiner took over the Departmental Baseball League yesterday, leading Center Market to a 7-0 shutout victory over General Accounting Office on the Ellipse.

Steiner was credited with a home run, the only extra-base blow of the game, with a mate aboard, and he also had a single in two official times at bat. In addition, he handled six chances in the field without an error, figuring in one of the Marketmen's pair of double plays.

On the defense it was Pitcher Coe, whose four-hit performance featured Center Market's game. He fanned only one batted, but kept his team of out serious trouble throughout.

Commodities Prices Soar; Tin in Fore

Wheat Advances 2 To 2½ Cents; Other Staples Strong

By the Associated Press

New York, June 11.—Quotations for most big commodities soared in futures markets today as prices chased after rising securities.

War news appeared to have taken a back seat as a direct market influence.

Rubber and tin, prime favorites in the international speculative group, jumped 1 and 2 cents a pound respectively.

Zinc climbed ¼ cent a pound as spot sales mounted. Wool tops added around 2 cents a pound, with buyers still encouraged by recent Government textile buying plans.

Others ahead at New York included copper, hides, silk, cocoa, sugar, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, pulled up to 71.36 from 71.12 Monday, low for the year.

Late Buying Buoys Wheat

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—A late rally in wheat, spurred on by stock market strength and increasing reports of rust affecting the late Southwestern crop, drove prices 2½ cents a bushel higher today.

Wheat started strong, sagged a bit under profit taking, and then dragged through most of a dull session before the last hour rally brought buying orders into the market. Traders were impressed by a 2 cents a bushel advance in Winnipeg prices, attributed to heavy flour sales overnight to Great Britain.

The trade was impressed with reports of black stem rust in late wheat in the Southwest which, if the weather turns off hot following recent rains, may affect the harvest.

Wheat closed 2-2⅛ cents higher than yesterday's finish at the day's best levels, July 83-83⅛, September 84-84⅛, corn ½-¾ cents up, July, 63¾, September 62⅝, oats unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, rye 1⅝-2 cents up, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents advanced.

Cotton Up 19 to 29 Points

New York, June 11 (AP).—Cotton futures climbed 19 to 29 points today while traders optimistically considered Administration preparedness plans and agricultural policy.

Moderate opening losses under foreign selling were soon eliminated when overseas offerings had been absorbed.

A considerable share of buying orders came in for July, which reflected limited offerings and high prices of spot cotton in the South.

Another buying argument was advanced in the belief cotton stored in France was threatened with destruction by the German invasion. In Havre alone, it was estimated, 200,000 bales of cotton were held in warehouses.

Heavy Steel Scrap Rises $1 a Ton

Pittsburgh, June 11 (AP).—Number 1 heavy melting steel scrap advanced $1 to $20-$20.50 a ton today, highest since the price started climbing several months ago when steel makers expanded output to keep up with larger foreign and domestic orders for finished products.

Scrap was scarce despite the higher quotation.

Railroad scrap, a premium grade, advanced in proportion to $21.50-$22.

D. C. Business Reported 6% Above Normal

June 1 Conditions Seen 3% Better Than on May 1

Washington was one of 92 areas in the United States where business conditions showed an improvement in May over the index for April, according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas by Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, Inc., national advertising concern.

Business conditions in Washington as of June 1 stood at 6% above normal, representing a gain of 3% over the standing for May 1. On June 1, 1939, the city's business index stood at 5% below normal.

"Gains in May business conditions far outnumbered losses," the report states, "with the index standing of business activity improving in 92 areas. Seventeen others remained without change, while declines were registered in only 38 areas."

The greatest gains were registered in the following areas: Altoona, Binghamton, Cincinnati, Colorado Springs, Dayton, Duluth, Flint, Fort Worth, Joplin, Kansas City, Montgomery, New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Toledo, Wheeling, Wichita Falls, Wilkes-Barre, Winston-Salem, Yakima and Youngstown.

Local Store Sales Rise

Department store sales in Washington increased 2.3 per cent in May as compared with the same month last year, it was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. For the January-May period, local sales gained 5.3 per cent over the like 1939 period.

The Fifth Reserve District as a whole showed an increase of 6.2 per cent for the five months and 4.4 per cent for May. All but eight of the 57 reporting stores showed larger figures last month than for May of 1939, the bank's statistics and research department state.

Virginia's percentages of increase in May and in the January-May period, over last year's corresponding figures were 4.1 and 4.6; West Virginia, 16.5 and 13.1; North Carolina, 11.4 and 8.7; South Carolina, 13.9 and 11.6.

U. S. Oil Output Increases in Week

Tulsa, June 11 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States increased 159,752 to 3,808,932 barrels for the week ended June 8, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

East Texas production was up 98,590 over revised figures for the previous week to 396,000, with all Texas up 127,895 to 1,393,938. Oklahoma increased 17,100 to 435,350; California, 28,000 to 632,000; Illinois, 5,493 to 455,923; the Rocky Mountain area, 3,500 to 91,880, and Eastern fields, 100 to 108,000.

Kansas production was down 7,900 to 150,950; Louisiana, 16,647 to 291,428, and Michigan 257 to 58,908.

Exchange Market

New York, June 11 (AP).—The free British pound bounded 32 cents today in the latest violent twist since England announced it would no longer be acceptable as payment for empire goods.

The French franc, closely tied to sterling, jumped .20 of a cent.

Chief reason, according to one money trader, was plans are under discussion among leading international banks to substitute the official pound for the free pound in the local market.

Since the Bank of England controls all supplies of sterling at the official price function of the local market would be merely to act as agent for the Bank of England, according to money experts.

The Bank of England currently offers to buy at $4.02½ and sell at $4.03⅛.

The Canadian dollar gave little attention to the gyrations in sterling and ended ⅜ of a cent higher at 78⅜ United States cents.

On another financial front the Mexican peso came to life with the biggest jump in weeks.

Mexican merchants who have kept large dollar balances in New York, it was said, were troubled by President Roosevelt's speech denouncing Italian entry into the war. The balances were transferred back to Mexico City, a plethora of dollars resulted and the nominal price of the peso in New York jumped to 30 cents from 16.58 United States cents.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents).

Official Canadian control board rates for United States dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 21⅝ per cent discount, or 78.37½ United States cents.

Normal Deals In Grain Pit Start Friday

Minimum Prices To be Abolished by Chicago Board

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 11.—Minimum prices on grain futures will be abolished by the Chicago Board of Trade effective at the opening of business Friday, June 14, it was announced today.

The board of directors decided to discontinue the "pegged limits" at a meeting today.

The minimums were established May 19 after huge waves of selling orders had forced prices down almost 30 cents a bushel in wheat.

A statement by the directors said that "public confidence in the soundness of our national marketing system has again been demonstrated, it is now apparent that there is need for freedom in the markets in order that the new crops the farmers are about to harvest may be marketed to their best interests."

President John G. McCarthy, Vice President C. D. Sturdevant and Secretary Fred H. Clutton, of the board, were in Washington today conferring with Commodity Exchange officials.

The minimum prices were established at the request of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Kansas City Follows Suit

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—Directors of the Kansas City Board of Trade decided today to abolish minimum prices on grain futures, effective Friday. The decision was identical with one reached at Chicago.

U. S. Dollar Slips On Heavy Selling In Mexico City

Mexico City, June 11 (AP).—The United States dollar slipped almost a full peso today to a bid price of five pesos as foreign exchange operators offered hundreds of thousands of dollars for sale.

The Mexican City drop in the dollar was reflected in a rise in the peso in New York dealings to prices of 18.50 cents bid, 20 cents asked, from yesterday's quotations of 16.71 cents bid, 16.85 cents asked.

Informed sources said the dollar selling arose from fears that President Roosevelt's speech in Charlottesville, Va., indicated the United States might be nearing an entrance into the war.

A leading foreign exchange authority in New York said many Mexican merchants who keep dollar accounts in United States banks were withdrawing these funds to Mexico.

N. Y. Central Cuts Deficit in April

New York, June 11 (AP).—The New York Central Railroad today reported for April a net deficit after fixed charges of $932,058, compared with net deficit of $3,016,614 for April, 1939. For the four months ended April 30 there was a deficit of $1,459,674, against deficit of $7,321,287 for the similar period last year.

Steels and Aviations in Spotlight as Stocks Stage Widespread Recovery; Bond Prices And Foreign Exchange Share in Upswing

New York, June 11.—Stocks, bonds, foreign exchange, wheat, cotton and almost anything else you might want to know about improved sharply today—the first day of Italy's participation in the new world war. Markets are always cold and calculating. They are thoroughly objective in their point of view. From which one must conclude that investors, by and large, regard Mussolini's action in coming into the conflict when he felt everything was safe for Mussolini, as having the characteristics of a well-known brand of cheese manufactured in the Belgian Province of Limburg.

Technicians in Wall street have been saying for some weeks that the markets would do better as soon as there was an Allied victory, or at least some slackening in the Germany advance. As far as is known, none of the technicians expected the supplementing of the German forces by those of Il Duce to produce a similar effect; but they did so today.

There would appear to be no way to question the conclusion that, as far as investors are concerned, they regard Italy's entrance into the war as nothing more than the culmination of an expected development and one which does not seriously affect the ultimate outcome.

A General Recovery

In any event, today was a day for general and widespread recovery. On the Big Board the composite average showed a gain for the stock market of 1.11 points, with all groups participating and the war issues in the lead. Gains of from 1 to more than 4 points were well distributed among the speculative leaders. United States Government bonds and the domestic corporate list also were higher, with the bond market distinguished only by continued weakness in the foreign list.

If this is the effect of Signor Mussolini's action, it is fortunate for the bullish forces that he didn't cast his lot the same place as he did in 1914.

More seriously, the obvious fact is that markets had thoroughly discounted Italy's entrance into the war well before it happened. The exact time was not known, but the final announcement brought no surprise. The actual joining of the Italian and German forces had been expected and the damage that the action would do to securities was done before Il Duce made his pronouncement.

Gains Are Abrupt

Compared with the lows of the previous day, which came soon before the Italian declaration, the gains today were startling. The low for the composite average of 100 representative stocks on Monday was 93.69; its high today was 95.36. The average of industrial stocks alone Monday reached a low of 126.75; they made a high today of 128.72. The high for United States Steel today, of 48⅛, was the highest since May 20.

Steels and aviations shared the spotlight in today's trading on the big board. The three most active stocks of the day were steels, namely Republic, United States Steel and Bethlehem, their gains being 1¼, 2⅛ and 4 points respectively. Gains among individual aviations included Curtiss Wright, ⅝; Lockheed, 1¾; Glenn L. Martin, 2⅛; Grumman, 1⅝; Douglas, 1½; United, 2⅝ and Sperry, 2¾. Motors joined in the parade, General Motors adding 2¾ and Chrysler 3. Yellow Truck was up a point.

The rebound of foreign currencies carried sterling up 23 cents to $3.76 and at its high for the day it was at $3.85. This latter figure equalled the high of last week. Commercial buying played a part in the recovery, as did some covering of shorts from the Far East and talk that the free market may be discontinued. The French franc advanced 13 points to 2.13 cents.

Building Loans Set New Peak For 11 Years

$108,000,000 Total For April Reported To D. C. League

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Washington building and loan men will have extra cause for rejoicing at their second annual outing, June 19, because of good news received by the local league from its parent organization. Reaching new peaks in every direction, savings, building and loan associations of the country had in April their first hundred million dollar month in loan activity since the depression, lending an estimated $108,000,000.

A mortgage loan index of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board revealed that the associations transacted 32.5 per cent of all April home financing, as against 30.2 per cent in the month a year ago. Total volume included record sums loaned for new home construction, $33,764,000, and for aid in home buying, $37,821,000. Repair and modernization loans, the largest amount so disbursed in any month since June, 1937, aggregated $6,097,000.

Members of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League have also been informed by the United States Savings and Loan League that a larger than seasonal rise of 19.5 per cent over March lending activity for all purposes was recorded, while the increase over April, 1939, was even better, 29.4 per cent.

Current Rate High

Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the national league, reports that present loan activity is at about the rate of savings and loan financing during the period of 1923-'30, except for the two high years, 1927-'28. Of the home building which has taken place during the first four months, reported by the United States Department of Labor at $360,700,000, and taking into account public housing as well as private financing, savings, building and loan advances have accounted for approximately 30 per cent, he stated.

Analysis of April estimated loans made by all associations in the United States, purpose for which they were made and per cent of the total follows: Construction, $33,764,000, or 31.2 per cent; repair and modernization, $6,097,000; 5.6 per cent; home purchase, $37,821,000, 35.1 per cent; refinancing, $20,859,000, 19.3 per cent; other purposes, $9,460,000, 8.8 per cent.

Title Group to Meet

Local delegates to the thirty-fourth annual convention of the American Title Association will hear discussed improvement of public relations through better advertising. The meeting will be held June 26-29, at the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York City, 450 delegates from all sections of the country being expected. The organization is composed of more than 2,000 trust, title and abstract companies of the United States and attorneys specializing in real property law.

Dip in Short Interest Reported by Big Board

New York, June 11 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange reported today the short interest in the market as of May 31 dropped to 428,132 shares, from 530,594 a month earlier.

Total short interest in all odd-lot dealers' accounts, however, not included in the above figures, increased to 125,475 shares, from 62,201 a month earlier.

Twelfth Place Mayor Indicted For Assault

Robbery Is Charged To Bandit Suspect Missed by Bullet

To be mayor of Twelth place northwest for a day was the ambition of Harrison Hunter, 38, colored, of 2228 Twelfth place northwest. His ambition brought him an indictment in the United States District Court yesterday for assault.

Hunter walked up and down the 2200 block of the stret June 1 "telling people he was going to be mayor of Twelfth place that day," according to police. Ambition apparently led to action. Hunter is charged with assaulting William Logan, of 2213 Twelfth place. A gang of men ... A toy pistol and a bullet-riddled ... in an alley, Hunter said.

T toy pistol and a bullet-riddled hat figured in the indictment for robbery of Robert Green, 19, no address. Thomas H. Windsor, 559 Conduit road northwest, who operates a news stand at Thomas circle, was held up and robbed by a bandit who kept his pistol hidden in his pocket. Windsor knocked off the thief's hat with a pistol shot.

When Windsor went to his automobile later after notifying police, he found the hat on the street. He told police where he had found it and Green was discovered under an automobile in the alley at the rear of the 1200 block, Fifteenth street northwest. The money and a toy pistol were found on him, police said.

Indicted for stealing autos were Frank Forbes, 36; Robert Ford, 22; Fred Allen, 21; Albert Hulley, 35; Morris B. Timmons, 36, and Milton Smith, 18, all colored. Richard E. Woodruff, 24, colored, was indicted for housebreaking and larceny on 2 counts. Also indicted on the same charge were Melvin T. Wilson, 29; William Minor, 31, and Lloyd Johnson, 35, who was also accused of assaulting an officer.

Leonard F. Skinker, 19, and Herbert O. Horn, 18, both colored, were indicted for robbery. Assault with a dangerous weapon was charged to Annabelle Robinson, Rufus Mack, 38, colored; Donnell E. Johnson, 32, colored; James T. Briscoe, 22, colored; Anna Winston, 28, colored, and Estelle Berman.

Odell Harris, colored, 18, was indicted for sodomy on two charges, and Clarence Lynch, 28, colored, was indicted for assault with intent to commit rape.

Mary R. Kelley was indicted for forgery and uttering on four counts. Glenn M. Luther, 38, of Asheville, N. C., and Arthur W. August, 32, of 2307 Fifteenth street northwest, were indicted on charges of false pretenses.

James Chamoulos, 46, and Edward E. Driver, 39, were indicated for gambling. Myrtle B. Sidelinger and Thelma S. Perlin were indicted for violation of the Harrison Narcotic Act.

What do you say now?

Answer to Quiz

1. Four hearts. The immediate jump rebid to game at partner's major suit shows very strong trump support and about four to four and a half honor tricks. Since a jump to three hearts would only be semi-forcing and partner may pass with a minimum one-over-one heart bid, the jump to game is made to avoid such a possibility.

2. The three-heart bid is a sign-off. North does not like the no trump. If he had a strong hand he would have two hearts over one no trump, instead of which he bid two spades. He probably has five spades and four hearts but only about two and a half honor tricks.

3. The two-spade bid is a reverse and shows great additional strength. It is practically forcing. It indicates at least four honor tricks or, if less, a good club fit. North probably has five diamonds and four spades.

4. Pass. You have shown a strong hand by reversing and partner has not been able to show a preference for your first suit though he knows it to be five cards. His hand is good for nothing but diamonds. Do not bid three no trump.

Assault Trial Of Montgomery Countian Begins

Baltimore, June 11 (AP).—Floyd L. Turner, 27-year-old Montgomery Countian, went on trial today on a charge of criminally assaulting Mrs. Blanche Hall, his former sweetheart, in a woods near Rockville, Md.

Mrs. Hall testified Turner beat her, dragged her into the woods, and assaulted her.

She admitted having lived with Turner for three months before the alleged attack, and testified that she had married Hall without notifying Turner. Turner admitted striking the woman, but denied that he forced her to submit to him. The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Chamber Music Guild String Quartet (Frank Gittelson, Alexander Levin, Benjamin Sosner and Marcel Ancher) plays a concert for the war relief fund of the American Red Cross Tuesday afternoon in the Raleigh Hotel ballroom. Program: Quartet in E flat major, K 428 (Mozart), Quartet in B flat major, Op. 18 (Beethoven), Canzonetta from Quartet in E flat major (Mendelssohn).

Recently organized by Marcel Ancher, violoncellist, the string quartet of the Chamber Music Guild signalized its first appearance before the general public yesterday afternoon in the Raleigh Hotel ballroom by playing for the benefit of the American Red Cross war relief fund. Frank Gittelson, former concertmaster of the National Symphony Orchestra, occupied the first chair and the other members of the new foursome were Alexander Levin and Benjamin Sosner.

BROWN

Atmospheric humidity had its effect upon the intonation of the strings, so that the group did not make its debut under the most auspicious conditions, but the musicianship of the players made light of that handicap. Their readings were marked by good taste, discriminate phrasing and dynamic balance, and there was no lack of eloquence on the poetic side.

The program was one of the utmost conservatism, and the auditors were not worried by anything unfamiliar. Mozart's E flat major quartet, the third of the set dedicated to Haydn, led the list and was followed by Beethoven's B flat major quartert from Opus 18 and the canzonetta from Mendelssohn's E flat major quartet.

Labor Warned Of Strikeless Dictatorships

U. S. Will Be in War If British Government Comes West, Green Says

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, June 11. — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today if Germany drove the British government to the Western Hemisphere, "this country will be in the war on the side of Canada."

He told the American Federation of Musicians in annual convention Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin ruled "strikeless countries" and were "attempting to establish that reprehensible thing in Great Britain and France and perhaps America."

"What Fighting Did You Do?"

Des Moines, Iowa, June 11 (AP).—Frank Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, has sent letters to the 30 American business and professional men who urged this country's entrance into the war on the side of the Allies, asking:

"What fighting did you do in the last war?"

He continued:

"Are you now of an age and of physical and mental fitness which would enable you to do military service?

"If you could not be in our armed forces, how many of your own sons would be?

"If we go to war now, what would you have our men fight with?

The Iowa Legionnaire is the official publication of the State department of the American Legion.

Dutch May Declare War Against Italy

London, June 11 (U.P.).—The refugee Netherlands government is considering a declaration of war against Italy because of the Dutch principle of "solidarity with the Allies," it was stated authoritatively tonight.

Today's Radio Highlights

6:30 p. m., WJSV—The war broadcasts are as uncertain as they are gloomy, so we begin the day with a suggestion that a bit of frivolity might possibly brighten things somewhat. Gracie Allen and friend George are still reliable funsters in this wretched world.

7, WRC—Charles Boyer, that fine French actor, revives a popular Italian play, "Death Takes a Holiday," with Andrea Leeds as the young Grazia.

7:30, WOL—There'll be another mysterious visitor for listeners to place on "Where Are You From?" that unique dialect-detecto by Dr. Henry Lee Smith.

7:30, WJSV—Helen Claire and Jean Hersholt play a story which takes just the time necessary for the Dr. to eat lunch.

8, WRC—No longer will Wynn Murray chant on the Fred Allen show. The buxom singer remains in New York at the World's Fair in "American Julibee," while Mutual's pride and joy, Betty Jane Rhodes, sings in her place on this NBC show.

8:30, WOL—Leon Dostert, attache of the French Embassy here, addresses the Mutual network on "France at War."

8:45, WOL—Jean Deslauriers conducts the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's orchestra in a half-hour of exchange music.

9:30, WMAL—Dr. Orestes H. Caldwell, noted interpreter of science for the layman, takes his listeners behind the scenes at the Annual Radio Industry Show in Chicago on his Radio Magic program.

9:15, WJSV—President Rock Sleyster, of the American Medical Association, speaks at the annual meeting.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Listen!

with Slocum

Arch McDonald's heart is filled with sadness and woes these days, a condition that can be cured only by the Senators getting out of the second division so the United States Post Office is to be complimented for bringing a ray of sunshine into the life of a bitter, and disillusioned man.

Arch, as you may know, has been running a contest. Listeners were asked to guess the Nats' percentage after the Fourth of July doubleheader. WJSV doesn't know yet how many letters and postcards Arch drew because they are still spilling out of baskets all over the place as the business of sorting them goes on. However, one postcard is responsible for a little of Arch's happiness these days.

A lady over in Hamilton, Va., wrote out a figure (she's obviously a Nat rooter), signed her name and address to the postcard and flipped it in the mail box. However, she neglected the slight formality of addressing it. She left the address side absolutely blank, yet our canny Post Office lads knew exactly where to send it.

Glenn Walker and his band have deserted Washington and are playing an extended visit to Chicago. It was with mingled pain and joy that we saw Mr. Miller leave town. WJSV did the ticket distributing, and it was quite a job, what with hundreds of jitterbugs blitzkrieging the office every Monday morning and sweeping it clear of all available tickets, to say nothing of occasional pictures that they swiped off the walls. At first they were a bit distressing, but after a while it became a welcome relief to wander into the office, your mind filled with the usual Monday woes plus the latest news from abroad, and find a couple of hundred people who were faced with only one important problem—getting into a Glenn Miller broadcast.

"Orphans in Love"

by Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm, since both were children. After Peter becomes a public hero in a tenement fire, John Abbott, prominent attorney, makes a place for Peter in his office. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott decide it would be a good match if Peter married Millicent Abbott, so they could return to Peter without publicity his property which they had administered since Jonathan Tucker died, without known heir. Ellen has been promoted from a clothes model to a dress designer. She and Peter return to the orphanage for Christmas, and later go to the old Tucker house, which Peter has had cleaned and decorated. Ellen finds a letter from Paris dated 1913 in a Bible, and hides it when Millicent appears. Ellen reads the letter which reveals Jonathan Tucker's only heir, a grandson who was killed en route home from Europe, left a two-weeks old son. Ellen believes John Abbott knows where he is. Meanwhile, Millicent announces to the Abbotts her engagement to Peter. Peter sees the real Millicent when he accidentally tears her formal gown. Comparing her with Ellen, he appreciates Ellen's fine qualities. Ellen sees the engagement announcement and since Peter is to be Abbott's son-in-law, she destroys the letter concerning the Tucker heir.

Chapter 37

NIGHT AFTER NIGHT, she had tossed on her pillow and faced the knowledge of what was happening. But always she had been able to summon arguments to the defense of her meager hopes.

This affair was only a passing fancy, an evolution of the dream from which Peter would awaken sooner or later. He and Millicent Abbott were too far aport in the scheme of things; they would tire of each other eventually.

They were not bound together by years of hopes and plans and dreams . . .

Now she saw her false logic in blinding clarity. She realized that her futile arguments had been only soothing syrup to a mind too weak to accept fact.

Crosses Avenue

She crossed the avenue, running against traffic, and reached the subway entrance. On the newsstand seven morning papers proclaimed the end of dreams: the headlines swam in a blurred confusion before her eyes.

Mechanically she fumbled in her coat pocket for the pennies she usually kept apart for newspapers: she stopped, but only for an instant, and then she hurried down the steps without picking one up.

What more was there to read that she did not know already? Why torture herself with details? She would hear enough of those from other lips.

Stood Alone

She stook on the long platform and stared dismally across the tracks. A train pulled in on the opposite side and groups of young people alighted with noisy, vigorous enthusiasm.

They were the day students at the university which extended for so many blocks north and south of this subway station. She remembered when Peter had first gone off to college on his scholarship she had been a gangling, long-legged girl of 13 then.

He had kissed her good-by before running down the long hill to the gate of St. Peter's. Today, seven years later, that kiss still burned on her cheek.

Peter had forgotten it the moment he stepped into the bus which had carried him down to the city.

She opened her bag and took out the letter which she had carried with her ever since Christmas day. She looked at the faded address once again. Jonathan Tucker, Riverview, New York. She did not open it; she could visualize the crossing of every "t" and the dotting of every "i."

Carries Letter

Every day she had carried it with her. Sometime, so she had thought, she would meet Peter and she would show it to him. She had told nobody of finding it, not even Mother Ross.

It was for his eyes alone. He must feel the excitment which had stirred her blood when she first read it.

He must wonder, as she had wondered, what had become of Robert Jonathan Tucker, the 2 weeks old child of the seventh generation. He must ask himself what John Abbott knew.

But now it was too late to stir his mind with suspicion. John Abbott would soon become his father-in-law. Why should she try to develop doubt in their relationship?

Slowly and deliberately she tore the letter into little bits, dropped the pieces down on the tracks. Some of them floated in a little gully of water between the tracks.

A moment later an express train sped into the station and whirled the other pieces about in all directions.

Millicent stirred sleepily. The morning sun streamed in at her window and brightened the crystal bottles upon her vanity table.

One tiny ray, glancing upon the tall flat stopper of a perfume bottle, was reflected across the room. It painted a long pink rectangle on the pillow, moved toward her face.

The light struck her eyes. She opened them slowly. Without moving her head, she saw the tiny clock upon the bedside table. Five minutes past 9.

She drew in a long breath which was half a sigh and half a yawn. She raised a lazy hand to brush straggling curls back from her eyes. Five minutes past 9. She frowned.

Ordinarily she never wakened until 10. But ordinarily, too, she was not in bed before midnight. Some subtle change was creeping into the accustomed habits of her living.

She considered this. Three weeks ago her engagement had been announced. That was a definite preliminary.

Certain formalities were necessarily expected. Young affianced couples in popular society were seen together.

Went Places

They went places, every night. Important places. For some unfathomable reason, Peter could not understand that. He could not spend the money.

Or he planned a heavy day following. Apparently his idea of an engaged couple's life was that each evening be spent before the fireplace, going over plans and budgets.

And there was this silly notion of school. Heaven knows, she had been reasonable enough. She had agreed to make no dinner engagements during the week, to wait until 9:30 or 10 when he was through with his classes.

But, when she did that, and without complaint, why must he spend the entire evening harping on it? Surely her father would raise no objection to his coming in an hour or two late the next morning, or doing his studying at the office.

Something father had said occurred to her now. "I'm not so sure that you will find Peter quite so easy to manage as you believe." The prophecy angered her the more for the truth it had contained.

She tossed violently, kicking at the soft elderdown puff, and lay out flat upon her back.

She scowled at the ceiling. Of one thing she was certain. She was making every arrangement for Peter to enter her own circle of society, and he was going to live up to what was expected.

Rebels

She was not, most emphatically not, going to sit home another evening and listen to lectures on the technicalities of the law. Tonight she would lay down her own law.

The door opened stealthily and she shut her eyes. Hulda came into the room quietly and stood at the foot of the bed.

She walked softly, but with less of the apologetic humility which had characterized her actions some weeks before. Her independent departure the night of the engagement party had been a smart idea. A dozen times since she had told herself that.

She had shown Miss Millicent Abbott that she wasn't a person to be put upon. They got along better, now that they understood each other.

So now she stood at the foot of the bed and waited calmly for that lady to open her eyes. She did not cough nor fidget uneasily; she simply stood there, gazing down at the sleeping beauty.

The young lady did not look, Hulda decided with grim satisfaction, so much like her picture in the rotogravure section at this hour of the morning.

And Millicent, knowing full well that Hulda was there, shut her eyes the tighter. It was too early for breakfast, altogether too early, and Hulda knew it. But she didn't dare raise the devil with her again for fear she'd walk off in another huff.

That wouldn't do at all, because with all Hulda's faults, she did have the knack of massaging away a raging headache and she did know how to manage stubborn, fly-away hair.

To Be Continued.

A. M. A. Sees Peril In Plan to Build 50 Hospitals

By the Associated Press

New York, June 11.—Officials of the American Medical Association today predicted a new move toward socialized medicine in the United States.

The house of delegates, ruling body of the organization, adopted a resolution declaring that bills now under consideration by Congress and the expansion of the Veterans' Administration Hospital program might be opening wedges in establishing a Government-controlled program of medical care.

At present, the resolution declared, the Veterans' Administration has 54,779 beds in its various hospitals, and other Government services provide 16,345 beds with facilities for 10,000 more now under construction.

The A. M. A. legislative committee declared "that since we have not definitely destroyed the propaganda nor the sentiment held in some quarters in favor of state medicine, these numerous hospitals may later offer an opportunity for exploitation in this field."
